ROBINSON'S IRE AROUSED IN HOT SENATE DEBATE

Thrusts of Hastings Sting New Dealer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—With no legislative business at hand and the 1936 campaign getting under way, the senate was lifted from its lethargy today by the liveliest political debate of the session. Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.] performed an autopsy upon the New Deal, which so infuriated Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson that he bellowed like a bull in mortal combat.

SENATOR D. O. HASTINGS.

Hastings not only explained that the leaders of the Liberty league were Democrats who supported President Roosevelt in 1932, but that Al Smith was forced to "take a walk" by the repudiation of the Democratic platform. He quoted at length from the speeches of Mr. Roosevelt, extoling Jouett Shouse and John J. Raskob when he needed them back in 1932, and the speeches of Mr. Robinson extoling Mr. Smith when they were running mates back in 1928.

Roars Back at Hastings.

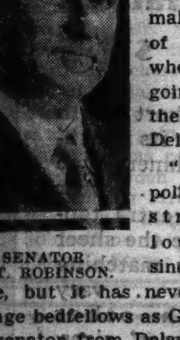
When Robinson began his reply and Hastings asked him to yield for a question he turned and roared:

"O, no. Sit down and take your medicine. Why, the unmitigated gall of a senator who would ask another senator dozens of questions in his speech and then refuse to permit an answer and then try to heckle the other senator in his own time. Of course I will not yield to the senator from Delaware. Why should I yield to him?

"The senator from Delaware has become the champion of the Liberty league. He has assumed to make a defense of Gov. Smith, no doubt on the theory that while Al is walking around he may walk into that unlighted and deserted camp where the senator from Delaware dwells almost alone.

Doubts Smith Will Err.

"But Al will not make that mistake. He may have made a mistake when he parted companionship with his friends and supporters of 1928, but he will not make the mistake of going the whole limit and going to bed with the senator from Delaware.



SENATOR J. T. ROBINSON.

"It is said that politics makes strange bedfellows, especially since woman suffrage, but it has never made such strange bedfellows as Gov. Smith and the senator from Delaware."

When Robinson had concluded, Hastings asked whether he thought he had answered the questions raised in the former's speech.

"Does the senator think he made a speech?" Robinson shouted. "What makes the senator think he made a speech?"

"Scared the Senator."

"Because it scared the senator from Arkansas so much that he wanted to ask me questions," Hastings replied.

Robinson declared that every time Hastings "performed" it added strength to the Democratic party. Out in Illinois the other day, he said, "Roosevelt got 1,375,000 votes and two hungry contesting candidates for the presidential nomination on a ticket—let me see. What was that ticket? O, yes, the Republican ticket. They got far less than one-half the votes that Mr. Roosevelt got."

Hastings told Robinson that he was not defending Al Smith for the 1932 Democratic platform, but merely Smith's complaint "in the speech that he made at the $5 a plate dinner following the $50 a plate New Deal dinner."

"I am calling attention to this, and

ETHIOPIA ENVOY SOBS AS LEAGUE ADMITS FAILURE

Geneva Evades Plea to Punish Italy.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, April 20.—A tragic scene was enacted tonight at a secret meeting of the league of nations conciliation committee of 13. Wolde Mariam, probably the last representative the present emperor of Ethiopia, Haile Selassie, will have here, broke down and sobbed. Despite this sad spectacle the league council voted a resolution placing itself exactly where it was last January.

WOLDE MARIAM. [Acme Photo.]

The dramatic episode was precipitated when the resolution, concocted by the great powers and considerably toned down by Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Premier Mussolini's delegate, was read. Wolde Mariam asked permission to express his opinion. The little grizzle headed Ethiopian started to protest but got in only a few words, pleading that his country's last hope was destroyed by the council's refusal to act against the Italian invader. Then he was so overcome he buried his head in his arms and cried like a child.

Protests League's Evasion.

When the public meeting was held later the Ethiopian delegate was sufficiently recovered to read to the audience—although in a shaky tone—his protest against the league's evasion.

Thus the league's latest attempt to bring peace to East Africa ended in a public fiasco which brought the prestige of the Geneva institution to an all time low and in many quarters inspired the prophecy that the league is sowing the seeds of world revolution.

The council's all day public session, which preceded passage of the resolution, only served to expose the divergence of interests among the members and the even greater divergence between the public and private attitude of the delegates.

League Regrets Its Failure.

The resolution included the following main points:

FIRST—The regrets of the council that the attempt to restore peace has failed, without attributing the blame for the failure to either side.

SECOND—The timid reminder that the league members are bound to continue sanctions.

THIRD—The appeal, exclusively addressed to Italy, to manifest the Geneva spirit in bringing the conflict to an end.

FOURTH—The reminder to the Ethiopians, who have no poison gas but are rough on prisoners, and to the Italians, who have poison gas, that both are bound by the 1925 convention [against gas] to respect the rules of war.

British Have One Consolation.

Even these negative results represent a league triumph in one sense, according to the British, who say they had to put up a terrific battle to keep the existing sanctions from being dropped.

The council's resolution, following upon a series of speeches which struck even the hardened league observers by their incoherence and insincerity, plunged the loyal supporters of the Geneva club into gloom.

"A session like today's cannot fail to shake the confidence of peoples in their governments," one high official of the league secretariat remarked. "The league's handling of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict is sowing the seeds of world revolution and preparing for a worldwide triumph for bolshevism."

The pessimistic note likewise was strongly sounded in the speeches of Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, and Stanley M. Bruce of Australia, chairman of the committee of 13.

Hints Britain May Resign.

Eden, in language never heard before in the mouth of a British foreign secretary, hinted Great Britain might have to withdraw from the league if Italy's violation of the league covenant were allowed to go un-

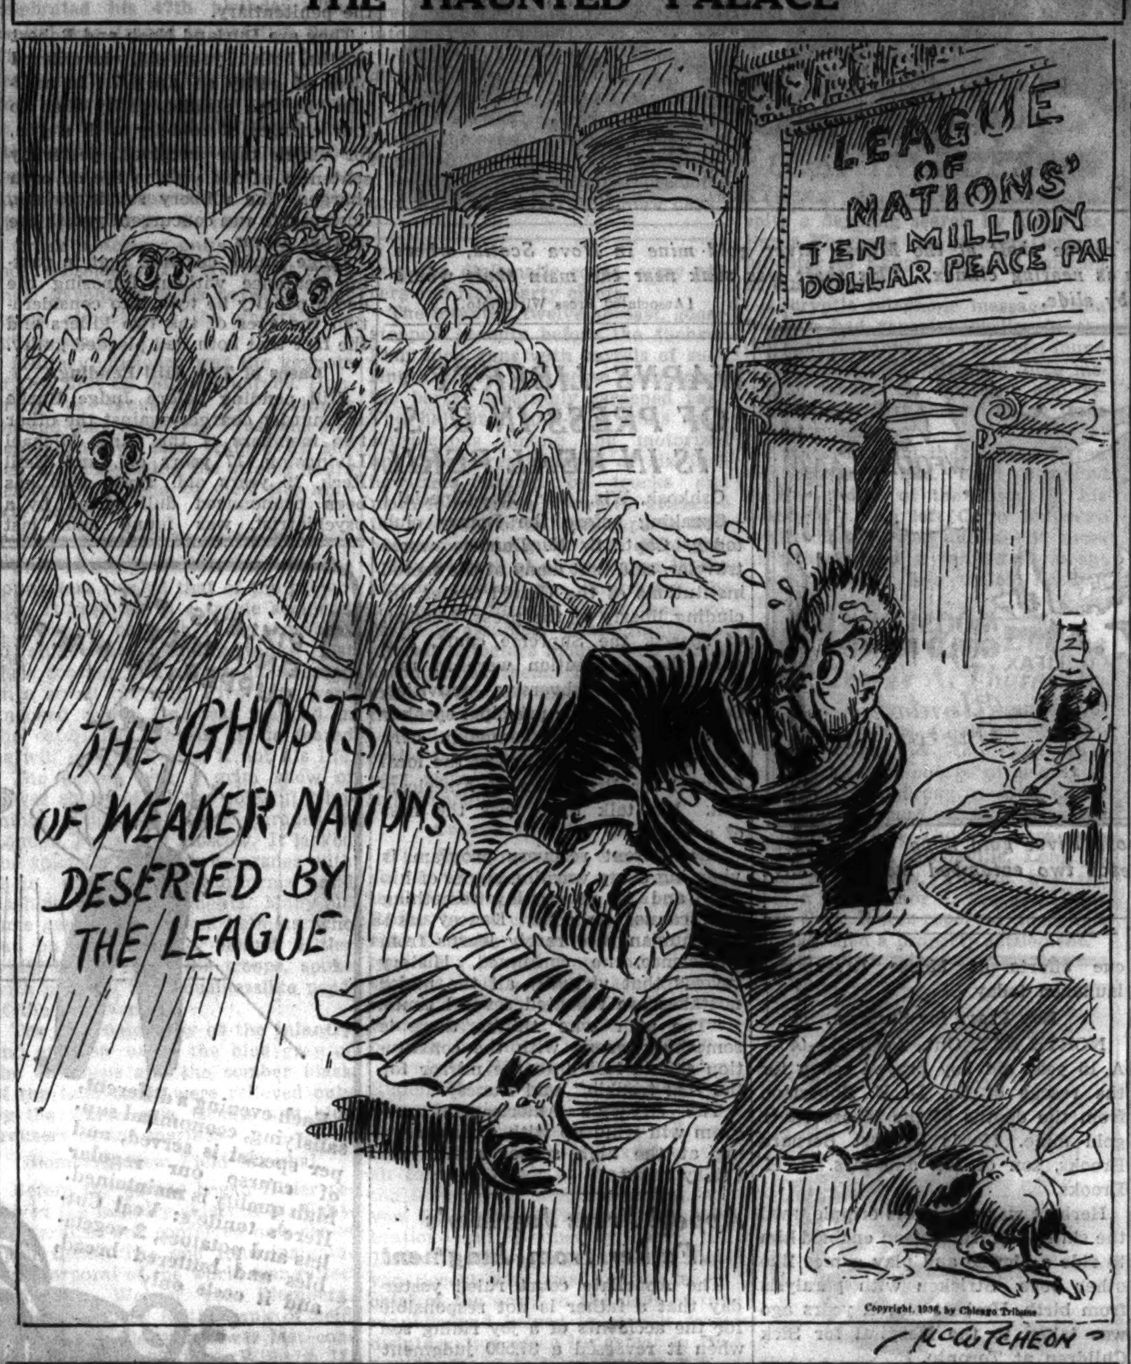
THE HAUNTED PALACE



Victim of Lash Tells Flogging Ordeal at Trial

Bartow, Fla., April 20.—(AP)—One of the victims in the Tampa flogging case testified today at the trial of seven former policemen that one of the defendants took him to the rendezvous where he and two other organizers of unemployed workers were tarred and feathered.

From the witness stand, Sam Rogers, 57 years old, member of the "Modern Democrats," coalition political organization, told a startling story of a primitive beating administered to him in a woods outside of Tampa last Nov. 30.

Rogers said he and the two others, Joseph Shoemaker, who died of his injuries, and Eugene E. Poulnot, were abducted outside the Tampa police headquarters after being questioned there regarding possible "communist activities."

Taken Away in Auto.

Rogers said some policemen took him to the outskirts of Tampa and transferred him to one of a line of automobiles waiting there. In the second car he was blindfolded with a handkerchief and driven away. Finally the car stopped, Rogers related, and he was pushed out.

"I was jerked across some logs," Rogers continued. "Two men held my hands, one man held my head down in the sand, and one or two others held my feet, and they began immediately to beat me."

"About how many blows were struck?" asked State's Attorney Rex Farrior.

"O, it would be impossible for anybody to count them under those conditions. I would estimate about forty or fifty licks."

Describes Attackers' Weapons.

"Can you tell what they used to beat you with?"

"Not exactly. It was something like a heavy coarse belt, or a water hose, and then something else like a chain."

"All right, then what happened?"

"Then they put tar on me from my ribs, my shoulder blades to the bend in my knees in the back. Then they tarred and feathered me in front from my chest down to my knees.

"While they were taking off my clothes I could see lights. I heard other cars come up and heard them call Shoemaker and Poulnot. They took Shoemaker next. They began to beat him——"

Tells of Hearing Groans.

Farrior objected that the defense attorney could not cross-examine until the witness completed direct testimony. The exchange ended when Marrior asked Rogers: "How did you know they were beating Shoemaker?"

"I could hear it," Rogers replied. "And he began to groan."

Six former Tampa policemen are on trial on charges of kidnaping Poulnot. R. G. Tittsworth, former police chief and the seventh defendant, is charged as an accessory.

Rogers identified C. W. Carlisle as one of the officers who raided a meeting of the "Modern Democrats" and then later delivered him into the hands of his attackers.

ROBBER SEIZES AUTO IN WILD LOOP CHASE; SHOT BY A POLICEMAN

A robber who commandeered an automobile was shot and seriously wounded by a policeman last night after a thrilling chase in the loop.

The policeman, Dennis Gallivan, and his partner, Policeman John Steiner, saw the bandit running east in Adams street toward Wabash avenue as they cruised along State street in a squad car.

They gave chase. The robber darted back to State street, pistol in hand. The police car followed, Gallivan firing several shots in the air. The gunman turned north in State street, darted to an automobile waiting for a trafic light and leaped into the front seat beside the driver, whom he ordered to drive on.

Policeman Gallivan fired one shot through the rear window of the commandeered car. The bullet struck the bandit in the neck.

The driver of the car, Johannes Krawetz, 1010 Isabella street, Evanston, who is the president of the Phoenix Chemical laboratories, 3953 Castello avenue, was scratched by glass from the broken window. His wife and a guest, E. E. Jackson of Shreveport, La., who were in the rear seat, were not injured.

The robber was fleeing after he had held up Peter Sederes, 1109 South Peoria street, a watchman for De Met's, Inc., and robbed him of a package of the company's mail as he walked in Adams street near State street. At the Bridewell hospital the robber gave his name as Sam Iovino, 28 years old, 1057 Taylor street. He has a police record as a holdup man and counterfeiter.

James Simpson to Return to Utility Desk; Eye Healed

James Simpson, chairman of the board of the Commonwealth Edison company, who has undergone two operations on his left eye since an injury on Christmas eve, will be able to return to his duties within a week, it was said yesterday at his town home at 1200 Lake Shore drive.

Cite Chicago Boy for Valor at CCC Camp

BY KAY HALL.

Until two months ago Stanley E. Stockins, 18 years old, 7119 University avenue, was enrollee CC6-131849 in the Civilian Conservation corps at China Flats camp near Powers, Ore. Since then he has been looking for work in Chicago.

A few days ago an official appearing document, two pages long and signed by Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone of the United States army, arrived for Stanley.

"Don't show it to anybody," the boy told his father and went out to look for a job. The document was a citation for bravery, notifying Stanley he is to be awarded the Civilian Conservation corps' new certificate of valor by the war department.

Yesterday, when the announcement came from Washington of the award, Stanley was again away from home "to see about a job."

Father Overrules the Hero.

"He wouldn't like it if I showed this to any one, but I will anyway," said his father.

The report stated that twenty-two CCC workers were returning to China Flats camp at 2 a. m. on last Aug. 19 after fighting a forest fire for thirty-six hours.

"The truck left the road and rolled down a thirty foot embankment," the report continued. "The men were all thrown from the truck and several were severely injured. Stockins was dragged from the wreckage by uninjured men and, refusing treatment for himself, although both ankles were broken, he continued to perform his duties as first aid man and directed the other men in collecting the injured and applying first aid. Stockins finally fainted from pain."

Cool Headedness Commended.

The camp commander who reported the case added a statement that Stockins exhibited "cool headedness" and prevented the injured and exhausted men from drinking contaminated water.

Stanley was graduated last year from the Hirsch High school and twice reached the semi-finals in the Tribune Golden Gloves contests. He does not swear or drink, according to his parents.

While he was in the CCC the government sent his family $25 a month. The family was on relief for three months, but promptly dispensed with public aid when Stanley's father obtained work.

DOCTOR'S STORY OF HOW HE WAS TRAPPED IN PIT

MOOSE RIVER, Nova Scotia, April 20.—(AP)—"Charlie, I want to tell you how I happen to be in this mess."

The tired voice of Dr. D. E. Robertson came up a wire reaching to his prison on the 141 foot level of the Moose River gold mine. He was on the verge of mental and physical exhaustion.

At the surface his brother-in-law, Charles Ivey of London, Ont., was huddled over the receiving end of the microphone outfit lowered through a diamond drill shaft.

Top of Shaft Caves In.

"The whole top of the shaft fell in," said Dr. Robertson, describing the events of Easter Sunday when he was trapped with Herman R. Magill, since dead of exposure, and Alfred Scadding.

"There were heavy crashes and another rush of air. After another hour it all crashed down. For a while we made no more movements.

"We were caught in there. It slipped away to the next level. The shaft above the level was quite clear up 132 feet. A big load fell across the timber. The whole roof above fell in."

Conversation Is Related.

The microphone attendant related a 4:30 o'clock [Chicago time] conversation:

Dr. Robertson:

"Hello, everything going fine?"

"Yes."

"Making good progress?"

"Yes."

"Do you think you will be able to get us out of here?"

"Yes, in about two hours.

Hears Hammering Blows.

"I hear fine hammering blows. Are they blasting?"

"No."

"Are they down the shaft?"

"Yes."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes."

There seemed to be some doubt expressed then as to whether the entombed men really heard the rescuers approaching them. The attendant heard the two men talking to one another.

"What about lights and cables?" Dr. Robertson asked. "Are we going to get out of here today?"

"Yes."

"Thank you."

LEADER IN PROFESSION.

Dr. D. E. Robertson, one of the men trapped in the Nova Scotia mine, is well known among Chicago specialists in diseases of the bones and joints. They recalled that he was one of the speakers before the American College of Surgeons at a convention held in the Stevens hotel several years ago. Three months ago Dr. Robertson attended a meeting of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons in St. Louis and read a paper on bone tumors. He is known in both Canada and the United States as one of the leading men in his field.

PAIR TOO WEAK TO REACH TUBE AND GET FOOD

[Copyright: 1936: By the Associated Press.]

MOOSE RIVER, Nova Scotia, April 21 [Tuesday].—Rescue workers hacked desperately early today at a wall of rock separating them from two men entombed for nine days in the Moose River gold mine after H. K. MacDonald, Halifax physician, said the pair could live another twenty-four hours.

Too weak to walk for nourishment which was offered them down a tube, the imprisoned pair—Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Scadding—expressed the fear the tunnelers would "overshoot their mark."

Sound of Drilling Fades.

In a voice that sounded hysterical Dr. Robertson talked over the telephone line which had been lowered to them in the pit, where they huddled with the body of Herman Magill, who died Sunday night from hunger and exposure.

"We can't hear them drilling now. We could hear them drilling in the shaft before."

Rescue workers promised late last night they would have the two men out by morning. But earlier [at 9 p. m.] they had told the entombed men, "We'll reach you in a few minutes."

Dr. Robertson promised, "I won't lose my head." But he asked that the engineer in charge of underground operations make as much noise as possible so he would know the workers were near. He and Scadding, the mine's timekeeper, called over the "pencil telephone" that they thought the rescuers were lying about the time needed to reach them.

Victims Feel Cold Draft.

They admitted feeling a cold draft. Rescue workers said this was a good sign and that possibly they had made a partial opening.

The rescue crew had no plan of the gold mine and could not tell the exact spot where Robertson and Scadding—cold, hungry, and sickened—crouched above a rising level of water. They knew only that it was at the 141 foot level. At midnight engineers estimated the underground diggers were from twenty to thirty feet away from the pair.

Physicians on the surface expressed the opinion Robertson and Scadding were suffering from hallucinations after their long entombment.

Appeal for Volunteer Diggers.

An appeal went out early today for six unmarried volunteers to replace exhausted diggers who had been tunneling with little rest for 24 hours.

One after another hardy Nova Scotian miners dropped into the tunnel with life lines around their waists, clawed with bare hands at the crumbled rock and dirt for 15 minutes, passing it back to other men, then were replaced by others. They were in constant danger of further rock falls, but they worked faster than supporting men could brace the walls with props.

R. J. Ivey, brother-in-law of Dr. Robertson, talked over the wire to his relative before midnight.

"He thinks we are lying to them," he quietly told the crowd. "They think the men are so far away they will be 10 or 12 hours cutting through."

Speakers at both ends of the line avoided mention of Magill, co-owner of the shaft with Robertson, with whom he had gone on Easter Sunday into their recently purchased property for an inspection. The long abandoned Meagher [main] shaft crumbled after them.

Bad Case of "Trench Feet."

Dr. McDonald, Halifax specialist, said Scadding was suffering from a serious cold and a bad case of "trench feet." Robertson had a cold. His voice was hoarse and tired. Dr. McDonald said he had "no real idea" of their condition. His hospital unit was ready to give the men first aid and rush them to hospital beds as soon as they should be brought up.

An emergency hospital was established under the supervision of Dr. Frank Davis, minister of health of the province, who took over a house, equipped it with cots and medicines, and looked after the medical arrangements. He is being assisted by three physicians and several nurses.

Send Down Wool Strips.

An airplane of the Ontario government landed on a lake five miles away carrying long strips of wool to be passed down the drilled hole for warmth of the two men.

Michael Dwyer, minister of mines, entered the make-shift rescue. When he returned to the surface he said he "had never seen anything to equal the courage of the Nova Scotia miners" waiting tensely for a chance to go down.

Eleven Stellarton Draegermen led the rescuers assisted by eleven men from Moose River, Caribou, Goldenville, and Waverly, and three from Porcupine, Ont.

The Draegermen get their name from a type of life saving apparatus they use. Their experience is in coal mining rescues; to have an emergency of this kind in gold mining is a rare thing.

Saturday night these men attempted a new method by starting through a crevice in the ground formed by the sinking. It was decided that this was the quickest way to get through. It is through this crevice off the Reynolds shaft that the Draegermen approached the entombed men.

Talks to Wife.

The shaft house, standing with one of its edges over the cave-in area, was torn down by two tractors to provide timber for the bracing of the new diggings. All available timber, cut at a sawmill near by, had already been used.

Dr. Robertson was able to communicate with his wife at noon yesterday. He told her, to cheer her up, "we're all right."

Word of Magill's death was passed up the tube shortly after 2 a. m. yesterday. He was ill when he went into the shaft Easter Sunday and Dr. Robertson had been treating him for several days. Magill was heard coughing soon after communications were established Sunday. Before his cough was heard, however, he had sent words of cheer to his wife at the drill hole.

"Hello, Herm," she had shouted.

Monday morning Mine Manager Henderson had been speaking down the tube, then rose from the mud and exclaimed:

"My God, Mac is gone."

Tells of Water's Rise.

Ivey, Robertson's brother-in-law, went to the tube for further information. For a while the news was withheld from Mrs. Magill. When she was told, she left the village and went to Halifax. She and Mrs. Robertson had been here for a week. Scadding's wife is on her way here from Toronto.

Apparently exhausted and fearful of dynamite blasts which might send tons of rock crashing down upon them, Dr. Robertson and Scadding early yesterday repeatedly asked assurances from the miners on the surface to push their efforts to reach them.

"There is good drinking water down here," they told the rescue party, "but there is too much of it."

Says Can "Hold Out."

The first indication of the condition of the two men came when Dr. Robertson reported that he and Scadding could "hold out" at least 12 hours longer.

At approximately 4 p. m. [Chicago time] Robertson and Scadding notified the surface they could hear the miners working on the level where they were entombed.

Asked by the surface operators to give up the telephone receiver so food could be sent down to them, the two men asked, "Is that all you want?"

"We can't get to the pipe," they informed the men on the ground, "ladders are too dangerous."

Brace Passageway.

After the underground diggers reported they were nearly in contact with the entombed men, Mrs. Robertson said:

"They tell me it is only a question of shearing down and making the passageway that they cut perfectly safe. They want to be sure. Isn't it wonderful?"

Talking to Ivey, Robertson pleaded that no blasts be set off for fear of caving in the jagged walls of the old mine.

Robertson said to tell his wife "we are both fine," and then engaged in a rambling conversation.

"It's too hard to walk," Robertson muttered into the microphone at the time he refused to go to the tube for food.

Miscalculated Once.

Rescue workers said yesterday afternoon that they feared they had miscalculated where the two men are trapped. It was soon afterward that they began a cross cut from the old Reynolds shaft.

Attempts were made through the old Archibald and Meagher [main] shafts, but had to be abandoned because the cave-in had blocked them far below the surface. A new shaft, blasted through solid rock to meet the Meagher slope below the affected area, missed its mark and was abandoned.

Daughter Mourns Magill.

TORONTO, Ont., April 20.—(AP)—The voice from the depths of the Moose River gold mine that told of the death of Herman R. Magill today brought sorrow to his Toronto home.

Nine year old Patricia Magill, who said a prayer of thankfulness when it was first learned the three trapped men were alive, burst into tears when the message came that her father had died 141 feet down in the mine.

"I prayed to God to save my daddy," Patricia had said bravely shortly before buoyant hopes were shattered by the report from the entombed miners.

Her 3 year old sister, Joyce Arlene, only dimly realized her father is "down in the mine," and that now he will not be rescued alive. Magill was 30 years old and a war veteran.

With an initial contribution of $1,000 by Ryland H. New, prominent Toronto sportsman, a fund for the miners risking their lives in the rescue efforts at Moose River was launched today.

Boy Prays for Surgeon.

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 20.—(AP)—A 15 year old boy prayed today for the rescue of Dr. D. E. Robertson from the depths of the Moose River gold mine. He is Herbert Bernard Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Brooks.

Herbert was a helpless cripple until the skill of Dr. Robertson enabled him to ride a bicycle and play games like other boys. Stricken with paralysis from birth, Herbert eleven years ago was taken to the Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto.

Dr. Robertson took charge of the boy, performed what was said to be the first operation of its kind at that time, and Herbert went home cured.

"We are most grateful to Dr. Robertson for what he did for our boy," Herbert's father said.

SCADDING'S CHILD AWAITS WORD OF FATHER'S RESCUE

Waukesha, Wis., April 20.—[Special.]—A 15 year old school girl here is following closely the newspaper accounts of rescue work in an abandoned gold mine at Moose River, N. S., where three men are entombed. One of them is her father. She is Ethel Scadding, 15, the daughter of Alfred Scadding. Eight years ago, following a divorce from his former wife, the child came here to live with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Liedtke. Since that time Ethel has written many letters to her father, but he never has been in Waukesha to visit her.

WARNS LIBERTY OF PRESS IN U. S. IS IN REAL PERIL

Oshkosh, Wis., April 20.—[Special.]—Speaking before the Rotary club today, Capt. S. N. Dancey, world traveler, said that many of the sacred institutions of the United States, including liberty of the press, freedom of speech, the Supreme court, and even the constitution were in real danger from subversive activities. Capt. Dancey is the principal speaker in an Americanism campaign here this week under auspices of the local Council for Promotion of Americanism. His talk today was the first of a series.

The present recovery program is violating every warning signal of history and is attempting something that cannot be done, Dancey said. The human race rarely learns from experience, he continued. History reveals that virtually all the major mistakes are repeated several times.

"The man who thinks there is something wrong with the constitution should look into the mirror for the real trouble," said Dancey.

The city-wide Americanism program will wind up with a massmeeting at the high school auditorium Friday night.

TWO SENTENCED TO 199 YEARS FOR PEACOCK KILLING

Nash and Goethe Trust to Mercy of Court.

Two of the four young robbers who have confessed slaying Dr. Silber C. Peacock placed themselves on the mercy of Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court yesterday and received sentences of 199 years each in the penitentiary.

They are Durland Nash and Robert Goethe, both 19 years old, who entered pleas of guilty on April 7. In addition the two pleaded guilty then to four charges of robbery with a gun, for which they received yesterday sentences of one year to life on each charge. The robbery sentences are, however, to run concurrently with the murder terms.

Judge Burke declared that in passing sentence without imposing the death penalty he took into consideration the ages of the two killers and the fact that both had pleaded guilty.

Cases of Two Still Pending.

Still pending before Judge Burke are murder charges against the other two members of the gang, Michael Livingston, 17 years old, and Emil Reck, 19 years old. Reck, who has been pronounced dull witted by a psychiatrist, was found sane last Thursday at a hearing before Judge Burke, and was ordered to stand trial. He and Livingston pleaded not guilty at the April 7 hearing.

The young men's murder trial was originally set for May 4, but yesterday, in view of the guilty pleas of Nash and Goethe, Judge Burke granted an immediate hearing on request of Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Kearney and Public Defender Bachrach. Nash and Goethe were taken into the courtroom and it was stipulated their confessions be introduced as evidence.

Repeat Story of Killing.

Each then took the stand and retold the details of how the gang lured Dr. Peacock from his home last Jan. 2 and shot and beat him to death when he resisted robbery. Dr. Peacock's body was found the following evening in his automobile.

"This crime is an atrocious one," Judge Burke commented. "We have a physician called from the sanctity of his home on a faked telephone call to attend a sick child. He was called to answer a human appeal and out of the goodness of his heart he responded.

"Maybe these youths did not intend to take a human life, but they must assume the responsibility of their act.

"The court will impose the penalty of 199 years in the penitentiary."

Neither of the youths appeared concerned over the sentence.

'BRITISH ARE COMING,' SHOUTS 1936 REVERE, BUT HE IS MISTAKEN

Boston, Mass., April 20.—(AP)—Two red coated National Guard calvalrymen, impersonating Paul Revere and William Dawes of colonial fame, galloped today over roads from which autos long since have driven horses, and shouted over the countryside their warning: "The British are coming."

The occasion was the 161st anniversary of the battles of Lexington and Concord, where, some say, was fired "the shot heard 'round the world."

But the calvalrymen—Sergts. John C. Ferguson and William H. Voss—received a warmer reception than the early patriots. A British patrol nabbed Revere at Lexington, and also forced Dawes to turn back.

The 1936 "Revere," however, galloped into a holiday gathering where Stars and Stripes flew, a band played, and crowds cheered.

W-G-N Broadcasts All Night Long from Mine

Radio station W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system were on the air last night with bulletins on the progress of the rescue workers at the Moose River gold mine in Nova Scotia. The first bulletin came at 11:30 a. m., having been transmitted by wire from the mine to the Canadian Radio commission's network, and then to Toledo, O., for a hookup with the Mutual system. In this fashion messages from the scene of the rescue work were put on the air in Chicago every thirty minutes. Early today W-G-N was the only Chicago station to broadcast these reports.

Each evening a different, satisfying, economical supper special is served, and of course our regular high quality is maintained. Here's tonite's: Veal Cutlets and potatoes, 2 vegetables and buttered bread, and it costs only 30c

REND'S ACCOUNT OF STOCK BUYING IS READ IN TRIAL

Rival Attorneys Clash as Testimony Begins.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Testimony of Joseph P. Rend, Chicago coal merchant and financier, taken in the form of a deposition on May 16, 1934, a year before his death, was read to the jury in Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward's court yesterday as the opening of the suit by which Mrs. Agnes E. Rend, his widow, seeks the recovery of $1,500,000 from the old National City company of New York.

Opening statements to the jury and clashes between attorneys show a widely divergent viewpoint and presage a legal struggle of unusual interest in this case. The courtroom was well filled despite the financial nature of the testimony.

Pictures of Mr. Rend were sketched by the attorneys, showing him in turn as a sheep shorn by the Wall street wolves through the misrepresentation of stock values, and as a shrewd manipulator of stocks who was forced to take losses that he had every reason to anticipate during the market crash of 1929.

Details of Crash Expected.

Affairs of the National City company during the crash promise to be thoroughly aired. The company at that time was the investment affiliate of the National City Bank of New York. Since then it has become the City Company of New York and is now in process of liquidation as a result of new federal banking laws requiring the divorcement of banks and investment affiliates.

In his deposition, taken in anticipation of death, Mr. Rend said he inherited $250,000 from his father, the late Col. W. P. Rend, pioneer coal merchant, and that he had about the same amount of his own. In 1921 he began buying National City bank stock, and by March 1, 1929, had acquired 20,001 shares.

For years before the stock market panic, he said, he dealt with the National City company and had bought from it $1,500,000 worth of various securities. He had implicit confidence, he testified, in the statements of the officers of the company.

Charles E. Mitchell, at that time chairman of the company and also of the bank, was Mr. Rend's brother-in-law. It was explained by attorneys that Mr. Mitchell appears only incidentally in this case, that the statements chiefly relied on by Mr. Rend were those of Hugh B. Baker, then president of the National City company, and the officers of the company in Chicago.

Scene in Chicago Office.

Nov. 1, 1929, is given in the deposition as the day when the first misrepresentations were made to Mr. Rend regarding the bank stock. A telegram was shown him on that day in the Chicago offices of the company in which Mr. Baker said that the bank stock would go to higher levels and that it was an exceptional buy. Mr. Mitchell's progressive policy in bank affairs was mentioned.

On these representations, Mr. Rend said, he bought 1,000 shares at $450 a share. A few days later he sold this stock at a loss of $110,000. After this, he said, he had a talk with Baker over the long distance telephone and was told that nothing had occurred which had impaired the value of the stock, although there had been a decline of 110 points.

Rend told Baker he had taken a "terrible trimming" but was induced, he said, to go ahead and buy more shares, which he did until February, 1930. Altogether, the attorneys for the plaintif contend, Rend paid more than $1,600,000 for the several thousand shares of bank stock he bought during this period and the stock eventually fell in price to $20 a share.

Market Manipulation Charged.

In the deposition Mr. Rend said that he was never informed that the National City company itself had made large purchases of bank stock. He said he did not learn of these purchases, amounting to $30,000,000, until March of 1933, when he was told of them by Mr. Mitchell, who had then resigned. Mr. Rend contends that the purchases were made in an effort to bolster the market for the stock and that at no time was it worth the amounts paid for it.

The deposition was read by Attorneys Preston Boyden and Walter Beebe, representing Mrs. Rend, who is executrix of her husband's estate. Various objections were made by Attorney Max D. Steuer of New York, representing the bank. Mr. Beebe at one point in a hot argument said that he objected to "this man from New York and his method." The court instructed the jury to pay no attention to the statements of the attorneys made in the course of objections.

Lawyer Tells of Bonuses.

In outlining the case for the plaintif Mr. Boyden said that the National City bank stock was not on the exchanges but was known as over the counter stock. The National City company traded in the bank's stock, he said, and usually had about 20,000 shares on hand at the end of each month. He told of huge bonuses paid to the executive officers during 1928 and 1929.

After the crash, he said, the company tried to sell to the public the 70,000 shares of bank stock it had bought for 30 million dollars and held a sales contest in its Chicago office. Flashes were sent out, Mr. Boyden said, giving a false impression of the value of the stock. When the stock was selling at $450 a share, he said, "the actual, real value was $68."

It was at this time that Mr. Rend was brought into the office and led into making new purchases, according to Attorney Boyden. He maintained that when the officials were telling Mr. Rend that the assets of the company had not been impaired they had lost from 10 million to 14 million dollars in this deal in the bank stock and had in addition a bad loan of 25 million dollars to a Cuban sugar company.

Steuer Denies Any Fraud.

According to Mr. Steuer there was no concealment or fraud in this case.

"Mr. Rend bought and sold securities with the National City company in about equal amounts," Steuer said. "He was as well informed about the bank stock and the operations of the company as any man could be. He had every avenue of information. He took advantage of the stock 'rights' issued to him and traded in 'rights.' By the latter part of 1928 he had acquired 3,300 shares of the bank stock.

"By the stock splitting and more rights he acquired 20,001 shares in 1929. For these shares he paid $1,958,593. He sold 5,000 shares to the National City company and received $1,796,400. He had then left 15,001 shares of stock which cost him $162,193, or $10.81 a share. In the meantime the stock had gone to $582 a share. And it had cost him $10.81."

Attorney Steuer then offered the defense version of the $30,000,000 bank stock purchase. He said:

"Negotiations were under way and a contract was drawn for a merger with the Corn Exchange National bank of New York. The National City bank began to accumulate stock to carry out its agreement under this contract. It bought 73,356 shares and paid $32,978,280.

Contract Falls Through.

"Under the contract it was to pay $360 a share for the Corn Exchange stock. As this stock was selling freely at $260 the National City stockholders withdrew their support of the agreement and it fell through. The National City bank then disposed of its shares, taking a loss of $1,497,873 on these 73,356 shares. This is the loss that my adversary places at ten to fourteen millions.

"In November, 1929, Mr. Rend went to New York and during a social visit at Mitchell's house he told Mrs. Mitchell [his sister]: 'I have sold 5,000 shares of National City bank stock and I am going to buy it back. I have already bought 1,000 shares and am going to buy 4,000 more.'"

Mr. Steuer asserted this showed that Mr. Rend did not buy the stock because of misrepresentation but was carrying out a plan already formed.

MRS. BETTY MARTIN.

Does the Ironing

Apparently recovered from her hysteria Mrs. Betty Forbert Martin, 33 years old, who shot and killed her husband, Andrew, in a south side tavern on April 9, was interviewed yesterday at the county jail. She reiterated her story of her marital troubles. Matron Mary Kennedy said Mrs. Martin had asked for work and had been assigned to the task of ironing. Hearing on the murder charge against Mrs. Martin is set for April 28 before Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle.

Mrs. Grady was seized Friday in the postoffice building when she called for a letter.

HITLER FLAUNTS MILITARY MIGHT ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Troops, Guns and Tanks Paraded in Berlin.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 20.—The Stars and Stripes floated over the American embassy and consulate today in honor of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, who celebrated his 47th birthday. The capital was draped in swastika flags. The streets echoed to the heavy tread of 14,000 infantrymen, to the hoof beats of thousands of horses, and to the rattle of 1,500 tanks and other military vehicles on parade before the man who rose from an Austrian sign painter's job to the dictatorship of the German nation.

Crack motorized units flitted by almost noiselessly. The troops sat rigid, their bayoneted rifles between their knees, almost like the ghosts of a future war.

Military efficiency was the keynote of this first all military parade. Hundreds of thousands of Berliners showed they were true Prussians and descendants of men trained by soldier kings by lining the streets hours before the parade to view the military pageant.

Boys Knocked Down by Tank.

The military enthusiasm of the youngsters rivaled that of the grown-ups. It resulted in a tragic accident. A group of boys, in their eagerness to study the speeding tanks, lost their footing just as a tank swerved on a street car rail. Five boys were knocked down. One was trapped in the caterpillar wheels. It is feared he will lose both legs, if not his life.

The parade was a grim show of power shorn of all the colorful trimmings which still mark parades in London, Paris, and Moscow. It lacked the splendor of pre-war parades with their multicolored uniforms and dashing cavalry regiments. Many old time generals in spiked helmets, who sat on the tribune behind Hitler while he reviewed his troops, spoke with pride of the "businesslike pep" of the new army.

The dull field gray of the infantry and artillery units, the blue gray of the air corps and the somber black of the tank corps were relieved only by the white, gala jackets and blue trousers of the marines.

Blomberg New Field Marshal.

Before the parade began Hitler received the military chiefs of his fighting services and conferred new ranks upon them. The one time insignificant corporal of the world war raised Maj. Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of war, to the rank of field marshal—a title which was last conferred by former Kaiser Wilhelm II. on the late Paul von Hindenburg and August von Mackensen.

He promoted the commanders in chief of the army and navy—Gen. Werner von Fritsch, who was absent because he fell off a horse, and Admiral Erich Raeder—by making them cabinet ministers. To his old comrade, Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia, minister of air, and general of flyers, he gave the title of colonel general.

Escorted by military commanders Hitler drove past a balcony filled with members of the Hohenzollern family, past troops massed around the Column of Victory, through the "Seges-Allee," or Drive of Victory, to the Tiergarten. There reviewing stands had been erected for his retinue, the diplomatic corps, army officers and Nazi party chiefs.

The infantry, twelve abreast, goose-stepped proudly before the fuehrer. Four inch guns with barrels of such length that a six horse team drew the barrel separately careened past. The half inch anti-tank guns were conspicuous among the motorized units. A large number of six inch howitzers drawn by trucks and manned by crews of twelve, attracted the attention of military experts. New heavy machine guns were displayed.

The number of aircraft men in the parade created the impression the German air force is bigger than generally is assumed. Searchlights and aircraft detectors mounted on trucks accompanied them. Two man tanks, armed with two machine guns each, thundered along.

An infantry battalion on motorcycles brought up the rear. The side cars were equipped with heavy or light machine guns.

Crowds Acclaim Hitler.

The Wilhelmstrasse was thronged all day by eager Nazis who gave ovations to Hitler whenever he appeared. Rooms in the chancellery were filled with birthday presents for the fuehrer. They ranged from embroidered slippers and a ring made from a woman's hair, to costly jewelry. One woman brought a gargle for Hitler, because he "must talk so much."

Tonight Hitler's deputy leader, Rudolf Hess, swore in 764,000 Nazi party functionaries. Tomorrow Germany will celebrate another military day. Gen. Goering will review the air force in honor of the memory of the famous war ace, Baron Manfred von Richthofen. The military celebration ends Wednesday, when the Berlin garrison honors Gen. Hans von Seeckt who was commander in chief of the army in the days of the republic and helped to save it from disintegration after its defeat in the world war.

SUMMER PAYS BRIEF VISIT; MERCURY FALLS 27° IN SEVEN MINUTES

Vagrant winds whipped across Chicago yesterday, shooting the temperature up and down in unusual changes, and setting a heat record for the day.

At 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning the mercury stood at 50 degrees. In five hours a hot wind from the southwest prairies sent it soaring to 73 degrees. At 3:08 p. m. it reached a maximum of 82 degrees, the warmest for the season, and three degrees higher than the previous record for April 20 set in 1923.

Just as this record was set, the wind swung suddenly to the northeast and blew in a wave of chill lake air which sent the mercury down 27 degrees in 7 minutes, reaching 55 degrees at 3:15. It dropped last night into the middle thirties.

Although police of the Chicago park district will officially don spring uniforms by order of Chief Michael Hayes today, a part of the Lincoln park force rushed the season yesterday and then regretted it.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel predicted cool weather for several more days.

ROBT. W. CHILDS, NOTED ATTORNEY, WEDS SECRETARY

Robert W. Childs, Chicago attorney who for many years was a special assistant United States attorney general, and Mrs. Elsie Blakemore, his secretary for ten years, were married two weeks ago in Hinsdale, it was learned yesterday. They are now on a wedding trip to Inn-By-the-Sea, Pass Christian, Miss. Dr. Wilfred Rowell, pastor of the Union church of Hinsdale, married the couple at Mr. Childs' residence, 132 East 5th street, in the suburb where they will return to live in a week. Mr. Childs is 60 years old. He was noted for his prosecution of Chicago packers for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law in 1909 and subsequently handled food inquiries for the government. He is a member of the firm of Sanders, Childs, Bobb & Westcott. His first wife, Mrs. Katherine Barton Childs, died four years ago.

AVIATORS HUNT GERMAN ENVOY LOST IN A DESERT

CAIRO, Egypt, April 20.—(AP)—Despite a day-long search by airplanes, Baron Eberhard von Stohrer, German minister to Egypt, was still missing at dusk today.

A cryptic telephone message from Baharia had reported earlier in the day that the diplomat had been found there, but an Egyptian air force mechanic landed on the spot and reported back that there was no trace of the minister.

Authorities said they feared Baron von Stohrer had been stranded in the middle of the desert in his automobile. He left Cairo Saturday to attend the royal automobile races at Baharia and a sandstorm swept over the area into which he had driven.

Wife Seeks a Reno Divorce from George A. Thorne Jr.

George A. Thorne Jr., grandson of George R. Thorne, a founder of Montgomery Ward & Co., was sued for divorce on a charge of cruelty in Reno, Nev., yesterday by Mrs. Elinor G. Thorne, according to a dispatch from Reno. The Thornes were married in 1931 in Brookville, Long Island, N. Y. Mrs. Thorne was the former Mrs. Elinor S. Toerge of New York City. It was reported the couple have reached a property settlement.

Madrid Jails 16 Priests as Enemies of Republic

Many Hide in Mountains Outside Capital.

Thousands poured out on the Jimma road, the nation's best highway leading to the southwest, or sought refuge in mountains. Virtually all private businesses were shut down.

Unfounded rumors led many to believe the Italians actually were on the outskirts of the capital, despite the fact the last reports from Debra Birhan state they have not yet begun an ascent of the mountains south of Dessye.

Foreigners Remain Behind.

The rumors were sufficient to start trucks loaded with refugees roaring through the city in a night-long exodus which continued unabated today. Most of the 3,000 foreigners in Addis Ababa remained behind, including American, French and Swedish missionaries who are sticking to their jobs in hospitals.

Despite rumors to the contrary, members of the royal family remained here. Emperor Haile Selassie is believed to be at the front. Most foreign legations were filling with refugees. The American legation, in a more dangerous position near the heart of town, was unoccupied except for the staf.

A rush began on the Bank of Ethiopia, which has British officials. The bank issues checks for foreign money but refused to issue foreign banknotes. The bank announced it would cease transactions on Friday.

Italy Plans Victory Fête.

ROME, April 20.—(AP)—Fascist officials prepared tonight for a nationwide celebration of prospective victory in Ethiopia as Rome's 2,689th birthday anniversary drew near.

The long heralded birthday celebration—first of the two festivals—opens tomorrow in commemoration of the founding of the city by Romulus.

A victory mobilization, in which all Fascist organizations were ordered to participate, will be timed to coincide with the entrance into Addis Ababa of Marshal Pietro Badoglio's warriors.

The birthday anniversary will bring inauguration of a series of public works projects and the start of the eighth quintennial census. Between midnight tonight and the same hour tomorrow, every person in Italy—resident or transient—must be counted.

Demands 60 Million Population.

Premier Mussolini has informed the public he attaches great importance to this population count to learn what progress the country is making in the effort to increase the inhabitants nearly 60 per cent in 30 years.

When Fascism came to power the Italian population by the 1921 census was 38,000,000. Il Duce declared then it must be 60,000,000 by 1950 "if Italy is to count for something."

The war ministry sent out a call to all physical ineligibles of the classes of 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914 to undergo a second medical examination to determine whether they are now fit to serve under arms. The ministry also began examinations for the class of 1916 whose members are due to begin the regular training period next spring.

BLAME AUSTRIAN INSURANCE CRASH FOR NEW SUICIDE

VIENNA, April 20.—(AP)—Authorities attributed a second suicide today to the crash of the Austrian Phoenix Life Insurance company, with the finding of the body of Frau Johanna Litwin in a gas filled room.

She was a sister of the late Wilhelm Berliner, general manager of the insurance company who was charged with irregularities.

Previously Heinrich Oschner, federal insurance commissioner, had killed himself after losses affecting thousands of policyholders mounted to more than $25,000,000.

ETHIOPIA ENVOY SOBS AS LEAGUE ADMITS FAILURE

Geneva Evades Plea to Punish Italy.

punished, while Bruce, speaking as the delegate from Australia, said the league's failure in the East African war showed the whole system of collective security must be "reëxamined"—which might mean either reformed or discarded.

Whether Britain quits the league or not, Eden warned that his nation will take the same attitude in future conflicts that the other league members take in this one—meaning France had better not count on British support against a German attack unless it changes its policy toward Italy.

"We, who have been concerned with the course of this dispute, must many times have been conscious of the fateful influence that its outcome must have upon the future of the league itself," Eden said. "There is no nation represented here today that may not at some time need the protection of the covenant, and how much may the efficacy of that protection depend upon the final outcome of the present crisis!

Hints Change in Policy.

"His majesty's government is prepared to act in accordance with that policy [collective security] now and in the future as long as other nations are and no longer, to the extent that other nations are and no further. If, as a consequence of the final outcome of this war, the authority of the league of nations is so shaken that its future utility as the best estimate for the preservation of international peace were placed in doubt, then we should each of us have to consider the policy which in that situation it would be our duty to pursue.

"This is not a prophecy but an anxiety. Its gravity should surely emphasize the responsibility which lies upon each one of us to insure that we contribute to our utmost and within the limits prescribed by the covenant in collective support of the authority of the league.

"Only thus can we hope ultimately to establish the rule of order in a world in which aggression does not pay."

Text of Ethiopia's Complaint.

This sorry day concluded with the voting of the resolution and Wolde Mariam's appeal. Hunched over in his seat the little woolly headed represenative of the negus asked in a plaintive voice:

"Is the council satisfied to launch a supreme and platonic appeal for Italian collaboration in the maintenance of peace? Is this the effective assistance to which states which are members of the league of nations engaged themselves in signing article XVI? Is this the execution of the promise made by the league in October, 1935, I mean this abandonment before the accomplished fact because the aggressor is powerful and the victim is alone? The Ethiopian government thinks that a redoubtable precedent for the maintenance of peace and the maintenance of international obligations is going to be created."

BRITAIN BUILDS AN ARMED CAMP IN ADDIS ABABA

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 20.—With the Italian army reported to be sixty miles from Addis Ababa, the British government announced today it had taken all precautions for the protection of its nationals in Ethiopia. It has established an armed zone around the British legation, which is three miles from the center of the capital.

Guarded by a company of 130 Sikhs—famous Indian fighters from the Punjab—commanded by Englishmen and armed with machine guns, the zone is surrounded by barbed wire and has everything needed for the complete protection of the 2,000 British nationals as well as 1,000 persons of other nationalities against any possible eventuality.

Gather Food and Water.

Food and water supplies large enough to take care of this number for an indefinite time have been collected. Besides there are great quantities of arms, medical supplies, and gas masks, with tents and underground shelters to protect the refugees from heavy rains and air attacks.

The zone has been established as the result of a conference of members of the diplomatic corps in Addis Ababa, of which Sir Sidney Barton, the British minister, is said to be the senior member.

"We have no idea and no information as to what the attitude of the Italians would be if they occupied Addis Ababa," said a foreign office spokesman in London. "We have taken precautions in case of riots or attacks during the interregnum of the transfer of authority. There is no question of the British or other legations evacuating."

Legation to Remain.

Usually when a government evacuates a capital the foreign legations accompany it, as when the Belgian government, during the world war, retired to Le Havre. In Ethiopia, however, the circumstances are exceptional. There is little likelihood of the British legation following Emperor Haile Selassie into the wilds.

BRITISH STRENGTHEN DEFENSES AT MALTA TO GUARD TRADE ROUTES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 20.—The British government is taking steps to bring the defenses of the Island of Malta up to the highest state of efficiency against all forms of attack, it was revealed in British naval circles tonight. Contrary to Italian reports, the island is regarded as of considerable strategic importance, and British naval officers are said to be unanimous in believing Malta is indispensable as a base to protect the Mediterranean trade routes.

A powerful fleet stationed there, naval experts say, would guarantee a reasonable measure of safety to British shipping between Gibraltar and the Suez canal. Malta is the only British territory on the vital 1,920 mile route from Gibraltar to Port Said.

The idea that an air attack alone would render Malta untenable is rejected in competent quarters. The island's defenses, it is pointed out, have been strongly reëforced since last fall.

SANCTION STATES MAY SEND NEW ENVOYS TO ITALY

ROME, April 20.—(AP)—Diplomatic sources stated today that as soon as a peace is concluded with Ethiopia Rome will see an almost entirely new lineup of ambassadors and ministers.

The governments of most of the nations which have engaged in sanctions against Italy, it was revealed, are considering replacing their principal representatives here as soon as peace is reached.

This results from the fact that since sanctions have been imposed these dpilomats have become "persona non grata" and have been excluded from every government function or reception and every function or review in which the king takes part.

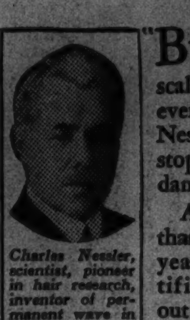
YOU CAN NEVER BE BALD

IF YOUR SCALP REPLACES HAIR THAT FALLS says Charles Nessler



Charles Nessler, scientist, pioneer in hair research, inventor of permanent wave in 1906. Author of outstanding textbooks on hair biology.

"BALDNESS is not natural. Nature never intended man to be bald. You can help your scalp perform its natural function—to replace every hair that falls with new hair," says Charles Nessler, leading hair biologist. "Any attempt to stop hair from falling is not only useless, but dangerous," Nessler further goes on to explain.

After more than twenty-five years of scientific research, out of Nessler's laboratory comes PRO-KER—the first scientific treatment ever based on the replacement theory—the theory that Nature must be helped to replace hair that falls. Not stop falling hair—that is impossible; but replace it. The PRO-KER Treatment helps the scalp perform this natural function . . . helps replace falling hair with new, healthy hair.

RELIEVES DANDRUFF—ITCHING—OVER-OILINESS

These secondary conditions are quickly relieved by the application of PRO-KER. Pleasant to use—not sticky or greasy. An excellent hair-dressing for men and women. Free from alcohol. Start today on the simple PRO-KER Treatment. Get PRO-KER at any drug counter. Booklet accompanying bottle contains not only instructions for use, but vital do's and don'ts about your hair. HORNER FORCES MOVE TO UNSEAT HIS PRIMARY FOES

Plan Is to Make Governor Undisputed Leader.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick Springs, Ind., April 20.—[Special.]—An ambitious political program designed to make Gov. Henry Horner the undisputed Democratic leader in Illinois was launched here today by those who helped the governor win renomination last Tuesday. Sitting in the conference were United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney of Chicago.

No formal announcement was made when the meeting broke up, but individuals who attended declared that among the objectives are:

1. Election of Igoe to succeed National Committeeman P. A. Nash.

2. Election of Mrs. Blanche Fritz of Bridgeport to succeed National Committeewoman Elizabeth A. Conkey of Chicago.

3. Election of Harry Hershey of Taylorville as state chairman to succeed Bruce A. Campbell of Belleville.

4. Passage of permanent registration bills at a special session of the legislature, some time before July 1.

Will Keep "Bossism" Alive.

One conferee, who asked that his name be omitted, said "Our job is to go right down the line for the Horner principles." The governor is credited with winning renomination by use of the charge that Mayor Kelly of Chicago aspired to be the "boss" of all Illinois; thus, the "Horner principles" was translated as meaning that group intended to keep up its fight against the mayor.

The theory was that unless the governor kept pounding away in the same vein, he might lose some of the support which went to him on the "bossism" issue.

Control of both the state convention on May 1 and of the delegation which Illinois will send to the national convention in Philadelphia in June is claimed by the Horner people. This insistence was maintained in the face of a report from Chicago that the delegate strength in the state convention would be determined on the basis of the 1936, instead of the 1934, primary.

Fight at Convention Indicated.

The Horner group has held that the '34 primary, when downstate had a slight edge over Cook county, would be the basis. The governor carried downstate by 300,000 last Tuesday. Cook county, by virtue of the Bundesen vote, would hold the balance of power under the '36 interpretation.

One Hornerite, when informed of the '36 interpretation, said that if Cook county sent a larger delegation to the convention than it was entitled to under the '34 vote, it would not be seated.

The reported plan is to unseat Chairman Campbell, a Bundesen supporter, at the meeting of the new state committee, which is expected to organize on the morning of the convention. Elimination of Nash from the national committee would be accomplished at the national convention, and the governor, according to his friends, will be chairman of the delegation.

United States Attorney Igoe is understood to be passive toward the possibility of resuming a place on the committee; that is, he is said to be willing to accept the post if tendered, but he would not make a fight for it.

Horner Flies to Capital.

Gov. Horner flew back to Springfield with L. P. Bonfoey, chairman of the Illinois aeronautics commission, as soon as the conference ended. He expects to go to Chicago next week-end, where it was said he will be available if any ward committeemen, most of whom were in the Bundesen camp, care to come in and pledge their support in the fall.

There is no doubt here that Walter Williams of Benton, former president of the board of trustees of the University of Illinois, will be denied renomination for trustee if the Horner forces control the state convention.

Cassidy May Be Keynoter.

A likely choice for keynoter at the convention is John E. Cassidy of Peoria, who ran for lieutenant governor on the Horner ticket, but was defeated for the nomination by John Stelle, present treasurer.

There was much talk in the hotel lobby during the week-end about what might be done for Cassidy in the way of an appointment.

This scheme calls for the appointment of Attorney General Otto Kerner to one of the two vacancies on the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago and the selection of Cassidy to succeed him.

Horner Group Sees Control.

The state central committee is authorized to fill vacancies on the state ticket and could name Cassidy to the proposed Kerner vacancy. The Horner group is confident that it will control the new committee by virtue of the downstate sweep the governor made last Tuesday.

One argument being made for Cassidy's selection for attorney general is that it would balance a state ticket now lopsided in favor of Cook county. Four of the six nominees on the ticket come from Cook—Gov. Horner, Secretary of State Hughes, Auditor Edward J. Barrett, and Mr. Kerner. Stelle and John C. Martin of Salem are the downstaters. With Cassidy on the ticket it would be balanced three to three.

French Mine Workers Vote Protest Strike for May 1

PARIS, April 20.—(AP)—The Federation of French Miners Unions voted today to call a nation-wide strike beginning May 1 in protest against a refusal of mine owners to answer demands for improved working conditions.

Delegation Today Will Ask IERC Extension to July 1

The general assembly will be asked today to extend the powers of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission from May 1 to July 1 and to provide $6,000,000 relief funds for the next two months in addition to the $4,000,000 which will be available from sales tax revenues. This procedure was agreed upon yesterday at a joint meeting of the recently formed county and city relief committees, held at the county board rooms.

Last night a delegation drawn from members of the committees, and including Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, departed for Springfield to request immediate action to straighten out the present tangled situation. The group planned to confer with Gov. Horner before appearing before the legislature, which today will reconvene in its second special session.

Bills Ready to Be Introduced.

Drafts of amendments to the law which fixed the expiration date of the IERC at May 1 are ready for presentation, it was announced at yesterday's conference. These will be introduced by State Senator Harold Ward and Representative Benjamin Adamowski.

Adamowski, who was present at the city-county meeting, admitted that the legislature was to blame for lack of foresight in bringing about the situation by which the relief burden would be shifted to the counties May 1, without enabling them to carry the load. Relief is scheduled to be shifted a second time, July 1, to the townships except in Chicago where the city is made responsible.

"May 1 was not decided upon by thinking at all," Adamowski declared.

Holds Import Not Realized.

"I don't think that half of the downstate members of the legislature realized that after this date, the burden would be on the counties.

"The idea of abolishing the IERC was the product of the minds of downstate members, who forgot that relief can't be financed locally.

Adamowski and Ward told the committees and county officials that they believed the legislature now can be induced to extend the life of the IERC to July 1, but not longer.

IDENTIFY THREE KILLED IN TRUCK AND AUTO CRASH

Nephew of Rock Island President Is Victim.

The two men and a woman burned to death early yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding burst into flames after crashing into the trailer of a cattle truck at 111th street and Cicero avenue, in Worth township, were identified yesterday at the inquest.

They were James N. Redmond, 26 years old, 9819 Loomis street, owner and apparently the driver of the machine; William A. Gorman, 46, of 1350 West 98th place, and his wife, Mary, 38. Gorman is chief clerk of the trafic department of the Western Pacific railroad and a nephew of James E. Gorman, president of the Rock Island railroad.

The identification of the bodies, which were charred beyond recognition, was made mainly through the efforts of Lieut. Fred Mulhausen of the Willow Springs police who traced the motor numbers.

Relatives of the three verified the identifications through jewelry.

Wife Declines Ride.

Redmond, the son of Fire Capt. William J. Redmond, had been riding with his wife, Johanna, Sunday evening. They returned home and Redmond decided to ask the Gormans to go for a ride with him. His wife said she was tired and remained home to care for their children, James Jr., 3, and Joan, 2.

Witnesses to the accident testified at the inquest that Redmond, driving east in 111th street, ignored a stop sign for Cicero avenue and crashed into the truck driven by John E. Thomas, 50, of Fairbury, Ill.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Children Spend Night Alone.

The Gormans have two children, Patricia, 12, and James, 10. After spending Sunday night alone they had gone to school yesterday morning, unaware of the accident.

Richard Nott, 23 years old, 7821 Paxton avenue, was killed yesterday morning when his automobile left U. S. highway 112, eight miles west of Coldwater, Mich., and turned over eight times before stopping in a cornfield 65 yards from the highway. He was a salesman for the Milton Bradley School Supply and Novelty company, for which his father, Harry W. Nott, is a branch manager here.

Mrs. Anna McNerney, 60 years old, 20 North Racine avenue, died last night in the County hospital of injuries received April 7 at Aberdeen and Madison streets when she was struck by a taxicab driven by Gilbert Ogle, 30 years old, 1250 Devon avenue.

Hardy Dunn, 45, of 6029 South Racine avenue, unemployed, died yesterday in the County hospital of injuries received April 15 when he was struck by an automobile of a hit and run driver at Cermak road and Dearborn street.

In THE TRIBUNE of Monday the name of Daniel Holdridge, 81 years old, 9314 Cregier avenue, who died Sunday of injuries received March 8 when he was struck by an automobile, was incorrectly given as John Holdring.

Martin Maynard, 61, of 1221 North Dearborn street, a WPA worker, was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by an automobile at North Shore and Ashland avenues. Thomas Casey, 21, of 6912 Lakewood avenue, driver of the car, was held for the inquest.

Samuel Mays, 65, colored, 4341 South Michigan avenue, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by William Smith, 27, also colored, as he was crossing the outer drive south of East 47th street.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 288 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. During this period 233 were killed and 4,492 injured within the Chicago city limits.

Wed Last August

Mrs. Charlotte L. Swanson, 21 years old, 7945 Drexel boulevard, a beauty parlor operator, was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court on the ground of cruelty from John A. Swanson, 47 years old, 733 Montrose avenue, owner of a beauty shop.

"I was the head of his shop when he proposed," Mrs. Swanson said. "He told me I wouldn't have to work. We were married last Aug. 1 and the next day he had me back curling hair. After that he beat and chocked me."

Mrs. Swanson said that Swanson had offered to rehire her after she obtained her divorce, but added that she "wasn't sure" whether she would accept the offer.

ROBINSON'S IRE AROUSED IN HOT SENATE DEBATE

Hastings' Thrusts Sting New Deal Leader.

I think it is important," he declared. "When the Democratic party complains about Smith they ought at the same time remember how they violated their own trust. They ought to realize the platform upon which they were elected, and they ought to know that any reasonable man, whether he be Al Smith or anybody else, is justified in leaving the New Deal when it refuses to live up to that kind of a platform.

"I say to the senator from Arkansas that the greatest disappointment of thousands of his friends in this country is due to the fact that he has swallowed the New Deal. He is not the Democrat that he was when he ran with Smith in 1928. He is not the Democrat he was when Roosevelt was elected in 1932. He followed the shirttail of the New Deal, believing it to be a Utopia for a more abundant life."

Roosevelt Pledge Recalled.

Hastings called attention to President Roosevelt's promise in asking the 4 billion 800 million appropriation that work undertaken "should be useful—not just for a day, or a year, but useful in the sense that it creates future new wealth for the nation." He recalled the summary punishment of Maj. Gen. Hagood because he criticized WPA "stage money," Robinson's subsequent defense of boondoggling and the demands of a dozen senators on both sides of the chamber for an honest investigation of the WPA.

A resolution of Senator James J. Davis [Rep., Pa.], for an investigation was reported favorably, but Robinson immediately packed the committee with two leading New Dealers, Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], and Alben W. Barkley [Dem., Ky.], Hastings said.

"So it is with the distinguished leader of the majority," the Delaware senator went on. "When he finds that he is about to lose the pot, he deliberately deals himself two aces. This is another illustration of what is meant by the New Deal."

Attacks Are Renewed.

Reviewing the New Deal attacks on the Liberty league, Hastings said that more than a majority of the executive committee of 23 was composed of Democrats, including: John W. Davis, the party's presidential nominee in 1924; Alfred E. Smith, the nominee in 1928; Joseph B. Ely, former governor of Massachusetts; one member only of the du Pont family, Irenee du Pont, a strong supporter of Roosevelt in 1932. John J. Raskob, the former chairman of the Democratic national committee, he described as a member of the league's advisory committee who contributed $375,000 to the party between September, 1928, and October, 1932.

Pierre S. du Pont, Hastings said, contributed $50,000 before and $25,000 after the Smith-Robinson campaign and $15,000 to the Roosevelt campaign.

"Mr. Farley made no complaint about the du Pont brothers and Mr. Raskob so long as they continued their large contributions to the Democratic party," Hastings asserted.

"He made no complaint about Mr. Irenee du Pont when he sent Mr. Farley a check for $5,000 just a month after Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated.

"And when did Mr. Shouse and Mr. Raskob become such a thorn in the flesh of the New Deal? When they refused to follow the New Deal into the morass of socialism. On July 2, 1932, just after Mr. Roosevelt had been nominated, he appeared before the Democratic convention in Chicago and had this to say: 'I hoped to get here while my old friend, John Raskob was presiding, I want to tell you all of the very splendid work that has been done for the party by the retiring chairman.'"

It was his conception three years ago to give the party a permanent, active headquarters in Washington. Mr. Raskob spoke to me at that time and we went over the plans. As you all know, my old friend, Jouett Shouse, was made chairman of the executive committee.

"'These gentlemen deserve the gratitude of the party.'"

Hastings said the Liberty league now had about 100,000 members and that, although a few were rich men, 99 per cent were "just plain, ordinary honest folks."

Losing Would Aid Country.

"Do not blame the Republican party for taking away from you those persons whom you have always claimed as your own," he declared. "This administration has lost them because it has violated its trust. Admit this as a fact; it will be good for your soul. Do not be afraid to give the public all the facts about the WPA, the AAA, the Florida canal, the Passamaquoddy project, the St. Louis $30,000,000 Jefferson memorial and all the other new fangled schemes to waste the people's money.

"Do not let Mr. Wallace frighten you by making you believe there is danger of the farmer's daughter being kidnaped.

"All these things may go along way in losing you the election but for the Democrats to lose means that the country will be greatly benefited and that ought to be some satisfaction to real patriots, like yourselves.

"Indeed many people think that unless Mr. Roosevelt is defeated, our constitution and our whole Democratic form of government will be gone before the end of another four years. Personally I doubt whether you can do that, but I do feel sure that you will not be able to find jobs for the 12,626,000 people now out of work, and more than that, I am afraid another four years of Roosevelt will mean that the federal treasury will be busted."

DENY TIBBETTS MUST GIVE UP APARTMENT BECAUSE OF SINGING

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—The report that Vincent Astor will not permit Lawrence Tibbett to renew his leases at 120 East End avenue because his singing annoys the neighbors appeared today to be exaggerated. Employés of Astor denied it, and so did Mrs. Tibbett, but she said she and her husband were thinking of moving to their farm at Wilton, Conn.

"It is just an echo of some trouble we had back in October, 1935," said Mrs. Tibbett, who appeared to be amused by the matter. "We had the library soundproofed, and so far as I know there have been no complaints from the neighbors. However, the acoustics in this otherwise lovely apartment house are very bad, and we are annoyed by the noise of distant radios ourselves."

Hoover Will Make Speech in Philadelphia May 18

Philadelphia, Pa., April 20.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover will speak in Philadelphia the night of May 18 under the auspices of the Republican women of Pennsylvania. Present plans call for Hoover to be the only speaker. While in the city Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Horace Lorimer.

KOEPKE ADMITS CHEATING AUNT, 60, OF SAVINGS

She Faints as He Tells of $11,000 Fraud.

Charles G. Koepke, debonair playboy, cowered yesterday when he faced his elderly aunt in the office of Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, and admitted using her life savings to keep up a front in night life places.

"O Charlie, Charlie, what have you done?" sobbed his aunt, Mrs. Anna Clemmens, 60 years old, of Tinley Park, when the 29 year old real estate broker was brought in to face her. "Think of the disgrace you have brought on the family."

Dougherty then asked Koepke what he had done with the $11,000 Mrs. Clemens intrusted to him for investment. Koepke averted his face. Then he mumbled:

"I spent that, too."

Koepke's Aunt Faints.

Mrs. Clemens stared as if unable to believe her ears, then fainted. Revived, she declared she would not have believed it "if Charlie hadn't told me to my face."

Mrs. Clemens and her husband, William, 68, had been living on funds represented as interest which Koepke supplied them, Dougherty said.

After Koepke's arrest last week Mrs. Clemmens became suspicious of the mortgages and she appeared at the state's attorney's office to confront her nephew with them. Although Koepke, who maintained offices at 77 West Washington street, has confessed appropriating $40,000 to $50,000 of his client's funds, yesterday's admission was the first he has made to issuing false mortgages, Dougherty said.

Spends Money on Front.

Most of the money, Koepke has confessed, was spent on cabaret parties and to maintain a pretense of prosperity while his business was becoming insolvent. During the day three other persons visited the state's attorney's office to file new complaints against the broker.

They are: Julius Maus, 1914 South Jefferson street, who lost $2,000 on two spurious mortgages; Mrs. Rikka Benson, 4112 Addison street, who charges Koepke sold her two worthless mortgages last January for $3,000, and Miss Eva Casey, colored, an Idlewood, Mich., school teacher, who said she had turned over a $1,500 mortgage to Koepke for collection but had failed to receive any money.

Prosecutor Dougherty disclosed yesterday that Koepke had changed his mind about wanting to plead guilty and "get it over with." The broker now wants several days to think it over, Dougherty said.

Charles of operating a confidence game against Koepke were continued yesterday in the Felony court until May 4. Unable to post a $25,000 bond, Koepke was returned to jail.

Desertion Charged

Hearing on the divorce bill of Mrs. Eva Sturm Langhagen, 4349 Lake Park avenue, against Gustave Langhagen of New York City, a curtain salesman, was set for next Monday by Judge Rudolph Desort in Superior court yesterday when Langhagen appeared in court and asked time to prepare a defense against his wife's suit. Mrs. Langhagen, formerly a wealthy beauty shop operator, alleges that her husband deserted her in 1933 after nine years of married life.

Langhagen told the court that he was forced to depend on the generosity of friends for money to come to Chicago. He said he set his wife up in business with his savings.

Mrs. Langhagen admitted that she once was wealthy, but stated she is now dependent upon her adult children.

INQUEST INTO HEWITT DEATH IS POSTPONED

While police carried on their search in Chicago yesterday for Jewel Corley [alias Cortez] the young woman believed to be involved in the slaying of Arthur J. Hewitt, 59 years old, retired Wheaton contractor, the inquest into Hewitt's death was continued to May 8.

Webb C. Hewitt, 30 years old, 1034 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park, a son of the dead man, testified at a short hearing in the county morgue that his family told him his father went to Chicago on a business errand last Wednesday. Hewitt's body was found early Saturday in an areaway between buildings at 3612-14 South Park way where it had apparently lain since Thursday.

Two men and another girl, held at the state's attorney's office, said the Corley girl, whom they knew as Jerry, told them she slew Hewitt by hitting him on the head with a ginger ale bottle early Thursday. The trio—Betty Honzik, George Richardson, a cab driver, and Clement Tichelaar, a baker—admitted they drove to Detroit early Friday with Jerry in the slain Hewitt's automobile. Detroit police also are hunting for the young woman.

Wandering Boy's Parents to Be Arraigned Today

Ernest and Lillian Temple, the father and stepmother of Ernest Temple Jr., 7 years old, who was found Sunday after he had been missing from his home at 3233 North Halsted street since early Friday morning, will be arraigned this morning in Domestic Relations court on a charge of contributing to the boy's delinquency. The child was ordered by his stepmother to "go with your father" after a family quarrel and he left the house clad only in underwear. Unable to find his father, he said he hid in a basement and had no food or water until Sunday afternoon when he knocked at the door of a home at 746 Belmont avenue.

DEATH LIST IN ARAB-JEWISH RIOTS TOTALS 19

Jaffa Jews Flee to Tel Aviv for Safety.

JERUSALEM, April 20.—(AP)—New Arab attacks on Jews at Jaffa and Tel Aviv increased the death list tonight to 19, the Palcor News agency reported, divided between 15 Jews and four Arabs. The disorders have been going on since last Wednesday.

The fresh riots sent Jews scurrying from Jaffa to the adjoining all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv where the refugees were camping in the streets and parks. Arabs were reported to have set fire to houses along the border of Tel Aviv.

The Jewish Telegraphic agency reported police efforts to restore normal communications between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv have met with failure. Two steamships, the Kosciuszko and the Jerusallemme, were forbidden to dock at Jaffa and ordered to proceed to Haifa.

"A late total of the victims of the two-day riots at Jaffa showed that with the five Jews killed during this morning's affray, a total of 15 Jews is dead, with four Arabs reported dead. The Jewish injured total is 63 and the Arab injured 20. A number of those injured received wounds which may lead to their death."

One Jew was killed by Arabs who fired upon him and his family when they were returning home after a shopping expedition. Three members of the family were injured.

Sir Arthur Wauchope, high commissioner of Palestine, issued an order authorizing police to put emergency defense regulations into effect. Ten Jews, killed in previous fights, were buried at services attended by thousands of mourners.

Chicagoan Stoned.

Ely Bramson, a tourist from Chicago, reported today a mob stoned his car, smashing the windshield and windows, during yesterday's disorders. He said he was driving through Tulkarm on the way to Nahalal, on a tour of the Emek valley of Palestine when a crowd of Arabs approached his automobile.

Several jumped on the running board and attempted to force the locked doors of the sedan, after they had hurled stones at the car, he stated. Bramson said the five persons who were with him huddled on the bottom of the car while he increased its speed and reached a point where he was given an armed guard by police.

by police. Bramson related that Isaac Knubowitz, one of the passengers, was injured in the head by a stone and was given first aid by a British constable.

Shout Against French.

French officers from Syria who were traveling through Palestine on a tour of inspection were stoned today as they passed through the Arab town of Jenin. A mob which surrounded the car shouted "down with France."

The Palestine Hebrew press, commenting on the racial clashes, said "national discipline must be maintained and provocationism must be ignored. The Jewish community regards the government as responsible for the restoration of the fullest tranquility."

NEXT PRESIDENT OF CUBA HERE ON WAY TO CAPITAL

Miguel Mariano Gomez, president-elect of Cuba, stopped in Chicago yesterday on his way to Washington where he will stay two days as a guest of President Roosevelt. Dr. Gomez said his visit is without political significance and that Cuba has a friendly attitude toward the United States. He asserted that his country has manifested no tendencies toward fascism.

With Dr. Gomez were his wife and three daughters, Nina, 17 years old, Grace, 15, and Margarita, 9, and an official party.

Gomez and his party spent the one day stopover before leaving last night for Washington, at the Drake hotel where they went after their arrival from Hollywood over the Santa Fe. They were met at the station by a delegation from the Cuban consulate, Noble Brandon Judah, former United States ambassador to Cuba, and R. N. Kimball of the Continental Bank and Trust company.

Dr. Gomez, who is 45 years old and has been twice mayor of Havana, will be inaugurated president next month.

NEW DEAL TAX BILL FINISHED; FACES BATTLE

Hope for 800 Millions a Year Revenue.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The administration's tax bill was finally drafted today after nearly two months of labor by the house ways and means committee. The measure's revenue yield remained a mystery, although the Democratic majority continued to express a hope that it will raise the 800 million dollars annually, which President Roosevelt demanded in his message to congress last March 3.

Conservative Democrats and the Republican minority immediately outlined a plan of battle against the bill, which will be introduced tomorrow. Debate, limited to sixteen hours, will start Thursday and the house leaders predicted passage by the end of the week.

A minority committee report on the measure also will be filed tomorrow, it was learned. This report will contain recommendations for saving nearly a billion dollars a year by cutting present government expenditures. Opponents of the measure will assert that these economies, if carried out, would do away with the necessity of new taxes at this time.

Expect White House Pressure.

While most of the members will look with longing upon the proposed alternative of saving money instead of passing new taxes, especially in an election year, it was agreed by both sides that pressure from the White House will result in approval of the tax bill by a sizeable majority.

The struggle over the tax bill on the floor of the house will be long and bitter, according to all indications, with a possibility that the measure will be amended materially before the final vote.

The tax bill and the new 1½ billion dollar relief appropriation asked by President Roosevelt are the two main obstacles to early adjournment of congress. Leaders predicted that passage of both without too much delay would permit senators and representatives to go home before June 1 to prepare for the Republican and Democratic conventions on June 9 and 23, respectively.

Copies of Bill Withheld.

The bill does not include the excise taxes on a variety of agricultural commodities recommended by the President for raising a major portion of the new revenue which he deemed necessary.

Formal copies of the bill were not available today. A digest of the provisions in the measure, which is a bulky document of 230 pages, follows:

The plan for taxing corporate earnings is the backbone of the measure. The rate is lowered in proportion to dividends paid out to share holders. Corporate earnings up to $10,000 would be taxed on a scale ranging from 1 to 29.7 per cent, and corporations earning more than $10,000 on a scale from 4 to 42½ per cent.

One of the mysterious phases of the measure, about which the committee members are reluctant to talk, is the possible "lag" in tax collections likely to result from delayed declaration in corporate dividends. Another provision, which seems likely to cut the bill's revenue, is a preferential 22½ per cent flat rate allowed under certain conditions on earnings used for debt payment.

An 85 per cent tax on refunding processing levies is probably the second most important part of the bill. It is estimated to raise 100 million dollars.

Other Features Enumerated.

Other provisions in the bill:

A special 15 per cent flat tax on earnings of banks and insurance companies, with a similar preferred rate for the same type of foreign corporations doing business in this country.

A 15 per cent rate on foreign corporations in receivership in the courts of this country.

A 15 per cent tax on American income to corporations which, not having offices in this country, still derive earnings from domestic sources.

A $35,000,000 refund from taxes imposed on floor stocks on hand when the agricultural adjustment act was invalidated.

A 22½ per cent tax on corporations under contractual obligations not to pay out dividends.

Reduction of the capital stock tax from $1.40 to 70 cents per $1,000 and the repeal of the law after June 30, and repeal of the excess profits tax after expiration of the present taxable year.

NYE GROUP URGES U. S. SET UP ITS OWN GUN PLANTS

Would Build Ships and All Munitions of War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The majority of the Nye munitions committee, in a report to the senate today, recommended government ownership of facilities for the construction of all warships for the navy, as well as gun forgings, projectiles and armor plate, and powder, rifles, pistols and machine guns required by the war department.

The report was signed by Senator Gerald P. Nye [Radical, N. D.], chairman of the committee; Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.], Senator Homer T. Bone [Radical, Dem., Wash.], and Senator James P. Pope [Dem., Idaho].

A minority report, signed by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], Senator Walter F. George Dem., Ga.], and Senator Warren Barbour [Rep., N. J.], agreed with the majority's findings of fact, but did not subscribe to the proposal for nationalization of the munitions industries.

Both Groups Fear "Pressure."

The majority contended that effective control over the foreign dealings of private munitions makers cannot be accomplished by regulation and that "pressure" brought by private business upon army and navy officials prevented them from being "masters in their own house." But the minority foresaw another form of "pressure" in the government ownership scheme.

"The minority believes," said the report, "that if large government plants are erected to provide these commodities, there will be inevitable local, political pressure to maintain these plants at full capacity production, regardless of actual defense needs, and the result will be to encourage armament rather than disarmaments.

"The minority believes that if all production be thus concentrated in government plants, furthermore, there will be no adequate corollary reliance, through private manufacture, in the event of a war emergency unless the nationalized facilities are maintained at a needlessly extravagant and dangerous rate during peace time. The minority believes, on the other hand, that unless these facilities are kept on a full time production basis during peace years, the unit cost of production will increase to a point which will create higher costs to the government than would be available through normal, private purchase."

Report on Conscription Promised.

Senator Nye told the senate that his committee would report shortly on the proposals for industrial mobilization and the universal draft in time of war, which would amount to conscription of all capital and man power.

Previous reports have dealt with the so-called "take the profits out of war" taxation scheme embodied in a bill passed by the house and pending in the senate finance committee. This measure, which would confiscate all earnings in excess of 3 per cent, is regarded as having little chance of enactment at the present session, although a number of the senate radicals are threatening a last minute filibuster.

In its "findings of fact," the committee mentioned specifically Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, General Motors, Babcock & Wilcox, etc., and assailed their methods of doing business.

Deplore "Form of Bribery."

"Almost without exception," the report states, "the American munitions companies investigated have at times resorted to such unusual approaches, questionable favors and commissions and methods og 'doing the needful' as to constitute, in effect, a form of bribery of foreign government officials or of their close friends in order to secure business.

"The committee finds such practices on the part of any munitions company, domestic or foreign, to be highly unethical, a discredit to American business and an unavoidable reflection upon those American governmental agencies which unwittingly have aided in the transactions so contaminated."

The report admitted, however, that the manufacture of munitions constituted but a small part of the business of the companies named and that they were "predominantly manufacturers of materials for civilian life."

SURVIVORS OF SHIP TRAGEDIES PROTEST LAKE CREWS ON OCEAN

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—The Morro Castle and Mohawk Survivors' association will ask Secretary of Commerce Roper tomorrow to create an impartial committee to investigate reports that American ships, due to the seamen's strike, are carrying inland crews untrained for ocean vessels.

A representative of the association will accompany a delegation of sixty seamen leaving for Washington by bus to confer with Mr. Roper and Secretary of Labor Perkins.

The delegation will present the seamen's demands and protest against charges, made by commerce department officials, of mutiny and sabotage in the American Merchant Marine.

Ruling Recommits Driver Free in Auto Damage Suit

The Appellate court yesterday ordered that Jacob Rosenberg, 40 years old, official of a liquor store at 179 West Monroe street, be returned to "debtor's row" in the county jail for nonpayment of a $3,500 judgment. The higher court reversed a County court ruling under which Rosenberg was released on filing an insolvent debtor's petition. The judgment, which included a malice count, was based on a Superior court jury's verdict awarding damages for injuries inflicted by Rosenberg's automobile upon Herman C. Ott, a plumber, in 1930.

LAST OCTOBER Lorillard put forth this sporting offer: Try a pack of Double-Mellow Old Golds. If they don't win you . . . mail back the remaining 10 cigarettes, and we'll pay you double for your trouble in trying them.

Of those who asked for Double-Money-Back checks, many returned those checks to Lorillard, stating that a second or third package of "Double-Mellows" won them completely.

But what about YOU? Have you had the thrill of Old Gold's prize crop tobaccos? That Double-Money-Back Offer is good to June 1, 1936.

WOODS FULL OF CANDIDATES FOR FRENCH CHAMBER

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, April 20.—A total of 4,807 candidates have inscribed their names for the election next Sunday in which 11,500,000 voters will cast ballots to elect the holders for 618 seats in the French chamber of deputies. This number of candidates constitutes a record, being nearly 1,000 more than the number presented in 1932.

This, perhaps, shows that, although the parliamentary régime is unpopular just now in France, being a deputy has not lost its attraction. In the Seine department alone, in which Paris is situated, there are 1,402 candidates, so the task of the elector in picking the right man for the right place is going to be extremely difficult.

It is being made also the more difficult because of the extreme vagueness of most of the party platforms and the evasion of the real issues by the majority of the candidates.

Expect Trouble Later.

Officially, satisfaction is being expressed that until now the electoral campaign has been almost unusually quiet and devoid of interest. This quiet is, however, interpreted by some observers as due more to the puzzlement of the elector than to any other cause, and there are some who predict that it presages trouble later on.

There is little doubt that the confusion being produced by the multiplicity of candidates and platforms and by the multiplicity of the issues and their avoidance does not promise easy days when finally the chamber is elected and must begin organizing itself and facing these issues.

What the elector is anxious about is peace and, in general, the future of a country where it is becoming more and more difficult to find opportunities for the young.

Loses Faith in League.

As regards peace, he is very puzzled. For the past eighteen years he has been told that it was only to be found in attachment to the league of nations and its development. Now he is being told that the league has failed to prevent an aggressive war by Italy and that its efforts to do so have been ill advised.

At the same time he is being taught that these same methods, which, it is asserted, have failed against Italy, should be applied against Germany because of the Rhineland occupation.

In these circumstances it is only natural that every method of preserving peace is being presented in the electoral manifestations. The Nationalists are calling for bigger and better armaments, the communists for a closer link with soviet Russia, the Radical Socialists for "collective security," and there are a few—very few—who are suggesting that, perhaps, the best start would be to try to negotiate a most friendly relationship with Germany and the keeping of British sympathy.

Second, the big issue, on which little is being said officially, but much said privately, is the future of France. Nearly every candidate is declaring officially that the franc must be maintained on its present gold standard.

Some weeks ago it was freely predicted that the elections would go strongly to the left and that the popular [leftist] front would come into power for as long as its component radical, Socialist, and communist elements could remain in agreement. But since the Rhineland reoccupation there has been an undoubted hesitation among the voters in the eastern provinces and the Paris district especially, and it seems not unlikely that the new chamber will fairly closely resemble the old one in its political formation.

Stretch of Sheridan Road Is Closed for Resurfacing

Trafic will be detoured from Sheridan road between Diversey parkway and Belmont avenue to the outer drive for six days, starting today, according to Otto K. Jelinek, trafic engineer of the park district. Works progress administration crews will start resurfacing this stretch of Sheridan today, Mr. Jelinek said. Columbus drive between Roosevelt road and Monroe street was converted into a two way street yesterday while the resurfacing of Lief Eriksen drive is being completed.

PROWLER ESCAPES IN GUN FIGHT.

A prowler, surprised early yesterday as he was attempting to break into a first floor apartment at 1215 North Bell avenue, fired five shots at Policeman Walter Thomas of the West North avenue station. The policeman returned the fire, but the gunman escaped. Neither was hit.

WENDEL KIDNAPER FEARS SINISTER FORCE IN JERSEY

Grand Jury Will Hear Hauptmann Plot.

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Martin Schlossman, 30, who has confessed taking part in the kidnaping of Paul H. Wendel in the Bruno Hauptmann investigation, was held without bail today at the request of his lawyer, Samuel Leibowitz, who told Magistrate John D. Mason in Brooklyn that he feared the "sinister influences which may come from another case."

"I think," the attorney said, "that the defendant would be better off under the protection of the department of corrections.

"This individual is not a criminal or of the criminal type. There are master minds behind him that should be brought to the bar of justice."

Expected to Aid State.

The fact that he shared with Assistant District Attorney Francis A. Madden the belief that Schlossman should not be freed on bail strengthened rumors that he will give state's evidence against other members of the kidnap ring whom police are seeking.

"We are doing everything we can to help the district attorney," Leibowitz told Magistrate Mason in the Coney Island court when his client appeared for arraignment.

At the same time District Attorney George F. X. Geoghan was denying to newspaper reporters that there "was a scintilla of evidence that points to Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey."

When asked if Ellis Parker, the New Jersey detective, had been implicated in Schlossman's confession, Geoghan replied:

"You asked me about Gov. Hoffman and I told you. I refuse to discuss anything in regard to Parker."

The arraignment, which ended with Schlossman being taken to jail until another hearing Wednesday, followed a conference of several hours in which Geoghan, Leibowitz and David T. Wilentz, New Jersey attorney general took part.

Earlier Schlossman had confessed that he was one of four men who kidnaped Wendel, former Trenton attorney, and held him prisoner until he signed a confession of the murder of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. Wendel said he was tortured into making the confession.

Geoghan disclosed that Schlossman was hired for the kidnaping and "received his expenses." He refused to say who paid him, or what the motive was, although both questions, it was understood, were answered in Schlossman's statement.

Murray Bleefeld and Harry Weiss were being sought by four New York detectives in Detroit. Geoghan said he expected investigation to show that "several others" were involved in the abduction of Wendel.

3 PHYSICIANS REPORT REST AND DIET WILL AID HEART CLOT CASES

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Three physicians tonight offered evidence before the New York County Medical society that coronary thrombosis, heart clot affliction, which strikes down many business and professional leaders, can in many cases be treated so as to prolong life.

Attacks of the disease hitherto had been regarded as almost invariably fatal, the medical information bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine said.

By giving the patient complete rest and a low calorie diet, Drs. Arthur M. Master, Harry L. Jiffe, and Simon Dack said in a joint presentation, the mortality rate "can be conspicuously reduced."

The physicians said that a study of 267 attacks had convinced them that "a first attack rarely is fatal and that the mortality of subsequent attacks is only moderate, if a régime of prolonged bed rest and limited diet is employed and the injudicious use of drugs . . . avoided."

PAINT ANALYSIS SAID TO INDICATE N. Y. RAPE KILLER

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—A report from Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, city toxicologist, which detectives hope will lead to a speedy solution of the murder of Nancy Evans Titterton, was delivered secretly today to Assistant Chief Inspector John A. Lyons, in charge of the investigation.

Mrs. Titterton, wife of a National Broadcasting executive, was raped and slain in her Beekman place apartment a week ago last Friday.

According to reports, the analysis of stains linked to the slaying amounted to a substantial narrowing of the circle of possible suspects, if it did not actually point to an individual.

Policeman's Broom Pries Howling Cat from Perch

For two hours early yesterday a large gray cat which had become wedged between the buildings at 1100 and 1102 Argyle street, kept residents awake with its howling. Finally Summerdale police were called and Policeman Thomas McGreevy pried the cat free with the aid of a brom. The cat fled, the policemen returned to their station, and the grateful residents went back to sleep.

FRANCONIA 1937 Around the WORLD CRUISE

Again, next January 7th, this liner that has won renown on all the seven seas, will set forth around the world . . . and this time, more than ever, she will have the world's most glamorous ports to choose from. For in 1936 the Franconia inaugurated the new "Both Hemispheres" route . . . combining the best features of the cruise that once was standard, with her own discoveries in the Southern Hemisphere.

In 1937 this combination will achieve greater perfection. New ports are added to the itinerary: Zamboanga, in the Zulu archipelago . . . Chemulpo, in Korea . . . Nagasaki, in Japan. Shore excursions will be even more elaborate . . . including, once again, that trio of world wonders which only the Franconia has offered in one cruise: Victoria Falls in Africa, Mount Everest as seen from Darjeeling, and the fabulous Angkor-Wat in Siam!

A unique itinerary! But best of all is the life you will lead in the Franconia, from January through May . . . served by deft British stewards, entertained by a staff who know every 'round-the-world mood, and serenely confident in the seamanship and sound management of the two oldest travel organizations on land and sea. Rates are only $1900 up, including shore excursions. Get full details from your local agent or CUNARD WHITE STAR LINE, 346 No. Michigan Ave., Chicago, or THOS. HOLD UP PLANS FOR CONVENTION OF STATE G. O. P.

Meeting of Old Central Committee Canceled.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

John H. Searing of Carbondale, chairman of the old Republican state central committee, notified committee members yesterday that he has cancelled the meeting which was called for next Thursday at Springfield.

The meeting was to have made arrangements for the Republican state convention to be held on May 1 in Peoria. Searing said that members of the new state committee elected last Tuesday might have their certifications of election in time to meet legally and make the convention arrangements.

"I hope to be able to call a meeting of the new committee before the convention," said Searing. "By law the new committee must meet within 30 days after the primary anyway. If it isn't possible to get the new committee together the committeemen elect and state nominees probably will be invited to meet with the old committee and help make the arrangements."

Horner Claims Challenged.

One of the functions of a state convention is to select delegates at large to the national nominating convention. In this connection Chicago election law experts were inclined to take issue with statements reported from Gov. Horner's party at French Lick, Ind., that the governor expected to control the Democratic state convention, which is to be held on May 1 in Springfield.

The Horner claims apparently were based on a belief that the 1934 primary vote would be the basis for the selection of delegates to the state convention. In 1934 the downstate Democratic vote was heavier than in Cook county, but last week the situation was reversed. It is last Tuesday's vote, according to the experts, that will prevail in choosing the state delegates, which would give control to the Chicago Democratic group.

Chicago Vote 1,199,605.

Completion by the Chicago election board of its official canvass of the total vote cast in Chicago at last week's primaries showed it to be 1,199,605, or 74.40 per cent of the registered vote. By parties the vote was as follows: Democratic, 852,169; Republican, 343,620; Third party, 475.

In the townships there were two changes from police returns. In Berwyn Frank J. Kasper was elected Democratic committeeman. In Stickney Michael Kapschull was elected Republican committeeman.

Canvass of the Republican votes in the 8th senatorial district disclosed yesterday that Nicholas M. Keller of Waukegan won out for one of the two Republican nominations for state representative over Charles H. Francis of Woodstock.

2 WOMEN MAKE MONEY TRIPLE, DISAPPEAR, TOO

A woman came to the home of Mrs. George Lohmann, 825 North Dearborn street, last Thursday and announced she was a fortune teller. The visitor asked if she could rent a room and Mrs. Lohmann agreed to accommodate her. The next day the fortune teller returned with a woman friend and Mrs. Lohmann engaged them in conversation about their trade.

They spoke of the mysterious forces of the spirits and told how prayers to the spirits properly spoken could make money triple itself. Interested, Mrs. Lohmann let the fortune tellers hold $5 while they invoked the spirits and it mysteriously became $15.

Mrs. Lohmann withdrew $703, her postal savings account, and gave it to her new friends for tripling with their magic ritual. During the ceremony one of the women excused herself and departed. Then the other woman insisted she had to pray in secret. When Mrs. Lohmann returned the woman was missing with the $703. Mr. and Mrs. Lohmann reported their loss last night to East Chicago avenue police.

Frederick Bohmann, 39 years old, 1161 Madison street, a motion picture operator, hanged himself in his home last night, supposedly in despondency over being divorced by his wife several months ago.

MAYOR M'NAIR CLEARED AFTER FINE REFUNDING

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 20.—[Special.]—Charges of embezzlement and nonfeasance against Mayor William N. McNair, on which he was confined in jail an hour Saturday, were dismissed today by Judge Michael M. Musmanno.

The charges had been brought in behalf of a man who obtained a court order for a refund of a $100 fine assessed by a magistrate for "numbers" writing. The action against the mayor was instituted under a state law enacted in 1860 which provides for a prison term and a fine for failure to comply with a court order to return monies.

The dismissal order came today after the mayor smilingly signed for the refund upon the advice of the judge. It was the mayor's refusal to sign the order Saturday which led to his arrest. Judge Musmanno assured McNair he would assume no personal responsibility by signing.

The mayor acted as his own attorney at the court session which frequently was interrupted by laughter as McNair, in high spirits, accompanied his arguments with gestures and occasional humorous remarks.

U. S. TO CONTINUE ARMS CUT DRIVE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Against Increase Unless Forced, D. A. R. Told.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—(AP)—In a message to the Daughters of the American Revolution President Roosevelt asserted tonight that the United States would continue to press for an international arms reduction agreement and would not increase armaments unless forced to by other nations.

Discussing an "adequate national defense," the President said the question of what was adequate was constantly changing with new international situations.

"If this were a disarming world," Mr. Roosevelt said, it is obvious that our needs would be proportionately decreasing. I regret that today this is not that kind of a world. I regret it deeply.

Two Elements in Policy.

"But here we confront the question of disarmament. On that issue our policy is clear. That policy has two elements in it: First, we propose to press, continually, for a limitation of armament by international agreement. Second, failing to get that, we will make no increase of our own armament unless other powers, by increasing their armament, make increase by us necessary to our national safety.

"If progress in armament limitation has been slow, progress in other areas has been rapid. We have stated the principle of the good neighbor as the standard for the conduct of our foreign policy. We have begun the practice of that principle.

"We have a disinterested, consistent and successful foreign policy. In it we give no thought to a war of aggression on the part of the United States. We stand firmly by our solemn treaty obligation renouncing war as an instrument of national policy."

Forced to Cancel Address.

The President sent his letter to Mrs. William A. Becker, president general, after he had been forced to cancel his scheduled address because of the death of his secretary, Louis McHenery Howe.

HANGS SELF IN CICERO.

John Lang, 54 years old, 4807 West 25th street, Cicero, hanged himself yesterday in the bathroom of his home. Police learned he was in frail health.

ESMERALDA TOO TALL FOR HOLLAND TUNNEL, BUT THERE'S WAY OUT

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Perhaps it was due to an oversight by the engineers who designed the Holland tunnel, but at any rate Esmeralda, a circus giraffe, just couldn't be squeezed through today. Esmeralda was on a truck and the driver realized the grave danger of decapitation just in time.

Some one suggested slipping Esmerelda in sideways, but the truck wasn't large enough to hold her length. The problem was heatedly debated for some time.

"What about the George Washington bridge?" said a circus director.

"You mean drive all the way up to the George Washington bridge and then drive all the way down to Madison Square Garden?"

"Why not?"

To that there was no answer.

MAE VAN WORMER AND PARKE BROWN WED TOMORROW

Mrs. Mae Van Wormer of Springfield, Ill., and Parke Brown, a political reporter on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be married at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Drake hotel. The private ceremony will be conducted by the Rev. Fred Eastman of the Chicago Theological seminary.

Mr. Brown obtained the marriage license yesterday at the county building. He and Mrs. Van Wormer met several years ago at Springfield while he was covering a session of the state legislature. They plan to take a three weeks' wedding trip by automobile.

The Beer's the Thing!

Now you can get genuine Miller Beer in CANS as well as streamlined bottles . . . .

KEGLINED

AFTER all, it's good beer you want. The best beer obtainable, regardless of the package you buy it in. This means good old-fashioned, unhurried and undoctored beer. Beer that needs no hypodermic! Beer that is totally free of foreign, artificial ingredients. And beer, that by reason of its simple, natural purity, is full-fraught with the splendid virtues that nature bestows on honest beer. Honest beer is made of malt, hops, yeast and good pure water. It is brewed in the slow, gentle, thoughtful way. You have to know how, of course. More than 80 years of quality leadership proves that we do.

If convenience suggests the can, then demand Miller Select Beer. (Miller cans are made by the American Can Company and are trademarked Keglined.)

If the occasion deserves a distinguished package, insist on Miller High Life Beer in the new ultra-smart Streamlined bottle.

BACK ELEVATED HIGHWAYS FOR CHICAGO AREA

Rockford Group Joins in State Movement.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., April 20.—[Special.]—This manufacturing and agricultural center of 85,000 population, 90 miles from the loop, today joined the state-wide movement for elevated highway construction in Chicago. At a luncheon called by the Chicago Motor club, representative citizens and public officials unanimously adopted a resolution directed to the mayor and council of Chicago and to the governor and general assembly of Illinois urging such construction.

State Representative David Hunter, farmer of this county, who was chairman of the house roads and bridges committee from 1925 to 1931, told the group that all requisite legislation for elevated highway construction was passed by the 1933 general assembly.

Urged by Commission.

The enactment was on recommendation of a bipartisan and civic commission appointed in 1931 by Gov. Louis Emmerson to study the state's future trafic needs. Mr. Hunter was chairman of this commission.

"An elevated highway system is a certain eventuality," said the legislator. "It is up to us to bring about its prompt realization.

"Chicago is receiving and will continue to receive millions of dollars annually for road building from the city's 1 cent of the gasoline tax, from Cook county's 1 cent, and from a portion of the state's 1 cent. Unless a major portion of this revenue is allocated to elevated highway building the money will be frittered away upon purely local projects with no improvement of city-wide and state-wide benefit to motor transportation."

Mayor Urges Project.

Mayor C. H. Bloom said that he felt there was no doubt but what all the residents of Rockford favored an elevated highway construction in Chicago, needed as a terminal facility for the U. S. 20 interurban automobile connection.

"I have driven the elevated highways in New York," said the mayor, "and can appreciate how such construction in Chicago would benefit the metropolitan area and northern Illinois."

Dr. A. B. Culhane, receiver for two Rockford banks and formerly active in Democratic politics, and Attorney Frank E. Maynard gave brief talks promising wholehearted indorsement of the project from this section of Illinois.

Leaders at Meeting.

Others at the meeting included Superintendent of Schools W. W. Ankenbrandt, A. M. Doran, the Rev. W. C. Rutherford, Dr. E. H. Weld, Guy R. Smith, B. A. Peterson, J. N. Hanson, J. R. Anderson, C. W. Holmquist, S. E. Rice, D. J. Jarrett, and R. N. Woods.

Within the last few weeks the Chicago Motor club has held similar meetings resulting in similar elevated highway indorsements from the Fox river valley cities, from Joliet and from De Kalb.

200 WORK ON REVISION OF CITY TEXT BOOKS; LIST DUE IN 2 MONTHS

Revision of the board of education's 4 year old textbook list, used in purchasing 400,000 public school books annually, will be completed within two months, according to Don C. Rogers, building survey director. Two hundred principals, teachers, and other educators, divided into committees of less than ten, have been studying new books for more than a year.

William G. Brink, professor of education at Northwestern university and adviser to the textbook committees, has devised a set of rules used in judging the merits of educational publications.

"In previous years the names of textbook committees were kept secret so that publishers could not influence their judgments," Mr. Rogers said. "But since publishers managed to learn the names we have spared them the trouble and this year we've sent them the information."

The textbook appropriation in the 1936 budget is nearly $1,000,000.

TEXAS OBSERVES 100TH YEAR OF HOUSTON BATTLE

Houston, Tex., April 20.—(AP)—Campfires burned tonight on historic San Jacinto battleground, and Houston was jammed with visitors who will trek there tomorrow for a centennial observance of the battle of Texas' war of independence from Mexico.

The crowning event of tomorrow's ceremonies will be a military mass which has attracted Catholic leaders from all parts of the nation.

Four archbishops, 25 bishops and hundreds of priests and monsignori are expected to participate. Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel of New Orleans will celebrate the mass and Bishop John J. Cantwell of Los Angeles will deliver the sermon.

Other dignitaries expected include Bishops B. H. Mahoney of Sioux Falls, S. D.; Francis M. Kelly of Winona, Minn.; Edmund Heelan of Sioux City, Ia.; Henry Althoff of Belleville, Ill., and William O'Brien of Chicago.

All Texas will pause to recall the valor of Sam Houston and his 900 soldiers who wrested this state from Mexican rule.

Bishop Stewart to Speak to Jews and Christians

Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago will address the Chicago Round Table of the Conference of Jews and Christians this noon at Mandel Brothers' restaurant. His subject will be "The Temper of Tolerance." Homer J. Buckley, a member of the executive committee of the round table, will preside.

CONTINUE DRIVE TO KEEP NEEDY FROM COLORADO

Threaten to Put Patrol on Eastern Border.

Trinidad, Colo., April 20.—(AP)—Nineteen Spanish-Americans were detained in Colorado tonight while Gov. Ed C. Johnson considered extending his martial law border patrol to the eastern boundary in his determination to keep destitute workers out of the state.

The men held were apprehended near Monument, Colo., more than 100 miles inside the state border when National Guardsmen patroled a mile wide strip across the 360 miles of the Colorado-New Mexico border. Guardsmen were ordered to escort them out of the state. In Denver another smaller group was ordered to leave.

Deny Governor's Charges.

Both groups, the governor said, come under his classification of "destitue workers." He believed the nineteen held at Monument to be sugar beet workers, the type of labor he wishes particularly to keep out of the state.

Sugar beet and railroad officials denied the governor's charge they were attempting to import workers.

Five National Guard camps were set up during the day along the Colorado and New Mexico border on strategic highways leading from New Mexico, the Oklahoma panhandle and Utah.

Guardsmen Stop Travelers.

The guardsmen stopped buses, local trains, automobiles and trucks. Only persons able to exhibit evidence of "financial stability" were permitted to enter.

The governor, saying he had received reports that an influx of workers might occur from Kansas, threatened to "proclaim martial law on the east border and send troops there if necessary."

SENTENCED TO CLEAN FIRE ENGINE; CHIEF CHASES THEM AWAY

Haverstraw, N. Y., April 20.—[Special.]—Police Judge James N. Brems and Fire Chief Charles M. Fales are giving each other the run-around here today.

Both of them appear to be having a high time, but the three men caught in the center of the run-around are getting pretty thoroughly confused.

Judge Brems has sentenced Firemen George Livsey Jr., Richard Behrens, and Joseph Grab to a fortnightly cleaning of the relief hose company's fire engine for six months, in lieu of a jail sentence for turning in a false alarm.

Chief Fales has suspended the three men for sixty days for the same offense, and Chief Fales says they won't be permitted to touch the apparatus while under suspension.

If the men don't clean the engine Judge Brems will send them to jail for sixty days. If they do the chief will consider firing them.

They have until Saturday. It's quite a problem.

Couple, Both 78, Divorced After 8 Years Together

Mrs. Mary Hermanek, 78 years old, 1500 South Kominsky avenue, won a divorce on a charge of desertion yesterday before Judge Rudolph F. Desort of the Superior court from James Hermanek, also 78. They were married in 1926 and separated in June, 1934. Hermanek, who did not contest the divorce, told the court: "I met her a couple of days before Christmas and, due to the Christmas spirit we got married."

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Sluggish bowels cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and relief from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take one or two Olive Tablets at bedtime. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color, 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

[ADVERTISMENT]

WHEN BLADDER IRRITATION WAKES YOU UP

Strike at the cause. It's nature's way of saying "Danger Ahead." Make this 25c test. Use Buchu leaves, juniper oil, etc., to flush out excess acids and impurities. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. You are bound to feel better after this flushing and you get your regular sleep. Get buchu, juniper oil, etc., in little green tablets called Bukets. In four days if not pleased, your druggist will refund your 25c. Walgreen Drug Stores.

ELECTROLUX SIMPLY can't MAKE A NOISE!

IT'S BASICALLY DIFFERENT! This simplified diagram shows why Electrolux needs no moving parts. Remember—parts that do not move cannot wear. This means more years of service . . . more savings on depreciation.

It stays silent because its operating method is basically different . . . and for the same reason it offers more years of satisfactory service

IF YOU think automatic refrigerators are all pretty much alike—listen to Electrolux! Your own ears will tell you that it is entirely different . . . it's permanently silent. And this silence is evidence of an even more important difference—a basic difference in its operating method.

There are no moving parts in Electrolux. No friction. No noise. No grinding wear. A tiny gas flame does all the work. It circulates a simple refrigerant which, by being alternately cooled and heated, freezes ice and maintains constant cold.

This method takes the complication out of automatic refrigeration—offers you the benefit of real simplicity . . . savings you can count in dollars and cents. You save on depreciation, because there are no moving parts to wear . . . save on food bills, because Electrolux gives perfect food protection at all times . . . save on running cost, because the gas you use amounts to only a few pennies each day.

How important are these savings? Important enough, owners tell us, to actually pay for your new Electrolux over a reasonable period. Important enough to give you all the pleasure of truly modern refrigeration at less than the cost of using an old-type refrigerator.

But see for yourself. Give Electrolux a good "once over" at your own gas company or any of the neighborhood stores listed below. This refrigerator has increased amazingly in popularity every season . . . it must have something to offer that others cannot match. HITLER AT FORTY-SEVEN.

Stanley Baldwin, the British prime minister, was not unaware that his remarks to his Worcestershire constituents regarding dictatorships in general and Dictator Hitler in particular were in the way of being a birthday greeting to the present controler of German destinies. Mr. Baldwin is convinced that German destinies will vitally affect, for good or bad, much of the map of Europe in the near future.

The diplomat who said that Hitler was Austria's revenge for Sadowa would have thought his remark confirmed by the demonstrations of the Germans in honor of the 47th anniversary of the birth of the ex-Austrian soldier who so strangely made himself master of so strangely a remade German state.

Although Mussolini's African adventure has been a dangerous shaking of the peace structure, and although Russia's part in Spanish disorders reveals a fresh approach to world revolution, Hitler is the cause of most of the pessimism in European statesmanship. Nineteen hundred and fourteen proved that willful monarchs are willing to sacrifice the security of the world, but the dictatorships which have followed the overthrow of the crowns have proved even less amenable to considerations which must prevail if peace is to be preserved.

After all, a lazy king will fit in the frame of royalty. He can be without acting. And frequently a lazy king has the happiest subjects. A dictator who has seized power is a restless man. He didn't come into authority merely by being but by acting, and he has a feeling that his security depends on keeping things in violent motion. With him it is an instance of busy hands finding mischief to do. The essence of dictatorship is that it shall dictate. It drives people to their domestic tasks and it seeks outlets for activity abroad.

When restlessness animates an autocrat the people under him must be herded into conformity all along the line. They must be made to think and act in a disciplined unison, deriving their ideas from the dictator and obeying his commands. The compulsion reaches from the cradle to the grave and the autocrat knows that he can make the masses march at his will.

One protection which nations have in their efforts to preserve peace can be found in political opposition in the various countries where free opinion is allowed to exist. A government unanswerable to any dissenting political opinion and action presents dangers to its neighbors which would not be offered by a country in which liberty had been preserved. Stanley Baldwin knows that if he were to do a rash thing, a stubborn, willful thing, he would be held to answer not only by his political opponents but by men in his own party. He must give an account to an electorate that has not been muzzled and which does not fear the concentration camp or the secret agents. That was well illustrated when Sir Samuel Hoare, the former foreign minister, came to an agreement with Laval of France regarding Ethiopia and the British public didn't like it.

Many Italians may not like the African adventure of their present Cæsar, but he has public opinion repressed and nothing in Italian sentiment can be made effective against him. Mr. Baldwin does not despair of Hitler, although he is afraid of dictatorships and knows well what miseries they can bring, not to one but to many peoples.

Hitler is more than a bit of a mystery. He is also a bit of a mystic. If he could reach a place where he might think that the German people did not require further pushing out in assertion of their national pride he might be willing to put his fist in his pocket and keep it there. He has achieved the wildest ambition any man could have harbored within his being. He controls the fate of a great nation. He may shape the destiny of Europe. From the obscurity of a beer hall conspiracy, a comedy in its beginning, he has emerged to receive the warlike salutes of Europe's potentially greatest military power.

IT MUST BE CRICKET.

"Boy who is promising cricketer can be received Public School next term at specially reduced fees of £69 per annum. Write Box S. 533, The Times, E. C. 4."

The matter is respectfully submitted for appropriate action to the Carnegie Foundation, the Big Ten, and the North Central association. If school athletes can be recruited by means of public advertisment in England, where amateurism was invented and professionals are distinguished from gentlemen, maybe the practice isn't as sinful as has been pretended.

MEASURING THE YARDSTICK.

The Midwest Power Engineering conference is presenting a program in Chicago tomorrow which should be of greater interest to the generality of taxpayers than to the engineers themselves. In the afternoon Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of TVA, will speak on the government's power program, presumably to defend it. In the evening Frank Fowle, president of the Western Society of Engineers, will speak on private power development, presumably to defend it.

So far as the engineers are concerned, most of them have already made up their minds about the government's program. They know it is economically unsound to develop most of the sites chosen. Few of the engineers can find real merit in any of the schemes. It is a striking fact that, although the government has hired hundreds of engineers to design and build its dams and power plants, these men with few exceptions have made no effort to defend the projects upon which they are working. They will build dams which will hold water, but they will not offer arguments which will not hold water. At that kind of self-stultification they draw the line.

The army engineers who planned the Passamaquoddy tidal power system, for example, are quite willing to demonstrate that their works will produce power, but they cannot show that the contemplated expenditure was by any stretch of the estimates a justified one. The plant was to cost upwards of 30 million dollars. Some estimates ran close to 40 millions. A steam plant which would produce as much power 24 hours a day, 365 days in the year [in contrast to the intermittent supply from the tides], would cost considerably less than 5 million dollars. The cost of operation of the steam plant might be somewhat higher, but the difference in capital cost is far too great to close the gap. Above all, there was no need for either a steam plant or a water power plant at the site. No market is available for the power to be produced and, as far ahead as any one can see, there will be no such market. The refusal of congress to authorize any more expenditures on 'Quoddy irritated the brain trust, but was in line with an almost universal engineering judgment of the worth of the project.

Citizens generally have shown a certain reluctance to believe that their government could embark upon schemes so fantastically and fanatically unsound. A good many taxpayers seem disposed to think that the arguments against the projects have been exaggerated for political effect. It is precisely in this connection that the engineers' meeting can have its principal value. If the discussion of the papers is carried on by men who have no axes to grind the public should be able to learn a good deal about the merits and defects of the program as they appear to the minds of men technically competent to deal with the questions involved.

BAILING OUT THE FEDERAL BARGE.

Annual reports of corporations generally can be divided into two classes—encouraging and discouraging, optimistic or pessimistic—but the annual statement of the Inland Waterways corporation, otherwise the Federal Barge Lines, is neither. It is entertaining.

After perusing the expected statement of "Farley Profits" the reader pauses at paragraph 3, which reads, "On Jan. 1, 1935, a drastic reorganization through consolidation of departments, reduction of personnel, etc., effected a very large reduction in overhead, a great increase in efficiency and corresponding satisfactory increase in revenue."

Passing the frank admissions of previous waste and inefficiency, the reduction in personnel excites attention. The barge line was created to show that transportation by water is much cheaper than by rail. The railroads are forbidden by the Emergency Railway law to reduce personnel below certain levels, and even now congressional committees are considering further legislation that will require the railways to retain present employés on their pay rolls when "drastic reorganizations through consolidation" reduce employment.

The Federal Barge Lines are going to show results in black figures even if they are obliged to violate every New Deal reëmployment policy in addition to all bookkeeping principles.

Editorial of the Day

LIBERTY FOR SALE AT A SMALL, VERY SMALL, PRICE.
[Logan, Ia., Observer.]

Some member of the Roosevelt New Deal party [we just can't call them Democrats] understand what it is all about. They appear to know the reason for the "rain of checks" that has gently fallen, and will continue to fall, over the farm belt. They understand the inspiration for the showers, seem agreeable to give what is required in return, and like their bargain.

At the recent Iowa Democratic state convention at Des Moines the delegates were given a theme song. We presume they sang it. The tune is "Happy Days Are Here Again," and this is the chorus.

Personal liberty we must not wreck,
Rugged individuals we are, by heck!
But we'll trade it all for a corn-hog check;
Election days are here again.

Frankness in any circumstance is to be commended and surely this is sufficiently frank:

The personal liberty upon which this nation was founded, the rugged individualism that made it great, the God granted, though hard won, right to think, talk, vote, live and farm as the individual thought best is for barter, exchange, sale.

For that we are to accept a dictator at Washington. For that we'll obey orders and wait for commands from a burocrat. For that we'll sign away our rights, our liberties, our freedom, our franchise. For a "corn-hog check" in some guise we are to line up at the sacrificial altar, bow to regimentation, bend the knee to the high priest of the exchequer, stand in line for our loaf of bread and extend our hands for the chains of a dictatorship.

The awful price that some day will be paid for it.

QUITE A JUMP.

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

DOGGONE! The Democratic convention is going to be such a cut and dried affair and the only comic relief the thing ever offered was for Al Smith to get up and take a walk. Well, since he isn't going to do it there is no hope for any excitement down in Philadelphia when the Democrats meet but for Mr. Garner, the more or less w. k. Vice President, to do a soft-shoe dance or for Mr. Roosevelt to lead out a hundred miscellaneous boondogglers to do their stuff.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION at least offers the element of surprise. And a surprise is always exciting. Do you older men and women who lived in small towns remember away back to the days when you walked into your house and all of a sudden a lot of your neighbors swarmed out at you and clapped their hands and shouted "Surprise! Surprise!" and handed you a silver pickle dish or a new bicycle and then led you to a table lit by many candles on which were spread all sorts of cold chicken and jelly and cake and cookies and pies? A surprise party was a wonderful and a never to be forgotten event. Bet you remember those surprise parties yet. Well, the Republican convention is going to be just like that. Nobody knows what's going to happen. But the Democratic convention—shucks! right now it looks as though it is going to be as spectacular and interesting as a quilting bee out at old Aunt Sallie's.

IN THE ZOO.

His hauteur will not die,
Resentful-staring,
Scornful-flaring
Hotly in the eye.
While muscles strain
Behind these bars of iron,
Daily in disdain
Stalks the captive lion.

A tousled blear-eyed chimpanzee,
Obviously more
Puzzled by humanity,
Peers through the grated door,
Yawning, grinning, blinking
At our inanity,
Forehead-furrowed, thinking,
"What fools these mortals be."

From the leafless bough of a stunted tree
An eagle looks to the sun,
This symbol of our liberty,
Wings clipped, a crippled one.

No sound escapes the tight-closed beak,
Only a gleam in the eyes
Straining for sight of a mountain peak,
An aerie close to the skies.

Day in, day out, on a stunted tree,
He remembers wind and the rain
Over a world of space where he Never may fly again.

LOGAN KEAN.

A STUDENT at Northwestern was arrested Sunday because he was found with the street sign broken off at Jackson and Central streets. He was competing for a prize offered by Alpha Omicron Pi sorority which required not only the street sign, but a pickle exactly three and one-quarter inches long, a marriage license, two used airplane tickets, three hairs from a horse's tail, and two large left shoes. And yet we sometimes thoughtlessly ask, "Does a college education educate?" And just think of the knowledge of the sciences, of languages, of physics, of mathematics, and history, to say nothing of civics and economics required to break off a street sign and collect a pickle exactly three and one-quarter inches long, a marriage license, two used airplane tickets, three hairs from a horse's tail, and two large left shoes. College fraternities and sororities give me a pain in the neck.

AND BY THE SAME token I know a college co-ed graduate, cum laude, who studied two years for her Master of Arts degree and who is now working for her Doctor of Philosophy degree, who can talk of nothing but boys, clothes, and the movies. Does a college education, educate? I wonder.

AND I KNOW a man who never went to anything but country schools when he was a small boy and never got beyond the rudiments of readin', writing, and arithmetic, who is now the head of one of the biggest corporations in America with a salary of a hundred thousand dollars a year. If anybody had sent him out when he was eighteen or twenty years old to break off a sign post and get three hairs out of a horse's tail and all the rest of those things he would simply have said: "Aw, go wash your dirty face."

CIII.

Stable as wind and water, still as storm
That whips the trees in arcs against the sky,
This love to your inquiet heart is warm
As fire on hearth, calm as a lullaby.
Where giants go and the earth shakes and trembles
A lighter tread would be unknown, unheard;
This is no interlude where love dissembles
This is no season of sun-tattered showers,
Up mace! and harry, conquer, be content:

THE FATIGUE OF REPETITION.

ALMOST every one is familiar with the symptom of fatigue and it is probably the most common complaint which patients present to their physicians. It is described as lack of energy, lassitude, or even complete exhaustion.

Naturally, there are many disease conditions in which the symptom is typical, for example, tuberculosis, cancer, anemia, diabetes, etc. None of these states, however, explains the vast number of instances in which "that tired feeling" dominates the situation.

Fatigue, as a rule, is not the result of overwork. Physical effort, even of excessive degree, rarely if ever is responsible for a breakdown. One can, of course, operate a figurative treadmill until muscles refuse to function, until lactic acid and other waste products accumulate in the tissues and exhibit their effects as nerve poisons.

If exhaustion is complained of only occasionally it is probably without significance. On the other hand, if the symptom appears with any reasonable degree of frequency, it must not be ignored. The slow absorption of pus from a focus of infection may undermine reserve and destroy the most formidable physique. If infected areas exist they should be removed.

In the largest number of cases, however, fatigue will be found to be due not so much to the absorption of toxins as to the mental reactions of the patient who has exhausted his stores of nervous reserve through fussing about himself or his work. The patient has established a vicious cycle that may have had its beginning in dislike for his job. As a result, he did his work less well; then came criticism from his immediate superior which added to his symptoms. He started and left work tired.

But few of us can uninterruptedly pursue a given task for any great length of time. We instinctively break the trend of almost any procedure. In fact, many observers believe that it is unnatural and unwise to perform a single maneuver without change. Individuals differ in this respect. In a room full of workers some will seek a drink of water almost every hour; others less often. A bit of conversation or a visit to the foreman's office is an effort to vary the mental weariness of monotony.

Measurements of work output of employés undertaken by industrial concerns show wide variations. The more routine the tasks, the less efficient the performance. Employers have learned the advantage of breathing spells. In one industry employing a large number of women on an unusually monotonous type of work, intervals of rest were allowed and a surprising number of the workers occupied themselves during this period with knitting. At the end of the recess, activity was resumed with greater zest and increased accuracy and productivity.

Most of us recognize the mental growth that comes when a task demands coordination of both body and mind. A dull, lethargic, "fed-up" office worker is sometimes transformed into an alert, forceful salesman by assignment to an outside occupation with its constant change of scene and the innumerable contacts with different sorts of people.

Every one desires to engage in something creative. The sense of importance of the worker's particular part in any procedure will dispel fatigue. On the other hand, if he comes to feel that his efforts are not worth while, that a machine could do what his prideful skill is accomplishing, incentive is lost and with it comes a feeling of exhaustion.

The joy of accomplishing something may be observed by watching children at play. If left to their own devices they will attack a game with a great burst of energy and enthusiasm and as soon as fatigue becomes evident they will abandon the first type of play and proceed to another. Contrast this with assigned play that must be done and fatigue enters the picture quickly.

Of course the factors of environment play an important rôle, such as ventilation, humidity, air movements, and freedom from noise.

LOST LETTERS.

Chicago, April 10.—In last Saturday's paper I read an article that interested me more than a little bit. I am referring to "Lost Letters," which was sent in by "H. C."

We have been suffering similar losses for some time, especially since the middle of last summer, and certainly something should be done about it. I am myself a small mail order dealer, and if we should have continued repetitions of these mail losses it would be impossible to stay in business. The mail order dealer is one of the largest supporters of the postal service, and his complaints certainly should demand respect and attention.

I wouldn't directly accuse officials as was done in the other article, but I do believe that the postal department should be entirely out of politics and should be efficiently and carefully conducted. Enough of our mail losses have occurred through the Chicago postoffice to convince me that a cleanup in our local organization wouldn't be amiss.

I wonder if other mail order houses have been having the same experience. It is only through columns like this that such things can be brought to light.

REPLY TO DR. JABERS.

Chicago, April 14.—To eliminate any misunderstanding relative to the hours of duty of a fireman, and to inform B. E. Jabers, whose letter appeared in these columns, be advised that prior to the present system of relief, firemen worked an average of 84 hours every week, working every day, 8 hours one day and 16 hours the next, with no time off except such time as is granted annually for furloughs. Under the new setup, about which he so sarcastically complains, firemen shall work a period of two weeks, actually working 168 hours, and shall be granted 24 hours "off." Think of that when you are thinking of labor's trend toward a 40 hour week.

Jabers complained that it would necessitate an 8 day week to give firemen a day off every two weeks. Of course, he was just belittling and we'll rise above that sort of stuff, but remember, when the chief fire marshal radioed the men who were off during the stockyards conflagration, every man who was able and heard the call responded and worked. Your splendid paper termed us the world's most competent fire department; so help us over the rough spots that fellows like Jabers would put us in.

WE HAD THEM ONCE.

Chicago, April 15.—Ho-hum! Pardon the yawn, folks, but it is Wednesday morning and the election results are still coming in. If we had automatic voting machines the result would have been known approximately one hour after the polls closed. There would not be the expense of printing ballots and fewer people would be needed to man the polls. New York has them, also Buffalo, San Francisco, Indianapolis, and several other large cities.

ALBERT L. KREUTZ.

HONORABLE MERCHANTS.

Chicago, April 16.—I direct your attention to your editorial of April 14, "The Claims Racket."

Might I ask you to read this editorial from the point of view not of the newspaper man but of the general public, and also of a member of the wholesale fresh fruit and vegetable distributive industry, to which the editorial refers? That the editorial is accepted as an indictment of the entire industry and those engaged in it is evidenced by the frequency with which the matter has been brought to my attention in the short time since the editorial was printed.

I think you will agree that the inference to be drawn from the editorial is that the members of the industry generally are engaged in the racket which the writer of the article has invented. We cannot but feel that a grave and serious injustice has been done to one of the most important and essential industries existing. We hold no brief for violators of any law, but we do submit that there is no industry, no profession, and no occupation which exhibits and maintains a higher standard of integrity than this industry of wholesale perishable food distribution.

We are not raising a question as to the guilt or innocence of the parties mentioned in the editorial, that being a matter for the courts finally to determine. We might say, though, that the issue has not as yet been finally determined.

Consciously or unconsciously this editorial has served to bring the industry into disrepute and we cannot but feel that THE TRIBUNE management should take such steps as, to it, would appear wise and proper to offset the wrong which has been committed through this editorial.

Secretary, the Western Fruit Jobbers' association.

THE BLEACHERS.

Chicago, April 14.—The bleacher element should be given greater consideration at Comiskey park. Fifty cents is still real money to a good many people. The bleacher entrance is in a muddy alley and after the game the bleacherites are herded out through one narrow gate. There are plenty of additional gates, but for some reason they are kept tight shut. At the Cub-Sox game last Sunday it took thirty minutes to empty the bleachers, whereas it could have been done in ten minutes.

JAMES M. BECK.

University, Va., April 12.—In the death of Mr. James M. Beck, former Republican member of the house of representatives from Pennsylvania, the common people have lost a true friend.

Those who served with him in the house and those of us whose duty it was to sit in the gallery while the house was in session will always remember his thoughtful manner, his patience, the deep interest he took in bills affecting the public welfare, his devotion to the constitution of which he was the ablest living exponent. When he rose to speak his beautiful extemporaneous sentences held the house spellbound. Members could not turn away while he had the floor. There is no sunlight there, of course, but it often seemed when James Beck stood in the well before the speaker's desk as if direct rays, white and powerful, were coming down from above. Upon such occasions he was a rod for the back of a tyrant, a whip of scorpions for a would-be dictator.

I recall his noble utterances against the repudiation bill which robbed United States gold bond and currency holders of their constitutional rights. In years to come his great speech against the Bankhead cotton control bill will be read and applauded.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, April 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My grandmother died Feb. 27, 1936, leaving two heirs, myself and a niece. Actual estate amounts to only about $1,500 and in her will she directs, first, that all her just debts be paid; second, that $1,000 be left to her niece; and third, that the balance be paid to myself [if any]. She owned two pieces of property which she deeded over to the heirs five years before her death, to be delivered by the executor at the time of her death. Property deeded to her niece is clear of incumbrance; property deeded to me has a $600 mortgage, due in 1940, which was executed about a year ago. In view of the first provision of the will, "all my just debts first be paid by the executor," this note for $600 being signed by her and secured by property deeded to me, do you not think a claim on the estate for mortgage can be made?

N. E. G.

Considering how often this point as to exoneration of the land must come up, it is surprising how little authority we find. The Illinois Supreme court did say, however, in the People vs. Phelps, 78 Ill. 147, 150: "It was no valid objection to the allowance of the claim of John C. Watt, that the indebtedness had been secured by the intestate, in his lifetime, on real estate. The personalty belonging to the estate is the primary fund out of which all claims must be paid, and must be first exhausted."

Since it is hardly conceivable that the exoneration of the real estate would be left dependent on the election of the mortgage holder whether to file his claim in the probate proceedings, we incline to a holding that the devisee is entitled to insist that the mortgage be paid, where the will contains no implication to the contrary. FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—Gen. Erich Ludendorff, one time quartermaster general of the imperial army and most famous surviving German world war leader, has played a lone hand since the war. He had no use for Fritz Ebert, first president of the republic, whom he tried to overthrow with Adolf Hitler's assistance in the "beer hall putsch" of 1923. He had no use for his former colleague, the late Paul von Hindenburg, when the latter assumed the presidential office.

It looked, however, as if the former quartermaster general and Reichsfuehrer Hitler might be on better terms when the fuehrer sent troops to honor Ludendorff on his 70th birthday, April 9, 1935. But it was rumored the general lost favor when he acknowledged Hitler's telegram of congratulations without the customary salutation: "My Leader."

Since then the controled German press has strictly ignored Gen. Ludendorff and the activities of his Tannenberg league have been forbidden.

What Ludendorf thinks of it all was made clear on his 71st birthday this month. He is a worshiper of the old Teutonic god Wotan and has followers throughout the country. These had planned to celebrate his birthday with festivities, and many had announced they would visit him in his charming villa at Tutzing, near Munich. But Ludendorff begged them not to do so. In an appeal published in his fortnightly review, "At the Sacred Source of German Force," he told them that any festivities at present "could only tend to conceal the serious situation which exists for myself and many Germans in the prohibition of lectures by members of the staf of the Ludendorff Publishing house, which were aimed at spreading the knowledge of the German gods and the shaping of the life of the nation in this spirit."

Ludendorff warned those who wished to visit him that for their own safety they should keep away.

"I do not desire," he said, "that visitors should be suspected of being members of the forbidden Tannenberg league and thereby suffer unpleasantness."

He told his friends he would appreciate their efforts to spread the knowledge of the German gods.

"This knowledge," he said, "is the philosophic basis for the creation of a nation whose characteristics, freedom, and spiritual unity are based on racial inheritance."

WARNS OF FADING MINORITY RIGHTS UNDER NEW DEAL

Brush Aside All Checks, Dickinson Asserts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—A warning against the powers seized by large majorities under the present administration as subversive of the nation's tradition of freedom was voiced today by Senator J. L. Dickinson [Rep., I.] before a meeting of the American Coalition.

"The Democratic majorities are more and more brushing aside impatiently any checks on their authority," the senator declared, "and abandoning decentralization of power, a primary characteristic of American government, for untested plans.

"These ideas are parts of an alien philosophy which has been permitted free entry into the country," asserted Dickinson, "against which we should set up a quarantine no less strict than is enforced against contagious plant and animal diseases.

"Conceal Seeds of Disintegration."

"For unless these subversive doctrins are challenged and their true character exposed, they carry concealed the very seeds of national disintegration. The doctrin of the all-powerful state, with all citizens in varying degrees of dependence upon it, cannot exist side by side with an economic system based upon private enterprise and initiative."

The policy of suppressing the individual and assumption of governmental control were being pursued, Dickinson declared, despite the fact that the errors committed by government can be more costly and colossal than any one ever dreamed of under a system of privately managed enterprise, no matter how imperfect it might be.

As an example of the trend toward absolutism in federal government, the Iowan pointed out the proposed legislation to regulate American industry during the next war with the result that every dollar of property and every citizen would be conscripted under a completely socialistic state and the government would become supreme in every sphere of economic life.

War Means End of Liberties.

"Thus, to pass over night into that Utopian paradise of complete national regimentation," the senator continued, "requires merely our involvement as a nation in some foreign military adventure! So easily cannot only the spirit but the very forms of liberty itself be lost!

"And while such laws are being pressed toward the statute books, almost without protest, there goes forward throughout the country, virtually unchecked, a ceaseless propaganda designed to break down the faith of the American people in their own institutions. It invades the churches and the schools. It seeks to capitalize discontent among the unemployed. It would arouse and inflame youth denied its own place in the world.

"The ugly head of communism—the creed of envy and hate—has been raised in America. Yet always optimistic and easy-going, our people refuse to take such subversive activities seriously. We do not like to have our comfort disturbed with unpleasant possibilities. And so the poison spreads unnoticed and unopposed."

Senator Dickinson praised the patriotic societies for remaining alert to the rising menace. More than 100 leaders of patriotic, civic, and fraternal groups comprising the American Coalition heartily applauded the speech.

4 SENATORS EXPLAIN THEIR 'GUILTY' VOTE IN RITTER IMPEACHMENT

Washington, D. C., April 20.—(AP)—Four senators explained today they voted to convict Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of house impeachment charges because they felt the evidence "established beyond doubt the want of 'good' behavior."

Joining in the formal statement were Borah [Rep., Idaho], La Follette [Prog., Wis.], Frazier [Rep., N. D.], and Shipstead [F. L., Minn.].

The four senators held it was their view that a federal judge may be removed from office "if it is shown that he is wanting in that 'good behavior' designated as a condition of his tenure of office by the constitution, although such acts as disclosed his want of 'good behavior' may not amount to a crime."

Ritter was convicted on the last of seven impeachment articles. It combined all previous specific charges of misbehavior and high crime and misdemeanors and added the general charge that his conduct brought his court into "scandal and disrepute."

HOUSE DELETES REP. ZIONCHECK'S BLANTON ATTACK

Washington, D. C., April 20.—(AP)—By a vote of 272 to 0 the house today expunged from the records remarks by Representative Zioncheck [Dem., Wash.] concerning Representative Blanton [Dem., Tex.].

Shortly after the house convened Blanton arose to a point of personal privilege and presented a lengthy expunging resolution.

It set out that Zioncheck, despite eight rulings against him from the chair, last Friday persisted in a personal attack on Blanton by extending his remarks in the record after the house adjourned.

Zioncheck today in the house denounced J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation, as a "dictator" and "master of fiction."

"Since congress was kind enough to favor him by allowing his men to run around the country with machine guns, four G-men and eight gangsters have been killed," Zioncheck shouted, adding that "Dillinger didn't know 17 shaking boys had guns trained on him."

ASK AUTHORITY FOR BUILDING OF 2 BATTLESHIPS

Proposal Placed Before President Roosevelt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—A request that the government begin immediate construction of two new battleships to replace ships now obsolete was laid before President Roosevelt today by Admiral William T. Standley, chief of naval operations and acting secretary of the navy.

Emerging from the White House, Standley said that the President had not committed himself one way or the other on the proposal.

Need $4,000,000 Now.

Approximately $2,000,000 would be required for each ship before the keels could be laid. The admiral said that a separate appropriation would not be necessary since the money could be taken from the ordinary budget provided authorization were given to go ahead with the construction.

Each battleship would cost between 40 and 50 million dollars and require three and a half years for completion.

Following the admiral's visit, the President received the Maine congressional delegation and listened to their plea that the 40 million dollar Passamaquoddy tide harnessing power project be completed.

Authority Is Sought.

Senator Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] and Gov. Louis J. Brann, who headed the group, declared that they would seek congressional authority to go ahead with the project. Both the senate and the house have rejected the proposal this session.

"President Roosevelt feels," said Senator Hale, "that we ought to have authorization from congress for the project before he can go ahead and spend more money."

According to the senator, the President told the delegation he would continue to spend money from the present 7 million dollar allotment for the project, until July 1, but would not dip into relief funds any further unless congress authorized him to do so.

PLACED ON TRIAL 13 YEARS AFTER BANK COLLAPSE

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Thirteen years after his bank and steamship agency on Mott street closed and he and his four brothers fled from its 40,000 anguished Italian-American depositors Vincenzo Tisbo went on trial in General Sessions court today.

Tisbo, now 52 years old, was indicted in March, 1923, together with his brothers, Vito and Francesco, following the failure of the firm of Vincenzo Tisbo & Brothers, known to Italians all over the country.

Later Vito and Francesco were tried for larceny in Italy and acquitted. Vito Tisbo is now dead. Vincenzo, then hiding in South America, also was tried in absentia, a procedure permitted under Italian law. He was acquitted.

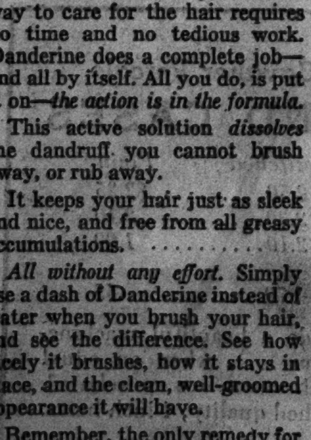
Tisbo's trial today climaxed an eleven year search for him here and in Italy. He was captured in 1934 in Jamaica, L. I., by Joseph Tarantino, an ice dealer, who lost $5,000 in the bank failure.

The ice dealer had made a trip to Italy, visited Tisbo's relatives in Bitonto and learned where the ex-banker was hiding in the United States. Then he invited him to his home in Jamaica, locked him in the wine cellar, and called police.

HANGS SELF IN ATTIC.

Karl Wolter, 35 years old, hanged himself yesterday in his attic room at 4108 West End avenue. A note stated he was despondent because he could not save enough money to return to Germany.

REMOVES DANDRUFF WITHOUT ANY EFFORT



This is for Busy Men Who Have No Time to Fuss with Their Hair and Scalp

It's true, men; this easy, effortless way to care for the hair requires no time and no tedious work. Danderine does a complete job—and all by itself. All you do, is put it on—the action is in the formula.

This active solution dissolves the dandruff you cannot brush away, or rub away.

It keeps your hair just as sleek and nice, and free from all greasy accumulations.

All without any effort. Simply use a dash of Danderine instead of water when you brush your hair, and see the difference. See how nicely it brushes, how it stays in place, and the clean, well-groomed appearance it will have.

Remember, the only remedy for dandruff is something that will get rid of it. Danderine disposes of dandruff — by dissolving it.

TWO KILLED AND SIX HURT WHEN RAILWAY COACH IS OVERTURNED

Menoken, Kas., April 20.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and six injured when the second car of a two car Union Pacific motor train was derailed and overturned near here late today.

The dead were identified as Fred W. Pail of Beatrice, Neb., and Mrs. Elmer Peterson of Onaga, Kas.

Railroad men said the wreck apparently was caused by a metal highway crossing plate between the rails where the Lincoln branch of the Union Pacific crosses United States highway 40. The plate, they said, apparently became dislodged and derailed the trailer.

NEW GUN SIGHT DEVELOPED FOR ARMY'S PLANES

Illuminated Device Fixed on Windshield.

Dayton, O., April 20.—(AP)—Cross-beams of light on the windshield are used for the first time on an American army plane at Wright field to aim the flyer's machine guns at the target.

Adoption of this new device, known as optical gun sight, was made public today. It is a forward step in defensive power, sponsored by the Material division of the United States army air corps.

In letters of light the top crossbar is marked at each end by the numeral 5. The middle bar similarly is designated by 10, the lower one by 15. These figures mean yards, in hundreds.

Lines Target on Bars.

The pilot guides his plane so that the target ahead is seen directly at the intersection of one of the crossbars. An attack ship has four machine guns: in the nose, in front of the pilot. Any one or all of them are directly on the target when it is seen at a crossbar.

This optical sight affords great advantages in accuracy and ease of sighting. With ordinary sights the pilot's eye must be in line with two sights of the guns. With this device he need only see the target at a crossbar.

BEG YOUR PARDON

An announcement Sunday of the rummage sale to be held by the Howland Parent-Teacher association on Tuesday gave the address as 335 South State street. The address should have been 3335 South State street.

An item yesterday said that William C. Hollister had been elected chairman of the board of the Old-Time Printers' association. There is no board chairman. Mr. Hollister was reëlected a member of the board.

HOUSE APPROVES 4,000 PLANE AIR CORPS MEASURE

Washington, D. C., April 20.—(AP)—The house today passed a bill by Representative William N. Rogers [Dem., N. H.] authorizing an increase of army air corps strength to 4,000 planes. The measure now goes to the senate.

Present authorized strength is 1,800 planes, but war department officials contend the army air corps is far below that figure.

The proposed increase would be built up over the next five years.

The house military committee report said 4,000 planes was the absolute minimum necessary for adequate national defense.

Emphasizing that many foreign nations have vast air fleets and huge airplane carriers, the committee said: "These facts strongly emphasize that our nation is no longer protected from air attacks because of the wide extent of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and we must govern ourselves accordingly."

The house at the same time passed a companion bill for the organization of an air reserve training corps.

MOTHERS CHECK SCHOOL STRIKE IN HAZLETON, PA.

Leaf River, Ill., Pupils to End Walkout.

Hazleton, Pa., April 20.—[Special.]—Abandoning their Monday washings, mothers rallied at the Stockton school today and helped repulse student strickers after parents, teachers and children had participated in a free-for-all scuffle over an American flag.

The aroused mothers formed their lines in front of the school and, with their children, outnumbered the strikers who had marched from the Ebervale No. 3 school to extend their strike in protest against the dismissal of 12 teachers.

Principal Is Besieged.

The strikers besieged Principal Joseph Zelloc, who had refused to permit use of the flag as a barrier to the school. The flagstaff was bounced on the heads of several children in the ensuing melee.

When the principal forced the flag aloft, the strikers yanked it back to block the entrance to the school. The physical encounter finally ended when three Stockton girls pushed the striking color bearer down the school steps. The Stockton children voted to continue classes.

Fix Truce at Leaf River.

Leaf River, Ill., April 20.—[Special.]—One hundred Leaf River students agreed today, during a truce of their five day old strike, to return to classes tomorrow. The decision came after County School Superintendent W. L. Pickering promised arbitration in the dismissal of Principal Stanley Finifrock.

Pickering had threatened to issue warants for the parents of children under 16 years who failed to report for class today.

Finifrock, ousted by a 3 to 2 vote because "he had been spending too much money," said he believed the real reason for his dismissal was his refusal to vote wet in a local option referendum last year.

Picketing Plan Fails.

Highland Falls, N. Y., April 20.—[Special.]—The mothers who planned to picket the Fort Montgomery school today, in protest against reinstatement of a teacher who punished a pupil with a ruler, failed to put in an appearance but several students were absent from their classes.

Five mothers had signed up for picket duty and 13 others voted to call a strike of sixth grade pupils today and tomorrow. They objected to the state department of education's reinstatement of Mrs. Carrie F. Hynie, principal and teacher of the sixth grade, after the Highland Falls school board had suspended her for striking a student.

Freeport, N. Y., April 20.—[Special.]—Officials of the Freeport Boatmen's association disclosed today that seventeen men were rescued from a stranded craft off Squaw Island yesterday after a carrier pigeon brought an S O S message to shore. The rescue was the first of its kind, as far as is known.

The 40 foot fishing boat Dawn left here yesterday with Capt. W. S. Smith at the helm. Off West Island the Dawn broke her exhaust pipe. A pigeon carring word of the vessel's plight was released and flew fifteen miles to the association clubhouse here. Rescue craft then were dispatched.

Police Arrive as Robber Ends Holdup; Catch Him

Responding to a report of a robbery in progress at the Dutch Mill candy store at 4554 North Clark street yesterday, Capt. Patrick O'Connell and Sergt. Michael Ahearn arrived in time to see the robber departing. They pursued him several blocks and captured him in an apartment building at 1446 Wilson avenue. He identified himself as Arthur Tarnott, 33 years old, 4872 Winthrop avenue, and admitted having robbed several other candy stores and bakeries.

SET ASIDE TWO JURY VERDICTS FOR DAMAGES

Two Circuit court verdicts in damage cases were set aside by the Appellate court yesterday on the ground that they were so excessive as to show passion and prejudice on the parts of the juries.

One of the verdicts was for $12,000 against William D. Meyering, former sherif, in favor of Mrs. Ora L. Perry, 1340 North Dearborn parkway. She charged that deputies of Meyering occupied her apartment at 2000 Lincoln Park West for a week in July, 1931, while attempting to satisfy a judgment that W. H. Darlington had obtained against her husband, N. I. Perry.

The other was for $3,000 against Meyer Rothschild, 4734 Ellis avenue, obtained by Miss Lillian Kay, of Cherokee, Ia., former laundress in Rothschild's home. She charged that she was injured by a defective clothes wringer while thus employed in October, 193.

PRISON INQUIRY SHIFTS ACTIVITY TO COOK COUNTY

Gov. Horner's commission for the study of prison problems, appointed last January, convened here yesterday for a three day study of conditions in Chicago. The commission's findings will be incorporated in a report on Illinois prison problems to be completed next November, according to the Most Rev. Joseph H. Schlarman, Catholic bishop of Peoria, who is chairman.

"Our study, which has been in progress for six weeks, is purely fact finding, and not critical," Bishop Schlarman said. "We seek to know the complete Illinois prison problem, and, on the basis of our findings, will make recommendations to Gov. Horner.

"To this end we are visiting courts, law enforcement agencies, jails, and parole institutions while in Chicago."

Today the commission will visit the County jail, the Bridewell, the Criminal court building, and the detective bureau. The session here will end Wednesday.

All of Loop's Sewage Is Diverted from River

Peter S. Girard, engineer of sewer design for the sanitary district, announced yesterday that the Chicago river has been relieved of all sewage from the loop by opening of part of the new $20,000,000 west side intercepting sewer. Engineers began placing the new sewer in operation the last week in March and yesterday one-fourth of the twenty mile system had been opened, Mr. Girard said. Another month will be required to put the rest of the new sewer into operation.

Wife of Instructor Hamby Needs Witness for Divorce

Judge Rudolph Desort in Superior court indicated yesterday that he would grant Mrs. Rachael Hamby, 7201 South Hoyne avenue, a divorce from her husband, Thomas, a former instructor at Lindblom High school, as soon as she can produce a corroborating witness for her testimony that her husband deserted her in June, 1934. Hamby, according to charges filed, eloped with one of his pupils, Phyllis Snyder, 16 years old, 6316 South Hoyne avenue. Judge Desort recently ordered the school board to pay Mrs. Hamby $1,755 in salary due her husband.

Praise Pulling Contest

April 20, 1936.

SINCE the announcement of the second annual Tribune Horse and Mule Pulling contest to be held on Saturday, June 20, at the Tribune Wheaton Experimental farm, many team owners and animal husbandry authorities have praised this newspaper for its efforts to encourage farm and city horse and mule owners in this new type of rural sport. Several entries already have been received.

Contestants will compete for cash awards, totaling $500 for the best teams and $50 for the best drivers.

"It certainly must be a pleasure to all good horsemen to know that the CHICAGO TRIBUNE plans to have another horse pulling contest this year," said E. T. Robbins, live stock extension specialist of the University of Illinois, after receiving the announcement of the second annual contest. "The contest you had last year was one of the most interesting and most satisfactory of any of the contests which I have attended. It was exceedingly well managed, the location was ideal, and the people seemed very appreciative of the efforts and sportsmanship of the teams and the drivers.

A Practical Business

"The horse pulling contest is a practical way to display favorably the type, quality, and character of the best draft horses. A horse must be built for power in order to be efficient in a contest and he must also have the best of hard, durable quality, a courageous and determined disposition, and an intelligent appreciation of what is going on."

Mr. Robbins adds that experience has proved good pullers are good workers. They have the power and the disposition to use it effectively. All good pullers have deep chests, a large heart girth, powerful muscle, and a general indication of good constitution and great power such as a work horse needs in order to endure a long season of hard work.

In advising prospective contestants, this authority says the winners in a pulling contest must have well fitted harness of great strength. They must be skilful to teach the horses to exert to the utmost, to pull together all the way, and to keep going until they are told to stop. Disposition of the right sort and good training accomplish wonders in helping a team to display its full strength.

Deems Driving Important

To drivers Mr. Robbins has this to say:

"Skilful driving is very important. Many a good team has won contests in the past in spite of poor driving. Spectators appreciate the fact that the winning team in a keen contest must have a driver who is as capable as the horses.

"He must know what his horses can do and he must know how to maintain their confidence, promote their enthusiasm and make them respond to his will. Even if spectators learn nothing more at a pulling contest than to imitate successfully the performance of the good driver, they would be well repaid for attending the event."

Mr. Robbins says that horse pulling contests lay emphasis on the right type of draft horse and educate farmers and others in their management. Some horses in Illinois pulling contests have developed as much as 29 horsepower per pair.

DEATH CLAIMS THE REV. OLIN MATTISON AT 94

Oldest Minister of Rock River Conference.

The Rev. Olin F. Mattison, oldest member of the Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, died yesterday of a heart attack in his home at 718 Clark street, Evanston. He was 94 years old.

THE REV. OLIN F. MATTISON.

On Sunday the Rev. Mr. Mattison attended services at the First Methodist Episcopal church in Evanston, of which he had been a member for 22 years, since he was placed on a superannuated status in the conference. Until then he had been in active pastorates for 49 years.

His last charge was the Hemenway Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston, where he was pastor for six years, retiring in 1914. For three years before that he was pastor of the Covenant Methodist Episcopal church in Evanston.

Son of Circuit Rider.

The Rev. Mr. Mattison was born in Macon, Ga., the son of the Rev. Spencer Mattison, an early Illinois circuit rider. The son often recalled the hardships undergone by his father and the Rev. Burton Cartwright, another famous Methodist circuit rider.

Olin Mattison attended the Rock River seminary at Mount Morris at a time when his family and Cartwright were next door neighbors. Later he was assistant principal of the seminary. He also was at one time a tutor and professor at Soldiers' college, Fulton, Ill.

Survived by His Family.

His first wife, Mrs. Annie D. Mattison, to whom he was married for 54 years, died in 1923. Five years later he married Anna Ferris, who survives him.

Five children by his first wife also survive. They are Hugh H. of Barrington, Robert S. of Memphis, Tenn., Myrtle of Oak Park, Mrs. Carleton H. Pendleton of Evanston, and Mrs. Walter R. Meyers of Minneapolis, wife of a professor of the University of Minnesota.

Funeral services for the Rev. Mr. Mattison will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston. Burial will be in the Wheaton cemetery.

ARNOLD BOSS, FIRE HERO, DIES; RITES TOMORROW

Funeral services for Arnold Boss, 41 years old, 6708 South Peoria street, a fireman, will be held at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in St. Brendan's church, 67th street and Racine avenue. Burial will be in St. Mary cemetery. He died Sunday at the Little Company of Mary hospital after a two months illness from heart disease.

Boss was a member of engine company 121, and had served on the department for seventeen years. Boss was twice cited for bravery, once for rescuing a baby from a burning building, and another time for staying at the wheel of a fire truck, warning his mates to jump when it collided with a street car. He was seriously injured.

He is survived by his wife, Barbara, and a daughter, Barbara Lou.

John B. Listman Is Dead at 82; Native of Chicago

Funeral services for John B. Listman, 82 years old, 3282 Wrightwood avenue, retired captain in the city fire department, who died Sunday in his home, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the chapel at 3301 Fullerton avenue. Capt. Listman was born in Chicago. He joined the fire department in 1880 and retired in 1917. On several occasions he was cited for acts of heroism. A son and two daughters survive. Capt. Listman lived in the Logan Square district for 27 years.

POISONED BY MISTAKE; DIES.

Clayton Ross, 52 years old, 825 West 54th place, died in the County hospital Sunday of poison swallowed by mistake on Saturday.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: First Things First

ROOSEVELT WILL ATTEND FUNERAL OF LOUIS HOWE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will attend the burial of Louis McHenry Howe, his secretary and political adviser, Wednesday morning at Fall River, Mass.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon in the East room of the White House. Howe died in his sleep Saturday night at the Naval hospital here following a long illness.

Use Special Train.

Aboard the specal train for Howe's home will be the widow, members of his family, and Mrs. Roosevelt. Mrs. Robert Baker, a daughter of Howe, and her husband, Prof. Jacob Baker, will arrive in Washington tomorrow from Urbana, Ill., to join Mrs. Howe and a son, Hartley.

According to present plans the President will not return to Washington immediately but will go to his estate at Hyde Park, N. Y., where he will remain until Saturday. Then the President will motor to New York City, where he will speak Saturday night at a Jefferson Day dinner of the National Democratic clubs. He is expected to return to Hyde Park to spend Sunday, and will come to Washington Monday morning.

Speech Is Canceled.

The White House flag was at half mast today on orders of the President. Mr. Roosevelt canceled all social engagements for today and tomorrow. He also called off a speech he was to have given tonight before a meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

As a newspaper correspondent at Albany, N. Y., Howe became associated with Roosevelt at the beginning of his political career in the state senate. He was with Roosevelt when he was assistant secretary of the navy, during his unsuccessful campaign for the vice presidency in 1920 and was in the inner councils during the 1932 campaign.

DR. MERRILL, 76, RETIRED U. OF C. PROFESSOR, DIES

Dr. E. T. Merrill, 76 years old, professor of Latin in the University of Chicago for 16 years before his retirement in 1924, died in a hospital in Santa Barbara, Cal., his home, on Sunday, friends here learned yesterday. Dr. Merrill was the author of several books on Latin, and in 1906 was elected president of the American Philological association. He had been an instructor at Wesleyan university, Trinity college, and Massachusetts State Normal school. His widow, Edith, and two sons, Robert and Cedric, survive.

Mrs. Caroline Skoglund, 92, Is Dead at Geneva

Funeral services for Mrs. Caroline Skoglund, 92 years old, who died Sunday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gust Lundgren, in Geneva, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Emmanuel Lutheran church. Mrs. Skoglund, who had lived in Geneva for forty-seven years, was one of the oldest residents of Kane county. She was the widow of A. M. Skoglund, Geneva merchant. Two other daughters and a son survive.

T. F. Black, 70, Father of Kansas Pastor, Dies

T. F. Black, 70 years old, 317 West Hubbard street, Austin avenue, died of a heart ailment yesterday in St. Luke's hospital. A son, the Rev. Frederick Black of Newton, Kas., was notified.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A Chicago sponsor has decided that there is still life in that much maligned radio institution—the amateur hour. Beginning Wednesday, May 6, a local clothing house is going on the air over WENR for sixty minutes with Gene Arnold playing the Maj. Bowes rôle. Arnold, for years master of ceremonies of the Weener Minstrel show, has been warming up the new show on one of the smaller stations and is now ready to introduce it in radio's major league.

Bryan Field, Hugh Conrad, and Bob Trout, same trio that handled the Kentucky Derby last year, will be at the microphones again this year when it is carried exclusively over CBS. Last year, however, the same gentlemen called themselves Thomas Bryan George, Westbrook Van Voorhis, and Robert Trout, respectively. Last year they were on trial. Having proved satisfactory, they have blossomed out this year under the names by which their best friends know them. Bryan Field, who will do the actual race, is turf expert of the New York Times. Trout was formerly CBS' presidential announcer.

Bobby Brown, for five years director of Myrt and Marge, who have just left the air, has been appointed commercial program manager at WBBM-CBS. . . . Johnny O'Hara yesterday took over the baseball broadcasts of Samuel Insull's new rural network, succeeding Shorty Fall after a week's tryout. . . . Seymour Simons has disbanded his orchestra to spend the summer with his children. Seymour is a widower, and constant traveling has kept him away from his three youngsters too much.

If you like Ted Weems' sustaining pickups from the Palmer house his new 12:30 p. m. Sunday sponsored program over W-G-N is likely to please you even more. This show, since dance music is not imperative, gives him an opportunity to display his talent to the fullest. Too bad the program comes at such an early hour.

Alex McQueen's W-G-N program, "Nothing But the Truth," like Babe Ruth's last venture in radio, was such a success that the sponsor took it off the air because he had sold the entire available stock. And that's nothing but the truth.

MRS. J. H. PIERCE WILL TO BENEFIT 5 DESCENDANTS

The will of Mrs. Sarah I. Pierce, disposing of an estate of $40,000, was admitted to probate yesterday. Mrs. Pierce, widow of John H. Pierce, steel executive, died Feb. 26 in Denver at the age of 85. One-third of the income from a trust fund to be established by the estate is left to her son, Dr. Frank E. Pierce, 1325 Astor street, with whom she lived in Chicago. Another third is to be divided between the two children of the late Mrs. Katherine P. McCreary, a granddaughter. The remaining third is to be divided between Samuel Insull III., Mrs. Adelaide Pierce Insull, who died in 1934, and Charles Pierce Jr., a grandson, who is a student at Princeton university.

A brother and two nieces are to share the $45,000 estate of Thomas Herbert Chase, an instructor in English in the Chicago High schools for the past 20 years, according to the will admitted to probate.

Mr. Chase died on Feb. 26.

Other wills admitted to probate included the following:

LOUIS L. JOHNSON, died March 8. Estate $10,800 to brother, three nephews, and three nieces. Hilding S. Johnson, nephew, executor.

BARBARA PRATO, died Feb. 13. Estate $25,000 to three sons and daughter-in-law. Peter M. Zulfer, executor.

ANNA GALLAGHER LAWLER, died March 5. Estate $12,000 to three sons, sister, daughter, niece, nephew and grandson. Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, executor.

CATHERINE C. HAUSFELD, died April 15. Estate $12,000 to daughter, Helen Hausfield Jennewine, daughter, executrix.

CHINA'S OLDEST U. S. MISSIONARY IS DEAD AT 95

PEIPING, April 21 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Miss Mary Andrews, 95 year old American missionary who died Sunday, was buried today at Tungchow, a little missionary center 13 miles east of here.

Considered the oldest missionary in China, she arrived in this country 68 years ago, serving under the banner of the Congregational American Board of Missions, which has headquarters in Boston.

Miss Andrews was born in Cleveland and was a schoolmate of John D. Rockefeller Sr. and his wife. She died at Paotingfu, 100 miles south of Peiping.

The scene of her first labor in China was at Tungchow, where she was buried.

DON'T SLEEP ON LEFT SIDE, AFFECTS HEART

Gas Pressure May Cause Discomfort. Right Side Best

If you toss in bed and can't sleep on right side, try Adlerika. Just ONE dose relieves stomach GAS pressing on heart so you can sleep soundly all night.

Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing Adlerika greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli."

Mrs. Jos. Filler: "Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart hurt. The first dose of Adlerika brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine, and never felt better."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just ONE dose relieves GAS and chronic constipation. Sold by all druggists and drug departments.

WILD GEESE FLY OVER QUEENS

WE KNOW of a pool within city limits where a trout will rise to a fly. Wild geese in spring and fall go honking over Queens. There are bucolic spots in other boroughs. And from a tower on Fifth Avenue you may watch mallards swimming with the swans in the pond in Central Park.

On the other hand, there are cliff-dwellers in apartments out in New Rochelle, Scarsdale and Greenwich. Sharp divisions between city and suburbs are lines of demarcation more political than physical and social. It is not a place upon a map that is significant, but the character of the people who live there.

For the city spills over into the suburbs, and the suburbs flow back into the city. The more important suburbs are inescapably New York, economically and socially. And the leading people of the suburbs definitely belong to the city, just as the leading people of the city have wide interests in the suburbs and country.

Readers of The Times cannot be segregated geographically. They constitute, rather, a class of leadership. The leadership of New York's social, economic and professional life. And certainly they have wide interests, for The Times is a paper that appeals particularly to people of varied objectives—whether they be young or old—sportsman, scholar, merchant or financier—man or woman!

There is a vitality and freshness in The Times that is inherent. For it is first, last and all the time a newspaper. Every day there flows into The Times editorial offices from all over the world a torrent of a half-million words of news dispatches. The Times presents this news, clearly, sharply, but without prejudice or partisanship. The Times reserves its opinions for the editorial page. It is this fair and authentic treatment of all the news that's fit to print that draws to The Times, year after year, a larger and larger audience. This is the basic reason for the prestige of The Times.

NEW GAINS FOR THE TIMES

Regularly as the recurring tide, each year marks another new high for The New York Times. For 18 consecutive years it has rolled up a volume of advertising linage to lead all other New York newspapers. The Times leads the world in national advertising.

And in circulation it continues just as consistently to gain! March showed net paid sales for week-days of 495,321 copies—a gain of 28,800 over last year; Sunday sales 775,029—a gain of 45,430.

This circulation is spread among that class of readers who are leaders in the five boroughs that constitute New York City. It overflows into the suburbs, and out across the nation where The Times is sought by leaders and molders of opinion everywhere. Because of its influence upon the activities of this audience, The Times is the natural foundation for advertising in New York.

"All the News That's Fit to Print"

Fathers Foolish to Behave Like Spoiled Child

Wrong Attitude Alienates Youngster's Affection.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"He's nothing but a great big boy," a wife often will say of her husband. "Men never grow up."

It's true enough. Women don't seem to have anything quite like this Peter Pan in them, do they? Perhaps it's because, in bearing and rearing the race, there is too much of the eternal mother in them for them to stay little girl-like—they have to mature. But some men do have that little boy quality in them, and in the men we're fond of, it endears them to us all the more.

Many a woman has found, however, that the little boy in her husband sometimes is a spoiled little boy—his immaturity is too fundamental—and where the children are concerned this is a serious handicap.

"My husband, not the children," several of them have written, "is the problem. How to handle the father who is a more selfish spoiled child than any of the children, is a question."

Grown people should mature. Men with children must be responsible, thoughtful, fair minded, affectionate men. Those who aren't will harm their children, and lose their confidence, trust, and adoration. Children are ready to adore a father if he'll give them a chance.

"My husband roughs our small son and talks mock-tough to him, but if Sonny does it back to him, sometimes he'll spank him. Sonny is so hurt and bewildered," writes one wife.

"If one of the children is absorbed in her play and doesn't rush to the door with the others, my husband gets so angry at that one that he won't speak to her for hours, and ignores the loving fuss the others make over him," says another.

"My husband hates to be awakened, and if one of the children disturbs him he treats him with a cold disapproval, and won't speak to him all morning."

The mirror, held up by some one outside the family will often make a person see himself and change his ways. Also, I've had quite a number of reports about relatives and parents who have attained a new viewpoint from reading.

Girls Often Are Unappreciative of Attentions

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I guess I've been a sap with a capital S," John confesses. "For three years I've been trying to get the girl to marry me. I've taken her out on expensive dates, gone into debt buying her luxuries, and gratified her every whim. Every time I mention marriage she wants to 'wait a little while.'

"She knows I'm crazy about her, and she has taken advantage of that ever since I began dating her. We've broken off dozens of times, but because I love her so much I always go back and try to patch things up. She goes out with whomever she pleases. I'm supposed to sit at home and like it. Just let me look twice at a girl and she raises the roof.

"I've tried hard not to give her anything to quarrel about, but it does not seem to matter. She always is finding fault about something. I give in, even when I know she's in the wrong, just to try to keep peace. I'm finally convinced, however, that I'm barking up the wrong tree, that I'm the prize chump of the century."

John's letter reminds me of something about which I've wanted to talk for a long time. Women do seem to be perverse creatures. They squander their affection on men who treat them with little or no respect and consideration, and they deny that affection to the men who dedicate their lives to trying to give them happiness.

I've suspected more than once that feminine affection is a contrary emotion. It doesn't go to the man who apparently deserves it, to the man who has proved his interest by thoughtful deeds and constant attention. More likely it goes to the villain whose intentions toward our little Nell are somewhat questionable. I'll grant you this isn't always true, but look around a bit. It's the man with the savoir faire, the man inclined to be elusive, independent, and indifferent who basks in the spotlight of feminine attention.

Perhaps it's that women have no real sense of values. They won't trouble themselves to look beneath the surface. Or, perhaps, it's a general trait in all of us to want what we apparently cannot have.

For Town and Country Chic

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

This simple frock, with its clever bow of generous proportions and interesting belt, is the ideal solution to the problem of what sort of dress to make for both town and country. Every wardrobe requires at least one such versatile model. This pattern is perfectly suited to the needs of smart women in town in summer, and to the requirement for a washable frock which may be worn when one is vacationing.

If you plan to make this frock first for wear at home, select a tub silk print. Since the lines of this dress are straight and plain, a gay print will make up beautifully. You may use the same pattern as a guide to several cotton frocks for knockabout use in the country. For this type of wear choose some of the colorful prints in novelty cotton fabrics and linen. Shantung and piqué in high shades also will be suitable.

This frock is simple as A B C to make. The cape sleeves are cut in raglan fashion. Cleverly placed tucks fit the waistline to the figure. There are no plaits.

Style No. 3173 is designed for sizes 14, 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material.

Griddle Cakes Go French in Clever Recipes

"Filling the Cookie Jar," a booklet containing twenty-eight recipes for cookies and snacks, is on sale at the Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents; by mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Make American griddle cakes with a French accent, dub them "crêpes," and you're set, Mme. Hostess, with a charming dessert for your April luncheon.

These thin hot cakes, rolled around a generous spoonful of chilled fresh fruit and sprinkled with confectioner's sugar, top off a light salad plate luncheon in de-luxe-ious fashion. You will find them equally at home at the party breakfast, too, if you've been brain wracking for a distinctive morning menu.

We've chosen rhubarb, tartly pink and tender, as the filling to quote in this particular recipe. Crushed sweetened strawberries or any of the canned berries, drained, may be substituted with pleasant results. Or try a combination of sweetened, drained, crushed pineapple, and shredded coconut.

The crêpes are simply made.

Crêpes Rhubarb.

1 cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg
¾ cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift the flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Beat the egg, milk, and shortening. Add gradually to the flour mixture, beating to a smooth batter. Bake in large thin cakes on a hot, slightly greased griddle. In the center of each cake place a spoonful of thick, sweet rhubarb sauce and lap sides over center. Serve at once.

The same cakes, or crêpes, become the mainstay of a spring supper with another filling. A hot creamed ham and green pepper mixture may be spooned onto the middle of each hot cake, the whole rolled or folded, and served with a generous sprinkling of grated cheese.

Another suggestion for the crêpes is to serve them not folded but stacked and cut pie fashion. Bake five large cakes, over six inches in diameter, for this. Stack the cakes with a filling of tuna fish and pimento in a cheese sauce, sprinkle the top cake with grated cheese, and serve the stack in wedges, pie fashion, as a main supper or luncheon dish.

Hadassah Lecture.

Dr. A. Eustace Haydon, professor of the history of religion at the University of Chicago, will speak at an open meeting of the Chicago chapter of Hadassah at 2:15 o'clock today at the Congress hotel. Dr. Haydon will speak on "What Contribution Can a Jewish Palestine Make to World Culture?"

According to CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I have followed your column with great interest and have noticed that, from time to time, you act as referee in bridge disputes submitted to you for decision.

"Well, last night my husband and I sat down to our weekly brawl—pardon me, I meant contract game—and to every one's astonishment except the neighbors', a terrific argument developed over a certain hand. I am writing this letter at my husband's bedside [nothing serious; he'll be up and around in no time] and with his full approval.

"The hand that caused the accident was this:

"North dealer.

NORTH
♥ A 4
♦ K 7 5 2

WEST
♠ K Q J 4
♥ 10 8 2
♦ 9 6 3

EAST
♠ 10 5 2
♥ J 9 7 6
♦ 8 4
♣ J 10 9 7

SOUTH
♠ A 9 7
♥ K Q 5 3
♦ A Q J 10
♣ 3 2

"The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	3 no trp	Pass
4 no trp	Pass	5 no trp	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	6 no trp	Pass
Pass	Pass

"Of course, there were only eleven tricks in the hand at no trump, whereas six diamonds [which never even were mentioned] would have been easy.

"I was North, my moronic helpmate was South [but not far enough south!]. I claim he bid the hand like a first class goop. He claims [though more feebly than last night] that his bidding was correct throughout.

"Who is right? May I beg that you rush your answer, as I fear dear husband is going to have a relapse if he keeps up this argument.

"Anxiously yours,

"MRS. H. K. W., Detroit, Mich."

I sometimes wish that all of my correspondents were masculine. It is a thankless enough task to act as umpire in an argument between two men. The feminine element not only complicates a problem by bringing in such extraneous factors as the personal history, physiognomy, and imbecility of the masculine partner, but there always is the horrible chance that the woman may be right!

To my infinite distress I must decide in her favor this time. South's bidding was not good and six diamonds would have been the logical contract.

But—and now I shudder to think what will happen to the already hors du combat Mr. H. K. W.—the six no trump contract should have been made!

Undoubtedly West opened the spade king and if declarer had conceded the first trick the other twelve would have been indefensibly his. His one chance, since he had only eleven top tricks, was a squeeze. This depended on only one condition: that the same opponent had the long hearts and clubs. After passing the first spade lead South should win the second and run the diamond suit. That would account for six cards played by all hands, leaving only seven. Since the player guarding hearts and clubs would require four cards in each, obviously he would be squeezed.

I can only hope that I am not making myself an accessory to manslaughter!

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Both sides vulnerable, East opened with one heart. I was South and held:
♠ A K, ♥ Q J 9 4, ♦ K 10 5, ♣ A 7 3 2.
What is my correct bid?

Film Designer Tells Artistic Color Theories

Hollywood, April 20.—(AP)—When Travis Banton designs clothes to be filmed in color, he's going to use color as an accent the way famous artists used it.

"Just as every one wants to write a book [except, perhaps, the writers] so does every one have his own ideas on the popular subject of color," says Banton, who makes on and off stage clothes for many Hollywood style leaders.

His opinion—he's been pleasing the color sensibilities of screen prima donnas for ever so many years—will carry weight when his studio makes its first color film.

"When color first came to the screen it seemed apparent that its sponsors were out to get their money's worth and in doing so they turned out 'picture postcard' films," he contends.

He's itching to get his fingers in on a color picture, and if his theories look as good on the screen as they do on paper they should be worth the waiting.

"In plotting color, it is my belief that it should be used as accent rather than kaleidoscopically," he says. "Colorists would do well to study the technique employed by such famous artists as Whistler, the French impressionist, and Manet, classic French artist, who was a past master on the subject of light and shadow."

"These artists," he declares, "knew the value of neutral tones, of tans and grays and blacks and whites in contrast to a bright tone to point their picture.

"So, too, do the world's greatest fabric makers, Biachinni, Ducharne, Coudurier, all Frenchmen by the way and of a nation long skilful in its manipulation of color in clothes."

Jane M'Murray Being Feted at Many Parties

Wedding to R. G. Walker to Be May 9.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. THEODORE S. GARY, Miss Suzanne Morris, and Daniel Lawlor already have entertained for Miss Jane McMurray and Robert G. Walker, and more than a dozen other parties are being given for the popular couple before their wedding on May 9.

Tomorrow Mrs. William M. Walker, Mr. Walker's mother, is giving a luncheon at her home on Sheridan road, and Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hamlin will be hosts at a dinner at the South Shore Country club. The following evening Mr. and Mrs. John Brittingham Jr. are entertaining at a Sunday night supper at their home.

Mrs. Robert English is giving a luncheon on Tuesday, the 28th, at the Woman's Athletic club, and on Thursday, the 30th, Mrs. Richard Lamport will have a small luncheon at her home.

Miss Peggy Wiley, who will be one of Miss McMurray's bridesmaids, will be hostess at luncheon on Saturday, May 2, and that evening three of the ushers, Ralph Swanson, John Goodwillie, and William Taylor Jr., are giving a dinner in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel.

Miss Adelaide Ball, who will be maid of honor for Miss McMurray, will be hostess at a Sunday night supper on May 3 at her home in Winnetka, and Mrs. Robert Graf, whose daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Connell, will be matron of honor, is giving a luncheon at her home the following day. That evening Miss Linda Jane Sherer is taking the bridal party to dine and dance in the Empire room of the Palmer house.

Mr. and Mrs. William Walker Jr. are planning a cocktail party on Tuesday, the 5th, and the following evening Donald M. Wood Jr. will be host at dinner in the Urban room of the Congress hotel. Mrs. George N. McMurray, Miss McMurray's mother, is giving a tea Thursday, the 7th, and that evening the spinster and bachelor dinners are taking place. The bridal dinner will be held the evening before the wedding at Mrs. McMurray's apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue.

At the wedding Saturday afternoon at St. Chrysostom's church Walter E. Alair of St. Paul will give his niece in marriage. His daughter, Mrs. Charles Dudley Warner, is arriving in time for the last week of festivities.

Bachelor Dinner Guests Will Mark Anniversary.

Almost a year ago Gaylord Donnelley gave one of the most unusual and interesting of bachelor dinners which took place at French Lick Springs, and which was not only a bachelor dinner, but stag week-end party as well. At that time the bridegroom-to-be, whose wedding to the former Dorothy Ranney took place on May 4, was host to 30 of his best friends.

The same 30 young men have received invitations to a duplicate party this week-end, but only half or a little over the original 30 are able to accept Mr. Donnelley's invitation.

The group will leave on Friday night in two private cars for a night and two days at the southern resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Smith are receiving congratulations on the birth of a second son, David Byron Smith, yesterday morning at the St. Luke's hospital. Mrs. Smith is the former Polly Hart, daughter of the H. Stillson Harts of Barrington, and Mr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith. The baby has been named David because his mother and father have a liking for the name. Byron is a name closely associated with the Smith family. Master David has a brother, Harold Jr.

Frederick Delano Returns to Capital.

WE listen to child stories with ill concealed mistrust, but here is another one that perhaps should be passed along. A mother and her young daughter attended a dance recital Sunday afternoon in Glencoe. The dancers were pupils of a dancing school, and one number was danced by an instructor who is a Russian. Both the little girl and her mother were especially pleased with her number and the child inquired if she had been with the Russian ballet.

Child tale—Notes—Mystery.

"I think she is as good as yesterday," affirmed the child.

Further inquiry established that the child was thinking of Tamara, the first name of the lovely Toumanova of the Ballet Russe.

TUESDAY notes from the Monday Cuff. An apartment building going up at Sheridan road and Melrose has runways for dogs—a private one for each dog owning tenant. . . . A doll that is a copy of the child in Reynolds' "Age of Innocence," face, hair, dress, and pose, the work of a young Chicagoan, is attracting attention at the Woman's exchange. . . . The latest manicure is the wax manicure, in which the client's hand is dipped into a solution that leaves it covered by a white wax glove. The operator strips it back from each finger as she works. . . . One of the last of Mrs. Fred Harvey's friends to see her alive, before their plane crashed, killing her and Mr. Harvey, was Mrs. Howard Linn, who returned to America on the same boat with Mrs. Harvey. . . . There are so many things we liked in "At Home Abroad"—Miss Lillie ordering a dozen double damask dinner napkins—the handsome bed from which Mr. Gardiner emerges in the first scene, that folds up into two pieces of smart luggage—Mr. Minelli's exciting Jamaica sets and costumes as fantastically tropical as Jamaica itself; Mr. Gardiner's description of a wall paper frieze, Paul Haakon's bull fight number, and Herb Williams in the homesick clinic in Brussels. . . . A man in Grayville, Ill., who had a mania for saving newspapers died recently and the relative who settled his estate sold 3,200 pounds to the junk dealer, more than a ton of newspapers, literally. . . . Clara Laughlin, who will sail on the first eastbound trip of the Queen Mary, will gather material in Sweden before she returns for her forthcoming "So You're Going to Scandinavia!" . . . Frances Donovan is taking a year off from her job as English teacher in Calumet High school to write "The School Marm." . . . Margaret Ayer Barnes is working on a series of short stories. . . . Daniel Ericourt, the young French pianist who is playing in concert at the Studebaker May 5, is used to that gag about his name being "Beans." . . . More than one person who did not get his name upon introduction has wisecracked afterward that it sounded like beans [haricots] to him.

* *

WHICH brings to mind a favorite story about Beatrice Lillie she repeated a few evenings ago, upon request. Once upon arriving in Paris she telephoned a friend, and becoming as confused as she does when she orders a "dozen double damask dinner napkins," she told the butler who answered the telephone that it was "Lady Parle qui peel."

'Three Wise Fools' Is Hit at WPA Theater

"THREE WISE FOOLS."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The WPA theatrical organization at the Blackstone theater, which is approximately a middle-class stock company, seems to have struck a popular note in its revival of "Three Wise Fools," staged last night. The reaction of the audience was that of cash customers having a good time rather than of hangers-on of the federal relief services languidly looking at a free show.

This play is the sentimental stuff of 1918, when the drama was an art of simple-hearted entertainment and not a medium for propaganda regarding social and political reform. The performance was good; the plot frame-up of the three old bachelors who adopt a pretty girl and get shaken out of their ruts was in excellent working order; and the audience took to the show with relish. As a specimen of what the theater used to be before the world turned sour, "Three Wise Fools" gives a good account of itself.

The three old gentlemen, grouches at first, romanticists later, are well played by Oscar O'Shea [the banker], Otis Gordinier [the doctor], and Charles Lum [the judge]. The girl who brings affection and melodrama into their lives is acted by a new recruit in the company—Fanny Ellen Hogg, who is young and pretty. WPA theatricals thus far have been weak in the department of good looking girls; and Miss Hogg appears as if in answer to my silent prayers.

The next production of this company will be "Broken Dishes," a comedy by Martin Flavin, to be staged two weeks hence.

"Venus' Adonis," a comedy by Anson Van Alstyne, will receive its first acting by the Bell Players, employés of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week. The performances will be given at 311 West Washington street. The author is the son of Egbert Van Alstyne, Chicago composer, who wrote many of the popular songs of the past generation, including "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree."

"Boy Meets Girl" will end its engagement at the Harris theater on May 2, after a run of fifteen weeks. The company will then disband.

Good Morning!

It is a sincere and arresting tribute to the women of Russia, who took up arms and fought side by side with their men during the civil war of 1919, and whose unflagging devotion to an ideal had much to do with the establishment of the soviet union.

"Three Women," dedicated to the French author, Romain Rolland, "a great writer and a friend of the union," picks up its trio of heroines in 1914 during their bitter childhood in the slums of St. Petersburg just before the war.

The death of the mother of Asya from turpentine poisoning in a factory where a strike is on leaves the child alone in the world save for her small comrades.

She, the two other unfortunate little girls, and a boy, whose romance with Natasha later furnishes a grateful golden thread of romance through the shaded grays that compose most of the picture's weaving, try to eke out a living by singing in a café.

Here they meet two revolutionists whose influence turns the tide of their young lives. . . . [Some memorable scenes in that café.]

The production is rich in splendid characterizations. Not a poor actor in the cast and the "three women" are most sympathetically portrayed.

There is much stirring action, honest suspense and emotion.

There are many episodes when brevity would have been a relief to the onlooker. But, as a whole, the direction was masterly, and the picture is a vibrant and compelling one.

Well—I never felt so sorry for Boris Karloff in all my life—not even when he was Dr. Frankenstein's monster!

This trip racketeers frame him, the law electrocutes, unjustly—a scientist grabs him after the first volt has entered his body and brings him back to life—to wreak weird vengeance on his undoers—and then—but I reckon I'd better leave you in suspense as to the "then."

The story, while forced and unconvincing, is excellently acted, cunningly directed, and eerily staged. And it accomplishes its fell purpose of making you want to squeak—and disappear into the nearest mousehole.

See you tomorrow.

Neighbors of Kenilworth to Hold Handicraft Show

The onus of an annual business meeting is being removed by the Neighbors of Kenilworth from their final luncheon today in an ingenious fashion. Various hidden accomplishments of members are being brought to light in an exhibition of handicraft of all sorts—needlework, painting, lether, and metal work—that will add interest to the usual routine program of such meetings. The luncheon is being held at the Kenilworth club.

'La Traviata' Opens Stay of Gallo's Opera

Upholds Traditions of His Performances.

"LA TRAVIATA."

THE CAST.

Violetta	Lucille Meusel
Flora	Charlotte Bruno
Alfredo Germont	Dimitri Onofrei
Gastone	Francesco Curci
Giorgio Germont	Mostyn Thomas
Baron Doupohl	Fausto Bozza
Doctor Grenvil	Natale Cervi
Annina	Philine Falco
Conductor	Carlo Peroni

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The ill-starred Violetta went her troubled but tuneful way last night against the ironically gay backdrops of "La Traviata," for Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Opera company had chosen this time tried work to open a spring engagement in the Auditorium theater.

True to its tradition, the well routined group gave an adequate and entertaining performance. Mr. Gallo believes that the secret of a touring company's success lies in the determination not to overreach itself. He adheres strictly to his policy of limited repertoire, reliable and popular operas, and simple but effective presentation.

In Lucille Meusel the cast could boast a Violetta capable of giving some pointers here and there to many a prima donna of the stationary companies of the world. She sings with clarity and spirit, overacts a little, perhaps, through the force of her enthusiasm, and carries any scene in which she is involved to a high level of interest and vitality.

Of the two men who took the rôles of the junior and senior Germont, respectively, Dimitri Onofrei, cast as young Alfred, impressed the audience by the ease with which he produced his voice and its resulting roundness and fullness. Mostyn Thomas, singing Giorgio, made up in fervor and dignity what his tone occasionally lacked in smoothness of texture.

Carlo Peroni saw to it that the tempos moved long at a good clip and that the entire production had verve and disciplined energy. He did not quite succeed in getting the proper vigorous response from the chorus, but this failure may quite probably be due to the difficulty of hitting a proper balance the first night between the stage music and a partially strange orchestra.

The settings are bright, with old fashioned beauty about them that accords nicely with the thin scoring and the pleasantly stereotyped tunes.

The San Carlo Opera company remains in the Auditorium through Sunday, with a change of bill for each performance. Bourskaya is coming on from New York for Suzuki in Wednesday afternoon's "Butterfly" and the title rôle in Sunday night's "Carmen."

"Shvanda," the Czechoslovakian folk opera by Jaromir Weinberger, received its first Chicago performance [and its first performance anywhere in English] at Mandel hall last night. The University of Chicago Music society was in charge of the production.

A report comes to this desk that an enthusiastic capacity audience tendered Carl Bricken [the conductor] and his staf a huge ovation at the end of the first act. The principals were Paul Pence, Agatha Lewis, and Eugene Dressler. A difficult comedy part went to Winfred Stracke. The carefully planned stage settings of Vogelgesang pleased. Choreography was the responsibility of Marion van Tuyl.

"Shvanda" will be repeated Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

To honor two world famous composers who have recently died, Frederick Stock is revising the program of the Chicago Symphony orchestra's final concerts this Thursday and Friday and making room for Glazounow's "Le Printemps" and Respighi's "Pines of Rome." Neither of these works displaces the Brahms First Symphony originally scheduled. There will be excerpts from "Götterdämmerung" as well.

The Woman's Pageant of Progress has honored the Woman's Symphony orchestra of Chicago by inviting Ebba Sundstrom's musicians to play two concerts in the course of the week. One was booked for last night, the other for this coming Friday.

The golden horseshoe at the Auditorium was gay last night for the benefit performance of "La Traviata" under the auspices of the Church Mission of Help.

Almost every box and downstairs seat was taken, as Mrs. William A. Humphreys, the ticket chairman, pointed out. She had turned over her box to her son, William A. Humphreys Jr., who was host to Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, and Miss Marjorie Kimball.

Here Are Bags to Keep Tardy Folk on Time

Clock and Even an Umbrella Included.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Travelers who habitually try the tempers of their traveling companions by arriving at every destination or meeting place from five minutes to an hour late, can buy and carry some new handbags, absolutely guaranteed to keep them on time. These are large capacity affairs but designed in good smart outlines, then placed down in one outside corner are clocks easy to see even without the spectacles.

Also for the absent minded . . . the same bag carries as part of the equipment a very compact folding umbrella, fitting into the base of the bag, just as the Graf Zeppelin slides into a hangar especially designed for it. Inside the bag are all the extra pockets, slides, zippered compartments, a generous sized mirror, comb and coin purses. This practical, smart lether handbag isn't half as big as it sounds, and comes in swanky kidskin in black, navy, beige, or British tan, made with handles that can be folded down if you must clutch it under your arm.

Vanity is encouraged in some other new arrivals in the bag collection . . . envelopes, strap models and squares of colored kidskin [any color you may crave is available] with a piece of mirror imbedded in the side. The mirrors also come in squares, diamond shapes, or oblongs. Your monogram will be impressed upon the mirror free of charge if you wish, an idea that makes the combine very effective. Gray and the red lethers together with dull black kidskins are the smartest.

Every once in a while some designer comes across with a new stunt . . . Schiaparelli sends a neat little colored alligator "carry-all" and it's quite worth all the excitement. It's flat, about three-quarters to an inch thick, long in shape, and holds alligator inside cases for money, fags, matches, and all the necessary extras we all tote around the town with us. And a big see-everything mirror is fitted into the top lid. It comes in black, navy, red, and gray.

Her Husband's Past

By Elizabeth York Miller

SYNOPSIS.

Nell Martin meets and falls in love with Eric Cameron from London, an older divorced man, who is visiting in Wellsport. She ignores her parents' pleas to forget him and accept Dick Holmes, her childhood sweetheart.

INSTALMENT II.
A LOVESICK GIRL.

Nell and Eric exchanged glances, and unmistakably something vital passed between them. A thrill went over Nell and her lips quivered.

"I—I thought perhaps you didn't come out to see us again because of Dick," she said in a faltering voice.

Eric Cameron appeared to hesitate. He kept on looking at her, though. It seemed as if he couldn't tear his eyes away.

"I want to be honest with you," he said, "and it's not easy."

"Try——" Nell encouraged him. "I won't be offended whatever you say."

"But you might laugh at me."

"No—I promise I won't do that, either."

"Very well, then: I've been longing to see you again—every moment since the last time. When you came into the hotel just now I thought my heart would leap clean out of my buzzum. So there, girl, that's what you've done to me! It's a fact."

Nell averted her face and the flame of the blazing logs was reflected on her profile. Never had she looked more lovely.

"If you felt like that . . . ?"

"I did—I do. And even more so. It probably seems a strange reason for keeping away from you. But that young chap, Holmes——"

"If Dick has let you think I'm engaged to him, then he had no right to do so. I am not, and I never will be."

"But he wants to marry you."

Nell laughed in a constrained fashion.

"Even to oblige you, kind sir, I'm not going to marry Dick Holmes."

"Heaven forbid—I don't want you to marry him! He's a charming young man, but he's not good enough for you. I can't think of any man who is—nobody I know, anyway. Not even me."

The old waiter set tea before them and Nell's hand shook as she raised the cup to her lips.

She could not bear this another moment. Why couldn't she return Eric Cameron's badinage? She had had considerable practice, but all of a sudden her skill at flirtatious repartée seemed to have vanished.

He really was dangerous—a man whose lips could say one thing while his eyes said another. It looked as though she had allowed herself to lead him on to a point where she had lost control of the situation. She was just a lovesick girl and in another moment would be giving herself away.

She set down her cup and rose, with a quick impatient twist to her hat.

"I must be going now. I think the rain's nearly over."

"But you've only just come!" His voice sounded a note of dismay.

"I know, but——"

He was standing close to her now. She felt smothered, somehow. And then she actually was being smothered, with his arms around her and his lips pressing hers as though he would take her very breath, her very life.

When she could find the strength, she tried to push him away.

"O, it isn't fair!" she cried in an anguished whisper.

To her surprise, he released her instantly.

"I know it isn't," he said in an oddly shaken voice. "But I couldn't help myself. You see—I'm in love with you. I fell in love with you the very first moment I saw you. You'll say I hardly know you—but that isn't true at all. If I'd known you a hundred years it would be all the same. I love you more than I ever have loved any other woman on the face of this earth."

Nell's lips parted softly and she lifted her face to his. "I love you, too," she said.

"Compared to you, I'm an ageing gentleman," Eric Cameron said. "I'm thirty-eight and a bittock, if you want the horrid truth. That's why I'm feeling rather a cad at the moment. You're young, my darling, and I have so little to offer you."

He dropped down beside her and took her hand, raising it to his lips.

"I was weak in giving way to my feelings just now. If I love you as much as I protested, I'd give you up. I'd have bitten out my tongue sooner than let you know how I felt."

"But you do love me?"

"I'll say it all over again, if you're not careful."

"Then—what does anything else matter!" Nell exclaimed. "I'd rather marry a man of your age than any green boy, thank you! And I don't mind being poor. That's nothing at all."

It was getting dark before Nell started for home.

"I must have a serious talk with your father," Eric said anxiously, as he saw her into the car. "And there are a lot of things he won't like about me at all."

Nell's face, gleaming like a white flower in the darkness, bent down to him. He kissed her on the lips.

"You really must let it be my way," she replied. "I know dad better than you do. I'll send a note or telephone to the hotel when the first storm is over and it would be reasonably safe for you to come. But you must not come before you hear from me."

She must go now, but it was dreadful having to part from him.

A very different Nell Martin drove home from the one who had driven into Wellsport.

It was in the nature of a blow to her high spirits, however, when the lights of the farm came into view to see also the lights of Dick Holmes' car parked by the gate.

Nell entered the family sitting room to find trouble awaiting her, and it revealed at once that Dick had been telling tales.

"So that's why ye tuk my car without leave and druv' yerself into town," said Andrew Martin.

But Dick didn't care what she called him. He shrugged his shoulders.

"Nellie, dear——" Mrs. Martin began plaintively. "Don't you think it would have been more maidenly of you——"

Nell interrupted with a sharp little laugh.

"I do wish people would mind their own business. I mean you, Dick. What right have you to come out here behind my back, upsetting mums and dad?"

"He had every right," her father said harshly. "The man's a wrong 'un, like I knew he was at first. Dick's found out. His father left him a pot o' money that he ran through in no time. And he's been married and his wife had to divorce him."

"That's a lie, anyway. His wife is dead," Nell said hotly.

"Dead or alive it can't make no difference to you. You've finished with him, my girl. Here's where I put my foot down."

Film Stars Cap Teeth with Porcelain to Fool the Camera

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In one item, at least, all Hollywood stars present a uniform picture. It is in the teeth. A nose may turn up or down, an eye may turn in ever so slightly, a silhouette may project a few bones, and a Hollywood contract still may be possible, but if there's a tooth out of line, or one which casts a dusky shadow because of filling, you're checked off as a potential star until you can smile with a 100 per cent evenly matched row of pearls. Makeup and lighting can take care of a poor complexion. A lifeless hair color is easily rectified for screen purposes. But a tooth out of line or out of care blocks box office progress.

To meet this emergency there has grown up a school of dentistry sometimes referred to as Hollywood dentistry, and the process most often resorted to for the smile that wins on the screen is called "tooth turning." Why the name, we don't know, since it is more a process of tooth rebuilding. The tooth that happens to be out of line is ground down to an absolute minimum and then given a porcelain jacket in color and contour adapted to provide the perfect line.

The procedure was not born in Hollywood. It's been going on everywhere for years, but because the screen is more exacting in this one beauty item it has come to be associated with the general remodeling for picture presentation. In other quarters, a prefectly good, sound tooth, although it may be slightly out of line, rarely is subjected to the grinding and new porcelain capping.

There still seems to be doubt about the advisability of sacrificing a sound tooth for a porcelain one. But, as said, in Hollywood, where the camera flashes a dark shadow when there is any tooth deviation, the practice has become a common one. Among the stars who have had to sacrifice good teeth to the procedure are Loretta Young, Norma Shearer, and others. Fred Astaire's mouth, it is reported, had to undergo the dental operation for straightening.

A subterfuge often is resorted to when one tooth stands back a shade which, in certain lights, casts a shadow. A porcelain facing that fits the tooth is used, and these are attached temporarily. They have to be removed for eating purposes. These are bought by the dozen or by the gross.

BORDEN'S CHEESES

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE SIREN

Poor Chic Sale Thinks He's a Forgotten Man

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 20.—[Special.]—Chick Sale is beginning to feel a bit aggrieved. The rest of his family is becoming so prominent that, in spite of his years as vaudeville and film headliner and the sale of hundreds of thousands of his humorous pamphlets, he feels he is the least accredited of the Sales.

"More people in Hollywood know my sister Virginia than know me," he begins his plaint. "My daughter Mary went to New York, won a scholarship, and they put her in the Metropolitan ballet. My daughter Cherry is writing music in John Erskine's school in New York. My son Charles learned to fly an airplane while in Beverly Hills High school, and now he is up in Montana working as a cowboy and playing an accordion. Everybody thinks he is great.

"They think Mary and Cherry are great. But nobody in Hollywood stops me and tells me I'm great. I know it's probably because I have played so many characters with whiskers and creaky joints that people have got to thinking Chic Sale is some kind of a mummified yokel. But I'd like to get a little credit for being myself."

"Why don't you do something that will make people know you personally?" Mark Larkin interrupted to ask. "Well, sir, that's what I was thinking. To get ahead faster in the movies you got to have people recognize you. A fellow can't build up a big personal following if the fans don't know what his personality is, can he?"

This inquirer hazarded that his observation indicated a good deal more interest in and recognition of Mr. Sale's talents than the latter seemed to concede himself.

"Mebbe so," said Chic, "but I aim to play some movie rôles just the way I look. Bill Fields built up a big following by looking and acting like himself. There's others doing the same thing. Maybe they'll get used to me, too, and like me."

Having gotten this off his chest, the Urbana, Ill., wisecracker proceeded to demonstrate that his heart is in those chin whiskers that he derides in self-deprecation.

"The man who knew Lincoln," Sale proclaimed.

He sat down, a bit haltingly, in an old chair, which daughter Mary, 19, certainly will censor as soon as she gets back from the Metropolitan ballet, but which just fits the impersonations from which her dad derives so much fun, fame, and funds in the meantime. Speaking in the cracked voice of the man who knew Lincoln, the actor then amused himself and thrilled his visitors by giving a running comment on scrambled modern politics weighed in the words and wisdom of Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

"If you would only do that where enough voters could hear it," exclaimed one of his auditors at the last word, "you could help elect sensible and sincere men to office."

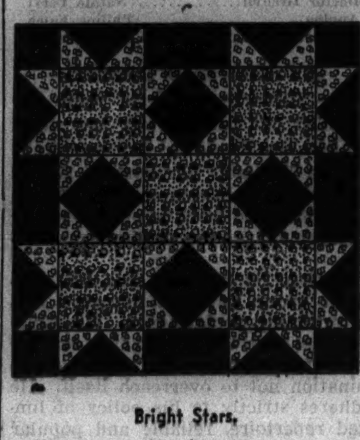
Sale hastily disclaimed any ambitions toward political crusading, but said:

"No one can weigh the words and speak aloud the phrases of Lincoln's address without gaining some ennobling new thought," he said.

After years of barnstorming in vaudeville—during some of which Mrs. Sale, [the former Marie Bishop] was with him—and campaigning in "Follies" and other Broadway hits, Sale has made a permanent home and headquarters in a white and green colonial type mansion on Canyon drive in Beverly Hills. There are his prized possessions including the trunk of regulation size that is not a trunk but a miraculous combination of portable cook stove, a kitchen cabinet, from which his colored boy daily served a hot meal at 5 p. m. all the years he was on tour, and "from which Mrs. Sale cooked the meals for the whole family while we were in New York for my run in 'Gay Paree.'"

Sale plans to divide his future between the movies and personal appearances, still doing some of the elderly and rural characterizations for which he is best known. But the movie contract now being dangled before him would satisfy the ambition to make fans recognize him and become aware of his personality.

Old Pieced Quilt Is Revived for a New Generation



Bright Stars.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

An old pieced pattern dating back to 1869 has been brought to life and introduced to the younger generation of quiltmakers who have received it with enthusiasm. "Bright Stars" is made of blue and white prints, and a dark blue plain material. This pattern is not as difficult to make as the usual run of star patterns, yet it is equally effective. The 30 pieced blocks required for the coverlet are surrounded by a five inch border and a half inch binding.

READ HOW SKINNY GAWKY GIRLS GAIN 10 TO 25 POUNDS THIS NEW QUICK WAY

Posed by professional models

SKINNY, friendless girls who never could gain an ounce can take new hope from the experience of thousands of others with this new scientific treatment that is sweeping the country. These others have gained 10 to 25 pounds of solid, naturally attractive flesh this new easy way—in just a few weeks!

What is more, this new discovery has given them naturally clear skin, freedom from indigestion and constipation, new pep.

Why it builds up so quickly

Scientists recently discovered that great numbers of people are thin and rundown for the single reason that they do not get enough digestion-strengthening Vitamin B and blood-enriching iron in their daily food. Now the richest known source of this marvelous body-building Vitamin B is cultured ale yeast. By a new process the finest imported cultured ale yeast is now concentrated 7 times—made 7 times more powerful. Then it is combined with 3 kinds of blood-building iron in little tablets known as Ironized Yeast tablets.

If you, too, need these vital elements to build you up, get these new "7-power" Ironized Yeast tablets from your druggist today. Then, day after day, watch flat chest develop and skinny limbs round out to natural attractiveness. Constipation and indigestion from the same cause vanish, skin clears to normal beauty—you're a new person.

Money-back guarantee

No matter how skinny and rundown you may be, try these new Ironized Yeast tablets just a short time, and note the marvelous change. See if they don't build you up in a few weeks, as they have thousands. If not delighted with the benefits of the very first package, money back instantly.

Special FREE offer!

To start you building up your health right away, we make this absolutely FREE offer. Purchase a package of Ironized Yeast tablets at once, cut out the seal on the box and mail it to us with a clipping of this offer. We will send you a fascinating new book on health, "New Facts About Your Body." Remember, results with the very first package—or money refunded. At all druggists. Ironized Yeast Co., Inc., Dept. Houghteling, and Mr. Houghteling, in Winnetka.

The Houghtelings returned only a week ago from Tryon, N. C. They are expecting Mr. Houghteling's sister and her husband, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Curtis, to visit them early next month. Dr. Curtis, who is associated with the Grenfell mission in Labrador, and his wife have been taking a year's leave from the mission. They spent three months in Europe and now are visiting in the east. As soon as the ice breaks, however, they are planning to return to Labrador, which means that they will be on their way north around the middle of May.

Two popular young couples will return from honeymoons in Hawaii next week. Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson Armour III., the former Jean Schweppe, who have been in Hawaii since early in March, are expected back in Lake Forest then, and Hugh McBirney Johnston and his bride, the former Deborah Butler, are arriving the end of the week.

Mrs. Johnston's parents, the Francis Peabody Butlers, and their younger daughter, Judy, are at home again from Florida.

The engagement of Miss May Stillwell, daughter of Addison Stillwell and the late Mrs. Charles Glidden Osborne of Marlow-on-Thames, England, to John Downey Jr. has been broken by mutual consent. Miss Stillwell has gone west to join her father and Mrs. Stillwell at Pebble Beach, Cal.

Vincent Garritys Leave Tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Garrity and her three children, who have been spending a week at the Sovereign hotel, plan to leave for their home in San Francisco tomorrow. Mrs. Garrity is the former Mrs. Gardiner Hammond.

Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin left Thursday by motor for Washington, D. C., and Virginia, accompanied by her guest, Miss Gisela Binz of Berlin, who will sail for Germany tomorrow. After seeing Miss Binz off Mrs. Junkin will spend a month in Washington at the Shoreham before returning to Chicago.

Mrs. William A. Little [Dorothy Dickinson] has gone to New York to meet her mother and father, the Francis R. Dickinsons, who are landing today after a trip to Guatemala and Mexico. The three will return to Chicago on Thursday.

Stirling Dickinson, Mrs. Little's author-traveler brother, is in Rio de Janeiro, according to the last letters Mrs. Little and Mrs. Gilbert H. Robinson [Alice May Dickinson] have received. He and his traveling companion, Heath Bowman, are not expected to return until late summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Pirie Jr. had as their guests for luncheon on Sunday her uncle and aunt, the Zlatko Balakovics [Joyce Borden], who were in Chicago for a day. The Balakovics are on their way to Seattle, where they plan to charter a boat and spend the summer cruising around Alaska.

Miss Jean Armstrong does not remain long at home these days, for having arrived only at Easter from a winter in Honolulu and California, she left Winnetka again yesterday for Ann Arbor, Mich., where she will spend the next two months keeping house for her brother, Frank H. Armstrong II. Young Mr. Armstrong is in his final term at the University of Michigan law school.

White Elephant Shop Holds Style Show Today.

Every one arriving at the Casino this afternoon to attend the White Elephant Rummage shop's fashion show and tea will be sure to have a bundle under her arm to give to the shop to be sold later. The fashion show promises to be especially gay and unusual, for all of the clothes shown come from the stock at the shop, which means that many a dowager and young matron will see a castoff suit or frock being modeled by one of a dozen pretty young women, who will act as mannequins.

Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., the former Betty Offield, whose hours of volunteer work at the shop are second only to those she spends at the Children's Memorial hospital, to which the shop contributes all profits, is in charge of the fashion show.

Mrs. Sullivan will be busier than usual today, for in the morning she will be at the Fortnightly club to assist with a lecture Mrs. William B. Baker is giving on "Up-to-the-Minute Bidding" as the first of a series of three lectures that will benefit the Infant Welfare society.

Mrs. Lincoln S. Harris is president of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Edward K. Welles of the board of the Infant Welfare society and Mrs. Elias Lyman Jr. and Mrs. John M. Scott of the Women's auxiliary will be hostesses today at a luncheon at the Woman's Athletic club. Every center is having a benefit or a campaign of some sort this spring to raise its quota of the funds necessary to carry on Infant Welfare work in Chicago, and the presidents and publicity chairmen of every center will be at today's luncheon to make their reports.

The Vocational Society for Shut-Ins will receive $2,300 as the proceeds of the recent benefit the society gave at Huyler's in the Palmolive building. Mrs. Royden J. Keith and Mrs. Walter A. Ross were in charge of the benefit.

Miss Mary West will tell about her experiences in Russia last summer at a meeting of Le Cercle Français this afternoon at its quarters in the Fine Arts building. Miss Marjorie Westcott will sing, and there will be a tea and reception for Mrs. Winfield P. Brainerd, the new president, and members of her board.

Lecture on Trees.

James Davey, tree surgeon and vice president of the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery, will give his illustrated lecture on "A Pilgrimage to God's First Temples" this afternoon in the school of speech auditorium at Northwestern university.

HAROLD TEEN—THE LOWDOWN ON LULU

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Hers is the ideal complexion, fine of texture and youthfully firm, kept that way by faithful use of a skin tonic that suits her needs.

Let's talk about skin tonics and sort of get things straightened out. We find that a lot of women never even think of using one and that others use them incorrectly or use the wrong kind. Only a few seem to be completely aware of the part the right one, used regularly, can play in keeping that young and healthy complexion.

First, there are the mild sort, usually called tonics or fresheners. These aren't very stimulating, but used after cream they do close the pores and they remove the last vestiges of cream. These are to be used on the normal or dry skin.

If the skin is excessively dry it may be that even these mildly alcoholic preparations will be too much for it. In that case they can be diluated with cold water or applied with cotton pads wrung out in water. In any case they serve the good purpose of stimulating slightly—and it's a mistake to believe that dry skins don't need stimulation. Fundamentally, it's what they do need.

But we must admit that skin tonics and astringents are of more interest to the woman with oily skin, she who must constantly wage war on gasping pores and an excessive flow of oil. For her, the use of an asringent is quite important. The strength of it will depend pretty much on her own skin—and it's worth her while to experiment until she finds one that's exactly right.

If the skin is coarse as well as oily she can use a much stronger one than her thin skinned sisters. Use of an astringent will control the flow of oil and keep the pores from yawning. In so doing it can actually be considered a youth preserver—an aid to good contour. The skin will look fresher, too, and take more kindly to powder after the use of an astringent.

Science Given New Emphasis in Toys for 1937

New York, April 20.—(AP)—American toymakers today placed on exhibit a Christmas preview of their effort to keep up with the march of young America.

There are all the old stand-bys—dolls and miniature household utensils for the girls and mechanical toys and riding devices for the boys.

The main emphasis, however, is on carefully worked out equipment with which youngsters may imitate the more serious activities of their elders or may be taught by play many of the basic principles of science and industry.

Railroad equipment, which last year imitated the newer streamlined trains, will turn next Christmas to the foreign field, with careful copies of European types of trains, stations and even little figures of persons, scaled to the size of the trains and wearing appropriate national costumes.

There is a complete battle fleet in which the battleships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines are of correct size with relation to each other. A similar merchant fleet presents modern ocean liners in proper proportions.

The junior chemist is given a new approach to the science through play. He is led to the threshold of industrial chemistry by a series of experiments which are related to the substances normally encountered in the home.

The boy electrician now is offered such devices as the photo-electric cell that enables him to start and stop equipment and ring bells by light-beam control.

Another set can be assembled to provide nearly all of the optometric equipment from microscopes and telescopes to cameras and amounts almost to a primary course in light physics. Others permit construction of scale models of automobiles and airplanes, including all-metal ships which will fly under their own power.

But, while children are demanding closer approach in toys to adult pursuits, adults are turning more generally to play. Sale of adult games is reported as up 100 per cent for the first quarter of 1936 over the corresponding period in 1935.

Here, too, however, a note of realism is demanded with the more popular games based on such activities as big business, real estate and financial deals or elections.

PASADENA, CALIFORNIA

Camay's perfect skin care is no news to me. I found, long ago, that Camay's gentle, mild cleansing is the way to beauty.

Sincerely,

(Signed) JANET BALL

(Mrs. Robert J. Ball)

January 3, 1936

It isn't enough for Janet Ball to be one of the nicest persons in all California. In addition to that pleasant truth, she's a very decorative person, with eyes of a deep, delphinium blue—and a warm, peach-tinted skin that's as smooth as a magnolia petal. "And there," she says frankly, "you'll recognize Camay's work."

You'll recognize the Camay touch on your own skin, too, surprisingly soon after your first trial. It's a touch that brings smoothness, suppleness, a new and appealing beauty. Smooth on that rich lather. Feel its tiny, active bubbles reaching way down to cleanse your skin—to bring back youthful softness.

And do you know why Camay works such complexion miracles? Well, here's probably one of the most important reasons: It's milder. Actually, Camay has been tested against the leading beauty soaps—not only in laboratories—but on women's skin. Time after time, the result was the same—Camay was the mildest of them all—definitely, provably milder!

You couldn't pick a better day than today to begin with Camay. There should be at least a half-dozen cakes in your home by this evening, so order them now and you'll soon see an improvement in your skin. Camay's price is very low!

LISTEN IN: "Forever Young," Camay's great new show. Every day, Monday through Friday, at 3:00 P.M., E.S.T., WEAF and N.B.C. Red Network. See your newspaper for exact time in your locality.

POLISH CABINET SHAKEUP LOOMS; SEE NEW PREMIER

Pilsudski Forces Fight to Retain Power.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, April 20.—Important changes in the Polish government, involving a compromise between the Pilsudski Legionnaires and Vincent Witos, leader of the Peasant party, Ignace Paderewski, famous pianist, Gen. Josef Haller and Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski, leaders of the National Democratic party, were discussed in Warsaw today.

The action of the censor in confiscating Sunday's edition of the official government newspaper, Gazeta Polska, for the first time in its history, created a sensation. The Gazeta Polska, which is edited by Col. Ignace Matuszewski, one of the most important leaders of the older Pilsudski Legionnaires, has been regarded as the official mouthpiece of the government since the late Dictator Josef Pilsudski seized power ten years ago.

Attacks Shooting by Police.

Matuszewski himself wrote the article which aroused the censors. He condemned the government's action in permitting the police to shoot upon workers' demonstrations in Cracow, Lodz, Czestochowa and Lwow where a total of 60 lives were lost. He suggested the government, which is now composed of the youthful radical group of Legionnaires, should resign.

Because of the critical situation Premier Marjan Zyndram-Koscialkowski yesterday canceled a visit to Budapest where Premier Julius Goemboes expected him today.

Premier Koscialkowski is negotiating with the older faction of Legionnaires. He is seeking to form a compromise cabinet and is ignoring the opposition leaders who are now openly demanding a voice in Polish affairs.

Among the men mentioned as having a chance at the premiership are: Casimir Bartel, first premier under the Pilsudski dictatorship; Gen. Casimir Sosnowski and Gen. Sikorski.

Bitter enmity exists between the Legionnaires and the opposition. The conflicts between the Legionnaires themselves, which have brought the nation to the verge of serious internal disturbances, and the unexpected strength of the communist party, which is receiving large funds from Moscow to foment disorders, have complicated the discussion.

Call General Strike.

LWOW, Poland, April 20.—(AP)—A general 24 hour strike was proclaimed by workers in this industrial center of Poland today in protest against police use of firearms during demonstrations last Thursday in which 16 persons died.

FATHER OF BOY, 3, IS INDICTED ON CHARGE OF GIRL, 4

Three indictments were voted yesterday by the grand jury against Paul Diekelman, 30 years old, 1834 Melrose street, a registered pharmacist, who is charged with kidnaping and maltreating a 4 year old girl. The child appeared before the grand jury and after telling her story the jurors ordered Assistant State's Attorney Richard Devine to draw up the bills immediately so they could be returned before Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle.

The grand jurors later appeared before the judge to follow the action for speedy justice in the case. Diekelman told the judge he had no funds to employ an attorney and Public Defender Bachrach was appointed to represent him. His arraignment was set for tomorrow.

According to Prosecutor Devine Diekelman lured the child from in front of her home to his own home and there mistreated her. One of the indictments charge Diekelman with kidnaping and under this charge he could be sentenced to any term of imprisonment up to 199 years. He is the father of a 3 year old boy. He is held in jail under $35,000 bond.

GANG HOLDS UP BANK; KIDNAPS FOUR OFFICIALS

Sioux City, Ia., April 20.—[Special.]—A gang of four bandits held up the Morningside State bank here today, kidnaped four bank officials and employés and escaped with about $1,600. The four kidnaped were released unharmed a mile from the scene of the robbery.

Mrs. Rose Bagley, a teller, apparently unnoticed when she ducked under a counter as the gang entered, was left in the bank. She said she attempted to release the tear gas tanks with which the bank is equipped, but the release jammed and the apparatus failed to work.

The robbers fled in an automobile bearing Indiana license plates No. 455-087. The car was reported heading southeast on highway 141. Several police squad cars and an automobile bearing five deputy sherifs were in pursuit.

The robbery was the first in the state this year.

CHICAGO'S YOUTH WEEK PROGRAMS WILL OPEN TODAY

Youth week, devoted to the activities and interests of young people, will open in Chicago today with programs and exhibits in the schools. A feature of the week will be the tenth annual civic assembly at the Union League club Thursday noon. Scholarships to Northwestern university and the University of Chicago will be awarded to two students from each of the public high schools and colleges.

Another program directed by young people, the annual Clean-up, Paint-up, Light-up campaign of the Association of Commerce, opened yesterday. A parade by students of Calumet High school, St. Sabina and St. Killian parochial schools, and Kelly High school will feature that program today.

TRIBUNE GOLF SCHOOL OPENS TONIGHT ON 14 COURSES

THE GUMPS—MUM'S THE WORD

TOURNEY STARS TO GIVE WOMEN FIRST LESSON

Enrollment Passes 30,000.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Fore!

The fourth annual free golf school of THE TRIBUNE, which in three years has grown to be the largest system of group instruction in the history of the game, opens tonight on four courses of the Chicago park district—Jackson, Columbus, Diversey in Lincoln, and Marquette—and on ten courses of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association.

The rapid growth of THE TRIBUNE school in its first three years, during which it enlisted more than 60,000 pupils, is indicated in the enrollment of the present school, first announced only eight days ago. Applications from every part of the Chicago district brought the 1936 enrollment to more than 30,000 by yesterday, with every indication that within its first week more than 35,000 men, women and children interested in learning the fundamentals of the game will take the initial lesson.

Fundamentals Are Taught.

For three years THE TRIBUNE has been a pioneer in group instruction, using the courses of the Daily Fee association. Within that time national golf organizations have pushed the idea of teaching thousands the simple points of a game which probably draws more interest than any sport being played. In addition, clubs, professionals, schools and municipal recreational centers in thirty cities have written THE TRIBUNE for information on conducting similar classes since it began.

The main purpose of THE TRIBUNE in organizing the school three years ago was to acquaint beginners in the game with such first principles as grip, stance and swing at no cost whatsoever to themselves. The timid duffer who feared the first tee, the skeptic who felt that the game was too complex, and the citizen who could not afford private instruction or membership in a private club—these were the potential golfers at whom the curriculum was directed, and its instructors have never deviated from that original motive of making the mechanics of golf as simple as possible to the true novice. They have succeeded so well that many private club players have profited by a visit to a TRIBUNE class.

Out of Elementary Stage.

This year, with the donation of four courses by the Chicago park district, officials of the school feel that it has gone beyond the elementary stage, and now can verily be called a university of the game. In addition, its faculty now lists several members of the Illinois section of the National P. G. A., including tournament stars and instructors rated by their brethren as the ablest single unit in the P. G. A.

The rules of the school are simple. Three lessons will be given, with a fourth and final summing up of all of the points in the classes scheduled for a central location to be announced later. There will be two lessons each of the first three weeks, one for women and girls on Tuesdays, and one for men and boys on Thursdays. Each class will start at 7 p. m., and every pupil is urged to be present at least 15 minutes before that time. Stories of the progress of the school will appear in THE TRIBUNE daily until its conclusion.

Jacobs Picks New York for Louis Fight

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, the man who was, and Joe Louis, who would be heavyweight champion of the world, will fight fifteen rounds in the Yankee stadium, Thursday night, June 18.

After days of apparent indecision, Promoter Mike Jacobs announced definitly today the bout would be held in the enlarged stadium and that he was calling off all negotiations aimed at transferring the match to some other city, Philadelphia, San Diego, Cal., and Cleveland among others.

Jacobs predicted the bout would gross $1,500,000 and draw aggregate attendance of better than 90,000.

Construction of additional seating facilities designed to provide accommodations for crowds of 100,000 for boxing already is under way at the stadium. Jacobs said, however, that a bowl would be erected within the stadium so that except for the press ringside section all seats would be elevated.

Jacobs timed his announcement to coincide with the arrival of Schmeling from Germany on the Bremen tomorrow. Louis will arrive from the midwest on Wednesday.

Fight Decisions

At Marigold Gardens—Geno Salvatore beat Jackie Sharkey [8]; Harold Brown beat Tommy Howell [6]; George Dungey beat Wally Walker [4]; Sammy Verse beat Billy Webster [4]; Ray Drake beat Mickey O'Shea [4].

At New York—Frankie Klick beat Ralph Hurtado [10].

At Holyoke, Mass.—Roger Bernard beat Tommy Rawson [10].

BOOKIES LOSE DERBY BUSINESS BY CUTTING ODDS

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 20.—Regret was stalking about the grounds at Churchill Downs this morning as the place hummed with increasing Derby training activity.

It was not the ghost of the horse Regret, first and only filly that has ever won the derby that was stalking around but a real flesh and blood regret, spread all over the countenance of one who has operated a future book on the Derby this year.

"Sour Puss" doesn't adequately describe his facial expression. Misery oozed from every pore. Later on in the day he broke down and confessed that he was one of the group who had chopped the head off the golden goose.

Bookie Tells of Mistake.

"Because we got too hungry and our itching palms advanced to a stage of positive eczema," he whimpered, "we have come up to this 62d Derby on which undoubtedly more money is going to be bet than on any Derby since 1929 and we find that few customers have called around at our store to make an investment."

Tears of suppressed greed rolled down his cheeks as he thought of all the money he might have taken in had he been willing to take a gamble and laid odds that were a bit more liberal.

Here was a bookmaker actually crying, but don't cheer yet, boys, the poor devil may be at the bottom of the Ohio river before the end of another day.

Odds Cut Too Short.

"Think of what we have done," he groaned. "We've ruined our own business by misjudging the horse playing public. We thought the players were suckers but we're the saps. More than a quarter of a million dollars has been wagered in other years in the future books on a Kentucky Derby. I don't think there's been $50,000 bet this year. How will our boys make Saratoga in August and winter in Florida on that kind of money? We'll be paupers and that's a fact."

Then he pointed out the mistakes that have been made. Never at any time during the winter has a customer been able to get odds of better than 5 to 2 against Brevity for any sizeable wager. Against Hollyrood the paltry odds of 7 to 2 prevailed. It was a certainty all along that if both these colts got to the post the odds against each on Derby day would be anywhere from 8 to 5 to 11 to 5. So why take a chance of betting on a horse that may not run when

Brutto Eyes Olympic Trip and U. S. Golden Gloves Title

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Mickey Franklin Brutto, 115 pound boxing champion of the National Collegiate Athletic association, a sophomore at the University of West Virginia, wishes to deal a hand in the National Golden Gloves tournament May 7 and 8 at the International Amphitheater. Mickey Brutto majors in romance languages at Morgantown, but these classical studies apparently haven't prevented him from mastering the science of boxing.

Brutto's record this year was remarkable. Not only was he undefeated, but he climaxed the year by whipping Rus Criswell, captain of the Penn State college team, for the national collegiate championship. Criswell had won the Eastern Intercollegiate boxing title for three successive years. Many of the observers at the collegiate tournament at the University of Virginia thought he would whip Brutto easily.

Brown, Joyce His Foes.

In A. A. U. and Olympic boxing, the flyweight class is 112 pounds. The colleges start their weight classifications at 115 pounds and skip to 125 pounds, the featherweight class. In all probability, Brutto will fight in the 118 pound division in the National Golden Gloves tournament, in which the United States Olympic team will be selected. The tournament will bring him into competition with Johnny Brown, Chicago's Golden Gloves champion and an intercity victor this year in Madison Square Garden against New York.

William Joyce of Gary, Ind., also a member of Chicago's intercity squad, is the National A. A. U. champion in this division. Morris Parker of Newark, N. J., Clifford Red Elk of the Chilocco Indian school, Chilocco, Okla., and Lupe Cordoza of Pomona, Cal., also qualified for the Chicago meet with Joyce in the National A. A. U. tournament. Criswell will be in the National Golden Gloves tournament May 7, seeking an Olympic berth, but again it is not definite whether he will fight in the 112 or the 118 pound class.

Starts as Prep.

Brutto graduated from Rowlesburg, W. Va., High school in 1934 and entered the University of West Virginia that fall. He became interested in boxing while in high school. As a freshman at West Virginia he won three dual meets. This year, as a member of the varsity, he won decisions from opponents at Carnegie Tech, Duke university, Washington and Jefferson, and Kentucky, and knocked out his opponents from Bucknell, Pittsburgh, Miami, and Temple. He won two decisions in the National Collegiate tournament. His first victory was over Joe Gersack of Louisiana State university. The second brought him the title.

West Virginia won the eastern conference boxing title in the tournament at Pittsburgh, but Brutto, unable to make weight, did not compete. This was the Mountaineers' fourth successive team title. That Brutto didn't fight in this tournament indicates he will compete in the 118 pound class in the National Golden Gloves meet.

Brutto not only is a boxer but he can hit hard with either hand. He is an Italian, as is Johnny Brown, Chicago's Golden Gloves champion, and Patsy Urso, who will represent Detroit in the Olympic bouts. He is not interested in any other sport.

BERLIN OR BUST!

That's the goal of 90 of the finest amateur fighters in the United States. But first they must pass the severest test of their careers in Chicago, where the National Golden Gloves championships will be decided. Winners in this tournament will represent America in the Olympic games.

Leading fighters from the Amateur Athletic Union, National collegiate, Army and Navy and Golden Gloves tournaments will meet at the International amphitheater May 7 and 8. The admission prices are 55 cents, $1.10, and $1.65.

The 16 survivors in this tournament meet at the Chicago Stadium May 20 for the championships and the trip to Berlin. Admission prices are 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, and $3.30. All seats, both for preliminaries and finals, are reserved.

PIRATES' 4 RUN ATTACK IN NINTH TURNS BACK CUBS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 20.—The Roy Henshaw jinx which heaped agony on the Pirates last season was knocked out today by one dramatic swing of a bat manipulated by Gus Suhr. With two out and two on in the ninth he hit a homer to round out a four run blast. That was all that was needed. The rousing four run finish flattened the champion Cubs, 9 to 8, dazing them to such extent that they remained on the field for several minutes, not knowing the show was over.

As part of the setting for their last minute uprising, the Pirates made good use of Bill Jurges as well as tiny Lefty Henshaw, who beat them in seven of eight attempts last season. The usually brilliant shortstop, who earlier in the struggle had chased away trouble for his pitching companion with a dazzling fielding play, mussed up a grounder with none out in the concluding inning. The winning parade formed immediately.

Jurges Errs on Grounder.

Jurges committed his costly blunder on a grounder aimed in his direction by Johnny Dickshot, who led off in the ninth as pinch man for Bill Swift, the third Pirate pitcher to see action. Jensen, a left-handed hitter, singled to center. Paul Waner, another left handed swinger, popped foul to Hack. When Bud Hafey, right-handed ex-White Sox rookie, singled to center to score Dickshot there was no evidence of alarm among the Cubs. When the dangerous Arky Vaughan hoisted a popup which Hack also handled the champions naturally thought the worst was over.

Suhr stepped up ignoring a pitch that Umpire Charley Moran thought was a strike. The next was so wide that even Uncle Charley noted it was a ball. The next was one of Henshaw's slow round house curves in which he specializes. It came in letter high, a bit inside and Suhr, a left handed batter, had it timed to perfection. He swung and the ball arched beautifully into the second deck of the right field pavilion. Jensen ran home. So did Hafey. Finally came Suhr and that was the finish.

Cubs Pile Up Six Run Lead.

Suhr's homer was doubly annoying, since the Cubs had been led to believe that everything was set for their rise above the .500 percentage mark. They stepped out at the start and piled up a lead rightfully considered safe from attack. In less than three innings, helped considerably by errors, they gained a six run advantage in the course of which Cy Blanton had to retire. After that they scored one run off Swift on an error and

AL GAINER STOPS GEORGE NICHOLS IN NINTH ROUND

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 20.—(AP)—Al Gainer of New Haven moved another notch forward in the light heavyweight division tonight scoring a technical knockout over George Nichols of Buffalo. Nichols, a former champion who only two weeks ago held Champion John Henry Lewis to a draw, was unable to answer the bell for the ninth round. Gainer weighed 169 pounds and Nichols 170.

KENNEDY HOLDS INDIANS TO 3 SINGLES, HOMER

Chicagoans Regain First Place.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cleveland Indians yesterday found Vernon Kennedy in a much more generous mood than he was the last time they faced him, on Aug. 31, 1935. On that day, you remember, Vern didn't give up a hit. Yesterday he allowed four as the White Sox were about the business of licking the Indians in the series opener, 5 to 1.

The outcome not only was a fine season start for Kennedy, who had many discouraging moments after his no-hitter last season, but it placed the White Sox back at the top of the American league standings after a one day absence.

Here's Real Pitching.

Kennedy did not allow a runner to reach first until Pitcher Oral Hildebrand, losing pitcher and ninth batsman, singled. The second hit was Hal Trosky's third homer of the year, with which he led off the fifth inning. Hit No. 3, a hit and run single through the second base position by Pytlak, also came in the fifth. The other hit was a single with which Knickerbocker, who struck out his first two trips to the plate, opened the sixth.

The Sox made only four hits off Hildebrand in the first six innings, added one in the seventh, and blasted out two doubles and a single in the course of a three run demonstration in the eighth. They made enough runs to win in the second inning on Appling's single, a bang in the torso for Piet by one of Hildebrand's pitches, Trosky's error on Dykes' sacrifice, which filled the bases with none out, a fly by Kennedy, and a single by Radcliff.

Turn on the Power.

Feeling, perhaps, that this second inning production was a bit fuzzy, the Sox launched a genuine power attack in the eighth. Mike Kreevich led off with his second hit, a double, and scored on a single by Washington. Piet walked, then Dykes came through with his second successive double to score Washington and Piet.

The productive second got under way with Appling's single to right. Piet was hit by a pitched ball and the bases were filled when Trosky fumbled Dykes' sacrifice. The runners held their bases while Sewell flied to Averill, but Appling scored on Kennedy's fly to Vosmik. Radcliff singled to left, Piet scoring and Dykes reaching third. Pytlak's throw to Hughes to break up a double steal was high and wide and if Rip hadn't forgotten about the slide he could have stolen second. As it was he was tagged out by Hughes before Dykes could get started toward home.

Kreevich led off the third with a single to left and took second on a passed ball. Mike moved to third on Haas' sacrifice, but was doubled at the plate on Washington's short fly to Vosmik.

Kennedy Starts Well.

In the meantime, Kennedy was making it tough for the Indians. In the first inning Knickerbocker was called out on strikes, Hughes tapped to Kennedy and Averill flied to Kreevich. In the second inning Piet threw out Vosmik, Trosky fanned, and Piet threw out Hale. In the third inning Campbell flied to Radcliff and Appling threw out Pytlak. Hildebrand then blasted Kennedy's dreams of another no hit game, if he had any, by singling to right. The inning ended when Knickerbocker struck out for the second time.

The Indians' fourth was brief, indeed. Hughes fanned and Sewell

Oulmet Heads Youngest U. S. Team.

New York, April 20.—(AP)—The United States will defend the Walker cup, prized team trophy of amateur golf, against Great Britain's challenge this summer with one of the youngest squads in the history of the competition.

The personnel of the 1936 squad, announced today by the United States Golf association, includes six players selected for the first time. Five others, with at least one international trophy competition behind them, were named to the squad which will oppose the British at Pine Valley in Clementon, N. J., Sept. 2 and 3.

Ouimet Is Captain.

The team again will be captained by Francis Ouimet of Boston, veteran of the first eight matches of the series started in 1922. Ouimet served in a like capacity two years ago when the contests were played at St. Andrews. Whether Ouimet will play or function as advisory head is up to himself, U. S. G. A. officials said.

The other members are George Dunlap Jr. and George Voigt of New York, Albert [Scotty] Campbell and Harry Givan of Seattle; Reynolds Smith of Dallas, Tex.; Ed White of Bonham, Tex.; Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, Walter Emery of Oklahoma City, and Charley Yates of Atlanta.

Besides Ouimet, Dunlap, Voigt, Goodman, and Fischer have been members of previous teams. Voigt played in 1930-'32, Dunlap 1932-'34, and Goodman, the 1933 national amateur champion, and Fischer in 1934.

Emery Presses Little.

Emery clinched a berth last September when he pressed Lawson Little in the final round of the national amateur championship at Cleveland. Beaten 4 and 2, Emery carried the fight to Little all the way and succumbed only when the husky Californian sealed the match with a birdie and an eagle on the last two holes. Since Little turned professional a fortnight ago some experts have labeled Emery his most likely successor as amateur champion.

Making a comeback last year, Voigt reached the quarter-finals of the national amateur before suffering elimination at the hands of Little. Givan, a long hitter from the tees and holder of the Pacific northwest title, was put out in the fourth round at Cleveland by Jack Munger in a nineteen hole battle.

Campbell did not survive the first round of the 1935 national, but he was chosen on his record of two triumphs in the Canadian amateur championship and because he paced more than 900 entrants in the amateur qualifying trials last August.

Yates Only Southerner.

Smith and White passed out of the championship contention in the second round. Smith won four overtime matches in the 1934 tournament when he was beaten in the semifinal by a fellow townsman, Dave [Spec] Goldman. White, 1935 intercollegiate ruler, was beaten in the second round last year by Goodman.

The south's lone representative, Yates, was the collegiate champion two years ago and last year won the western amateur title. The selection of Yates over Freddie Haas of New Orleans occasioned some surprise. Haas went to the quarter-finals at Cleveland, while Yates was disposed of in the second round by John Nash of London, Ont., who later was one of Haas' victims.

SALVATORE WINS FROM SHARKEY IN 8 ROUND BOUT

Former sectional Golden Gloves champions won four of the five bouts held at Marigold Gardens last night.

Geno Salvatore, ex-Streator Golden Gloves titleholder, 135½ pounds, defeated Jackie Sharkey, Minneapolis, also 135½, in the eight round headliner.

Harold Brown, west side, 138½; George Dungey, Bloomington, Ill., 145, and Sammy Verse, Omaha, 135, were the other Golden Gloves sectional champions who scored victories.

Brown recorded his fourteenth straight triumph by beating Tommy Howell, 141, in the six round semifinal. Dungey's victory, his tenth in a row, was registered over Wally Walker, Milwaukee, 146, in four rounds. Verse whipped Billy Webster, another Milwaukee fighter, 132½, in four rounds.

Ray Drake, south side, 147½, defeated Mickey O'Shea, north side, 148½, at four rounds.

The Howell-Brown bout was one of the best held at Marigold this season. It was a slugging match throughout, with first one and then the other holding the upper hand. A no count knockdown in the final round was Brown's margin of victory.

It was the first time Howell, a Danville, Ill., Golden Gloves alumnus, was beaten in seventeen professional appearances.

INDIAN BROOM OFF FOR DERBY IN SPECIAL CAR

The pride of California, who ran the mile and a furlong in 1:47 3-5 April 11 at Tanforan, left in a special car.

The son of Brooms out of Kawita was accompanied by Trainer Derrill Cannon, Jocky George Burns, who will ride him in the Derby, and Kenneth Hoagland, special guard. Special feed, California oats and hay, and distilled water were stored in the car.

Cannon, trainer for Maj. A. C. Taylof of Vancouver, B. C., left this confident departing message: "Indian Broom in fight."

Tribune Golf Lessons Will Start Tonight

tonight's first lesson is asked to bring a wooden club, a driver, brassie, or spoon. If you do not own one, borrow one. Men and boy pupils are requested to do likewise for their first lesson on Thursday night.

Before the school closes its pupils will have been taught the rudiments of the game by a number of its leading professors, and will have seen demonstrations of shots by the game's ablest money players.

Arrangements have been made so that the four teachers in charge at the park courses will be able to reach every pupil no matter how many thousands may appear. The park district has erected platforms from which microphones and loud speakers supplied by THE TRIBUNE will be suspended. While the master teachers are lecturing, other professionals will walk through the classes, giving individual suggestions.

The list of courses at which the lessons will be given follows:

Chicago Park District Courses.

Jackson—63d street and Stony Island avenue.

Marquette—Marquette road and Kedzie avenue.

Chicago Daily Fee Association Courses.

ILLINI BASEBALL TEAM WILL MEET MAROONS TODAY

The University of Illinois baseball team, which tied with Chicago for second place in the Big Ten last year, will meet the Maroons at the Midway today at 3 p. m.

Both teams have defeated Purdue within the last week. Chicago beat the Boilermakers, 22 to 16, and Illinois won, 3 to 1.

Meet Members of Tribune Golf School Faculty

The list of professionals who will appear at the larger courses during this week's two lessons of the fourth annual free golf school of THE TRIBUNE follows:

JACKSON PARK—Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley; Matt Matteson of Ridge; Jimmy Noonan of Burnham Woods, and Wally Apel of Ravisloe, instructors, with Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, as demonstrator tonight. Horton Smith of Oak Park will give an exhibition Thursday night, and Eddie Garre of La Grange will assist as instructor.

COLUMBUS PARK—Lew Waldron of Mohawk, instructor, with Tony Penna of Itasca as demonstrator. Waldron will be assisted by Ren Smith and Harold Beers of Oak Park; Bert Wild of Westward-Ho and Herb Johnson and Al Husne of Butterfield; Harry Cooper of Glen Oak will give an exhibition on Thursday night. Tommy Armour of Medinah will appear the following week.

DIVERSEY [Lincoln park]—Jock Anderson of Techny Fields; Packey Walsh and Frank Crowe of Bryn Mawr; Sam Bernardi of Briergate, and Dave Cunningham of North Shore, instructors. Johnny Revolta of Evanston, national professional and western open champion, will give tonight's exhibition.

MARQUETTE—Joe Jemsek of Cog-Hill will be in charge of the class and will give an exhibition. He will be assisted by Don McCracken of Big Run, Victor Soltz of Southmoor, and Wally Reich of Cog-Hill.

BIG OAKS—Eddie Williams of River Forest and his young daughter, Ellamae, the leading medalist of the western season last year, will give the exhibition. Jack Norton will be in charge.

EVERGREEN—Abe Espinosa will give an exhibition and will direct the class here, where three other professionals have volunteered.

MID-CITY—Dick Metz of the Mill Road Farm course and Tom Kell of Sunset Valley will contribute a demonstration, while Mal Thompson and Joe Tivnan will supervise the teaching.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

LUCK IN SPORT.

IN what branch of sport does luck figure least in the ultimate result? is the query of Helper Larry.

The Wake, not dogmatic in opinion but open to argument on the question, has selected lawn tennis, with track athletics second.

Reason for choice of the net game is that any three set match, even if one-sided, will have about 100 points contested, usually more. Thus any one point is not vitally important unless it be set point or match point. Each point is conclusive in itself. It does not open the way for succeeding points. Its significance, when it is significant, is only in relation to game or set score at the time.

So, a ball netted or sent out of bounds by faulty judgment, balls hitting the net and barely dropping over, poor decision by a linesman, even a fall on the court if not serious physically, does not determine the result. Of course, such happenings are factors, but minor factors compared with most other sports.

In track athletics there are not as many chances for breaks as in tennis, but they're more important when they do occur. Failure to get away sharply in sprints is fatal. Crowding, pocketing, or a fall may determine the result at the longer distances.

But compare chances in these two sports to the uncertainties of baseball, football, pugilism, and racing. In baseball, two feet at the foul line with men on may mean the difference between a foul or a home run settling the game. A wild pitch, an infield bobble at a critical time, mistaken outfield judgment, a wild pitch, a pass, any one of a couple of dozen contingencies may mean the ball game. This uncertainty adds to baseball's popularity.

One may add that critics do not always agree even that the best team won the pennant and that's a contest of 154 games.

Any coach will moan with you over the breaks of a football game, be they fumbles, poor generalship, dropping a forward pass which might have been caught, defense lured out of position, blocked kick, ad infinitum.

It is perhaps notable that breaks increase in team play over sports in which two individuals are opposed because team play calls for unity of action.

In pugilism there is the chance blow by which an inferior boxer often lands a haymaker. "Forget to duck" only once and the birdies sing sweetly.

On the turf, a poor start, interference, jocky's bad judgment of pace along the route, jocky skill at the finish, all the elements of racing luck, make horse races one of the most uncertain, hazardous, if you want to call it that, of all sports.

Sykes Banned for Year After Quitting Fight

The Illinois boxing commission yesterday suspended Art Sykes for one year for "conduct unbecoming a boxer" and for his failure to fulfill a contract for a ten round bout with Bob Pastor of New York at the Chicago Arena last Wednesday. Pastor was given the match on a technical knockout after the Elmira, N. Y., heavyweight left the ring at the end of the sixth round, claiming he had a sore hand and was too ill to continue.

The misconduct charge grew out of Sykes' unannounced departure from the arena after he had taken a glimpse at the small crowd in attendance shortly before he was scheduled to enter the ring, mumbling that he wouldn't go through with the match. Each principal signed for 20 per cent of the net receipts, which the promoters said was $442.

Sykes was compelled to return and go through with the fight under threats of life suspension in Illinois and affiliated states.

In addition to the ban, Sykes' purse of $88 was declared forfeited to the promoters, William Bishop and Buell Patterson. Sykes, however, had been advanced $75 for his transportation to and from Chicago.

Asked to explain his conduct before and after the encounter by Chairman Joe Triner of the commission, Sykes said that he had become ill from kicks in the groin inflicted by his manager, Eddie Long, during a quarrel between the two at a loop gymnasium on the afternoon of the contest. When his "distress" did not disappear after he had reached the arena he went to his hotel, he said.

Co-Promoters Bishop and Patterson will present their second show at the Chicago Arena, formerly Chicago Riding club, tomorrow night with a card headed by John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion, and Izzy Singer, New York heavyweight. The match is set for ten rounds.

Lewis, making his first Chicago appearance, wound up heavy training yesterday by sparring three rounds with two partners. He weighed about 180 pounds, the weight he expects to carry against Singer. The champion will continue roadwork this morning on the south side and conclude drills by doing light loosening up exercises at Trafton's gymnasium in the afternoon. Singer ended boxing workouts Saturday. He went through a light drill yesterday, a procedure he will follow today before announcing his readiness to tackle Lewis. He will scale approximately 182 pounds for the bout.

BIGGS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF ILLINOIS P. G. A.

Elmer Biggs, professional of the Peoria Country club and one of the game's strongest supporters of group instruction and junior golf promotion, last night was elected president of the Illinois section of the P. G. A. for the duration of the 1936 season. Biggs succeeds Horton Smith of Oak Park, who resigned due to the activities of his new position with a national sports goods manufacturer.

Seventy-five delegates attended the annual spring meeting of the organization at the Morrison hotel, which was preceded by a meeting of the executive committee earlier in the day.

The association will hold its annual spring golf night in the Terrace room of the Morrison on May 18. The inaugural event last year was a success, attended by members of private clubs and other golf organizations.

No date or site was set for the annual Illinois P. G. A. championship, won at Peoria last year by Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, but it was understood that it would be awarded to the Chicago district.

Phelps to Face Indians Today for White Sox

Babe Phelps, winning pitcher in the White Sox season opener, this afternoon will see what the Indians can do with his dipsy-dew pitches and trained seal flips. He will be opposed by one of a trio of Cleveland pitchers to be named later.

The Sox yesterday announced that Pitcher John Salveson had been sent to the Los Angeles club as a part of the deal which will bring Third Baseman Steve Mesner to Chicago next year.

The Indians, perhaps remembering what Kennedy did to them on last Aug. 31, rushed en masse to the pitchers' mound after Knickerbocker had been called out on strikes. The carefully rehersed protestants claimed Vern was cheating in his stance on the rubber. This is an old gag and once upset a pitcher, back in the fall of 1892.

Indian Wins Boston A. A. 26 Mile Run

Boston, Mass., April 20.—(AP)—Ellison [Tarzan] Brown of Providence, R. I., one of the few remaining Narragansett Indians, qualified for the United States Olympic team by winning the 40th Boston A. A. marathon today.

The full blooded brave, after being challenged five times by the pre-race favorite, Johnny Kelley of Arlington, last year's winner, led another challenger, Bill McMahon of Worcester, to the finish line by almost two minutes. The race covered 26 miles 385 yards. It was one of Olympic team qualifying trials.

Brown broke the tape in 2:33:40 4-5. He led almost all the way from the starting line on the little lane in Hopkinton and missed wiping out the 2:31:01 3-5 course record set by Les Pawson of Pawtucket, R. I., in 1933, because he ran himself to the verge of collapse to lead the field during the first 20 miles.

The first 20 finishers:

1—Ellison [Tarzan] Brown, Providence, R. I., 2.33:40 4-5.
2—William F. McMahon, Worcester, 2.35:27 3-5.
4—Leo G. Giard, Brockton, 2.36:16 2-5.
5—John Kelley, Arlington, 2.38:49.
6—Alexander Burnside, Toronto, Ont., 2.39:05.
7—Earl Collins, Medford, 2.39:47.
8—Anthony Paskell, Lynn, 2.40:07.
9—Vic Callard, Toronto, Ont., 2.40:25.

SEEDED PLAYERS VICTORS AT WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS

White Sulphur Springs, Va., April 20.—(AP)—All seeded players, headed by Wilmer Allison, moved through the first two rounds of the sixteenth annual Mason-Dixon tennis tournament today. The Texas star drew a bye in the first round and in the second defeated A. N. Jitkow of New York, 6-2, 6-1.

John Van Ryn of Elkins Park, Pa., another of the seeded group, bested R. Pollard, 6-4, 6-2, in his first round match, then had things all his own way over Fred West, Lynchburg, Va., winning in the second round, 6-1, 6-4.

Other seeded players were Donald Budge, Wilmer Hines, Gene Mako, Hal Surface Jr., Bryant Grant, and J. Gilbert Hall.

Sox Win, 5-1, on Kennedy's 4 Hit Hurling

snatched Averill's and Vosmik's fouls. In the Sox's fourth inning Dykes' double after two were out went to waste.

Indians Get One.

Trosky led off the fifth with that No. 3 homer, a drive into the lower deck of the right field stands. Hale lined to Washington, then Campbell drew Kennedy's first pass. On a perfect execution of the hit and run play Pytlak jabbed a single through the second base position after Piet had vacated the spot to cover Campbell's dash to second. Campbell went to third on the hit. Pytlak was out trying to steal second, Sewell to Appling, while Campbell held third. Hildebrand ran the count to three balls and two strikes, then bounced the ball over second only to be robbed of his second hit on a nice play by Appling, who scooped up the ball and threw to Haas to end the inning.

Knickerbocker apparently had tired of striking out by the sixth inning, so he led off with a single to right and went to second on Hughes' sacrifice. Averill's grounder to Piet put Knickerbocker on third and there he stood while Vosmik fanned to end the inning.

Kennedy was very difficult again in the seventh. Trosky fouled to Dykes, Hale became Vern's sixth strikeout victim and Campbell popped to Appling. The Sox, who had gone out in order in the sixth, managed to avoid a similar fate in the seventh when Kennedy singled to left center, the fifth hit off Hildebrand. He was forced by Radcliff.

Kennedy Shows 'Em.

Pytlak was strikeout victim No. 7 as the eighth inning opened, after which Hildebrand furnished the second out with a grounder to Piet. Knickerbocker flied to Radcliff.

PIRATES' 4 RUN ATTACK IN NINTH TURNS BACK CUBS

Suhr's Homer with 2 On Beats Henshaw.

another off the same fellow in the eighth when Chuck Klein hit his fourth homer of the year. That gave them a lead of 8 to 5 going into the ninth.

The Cubs threatened to annihilate Blanton in the first inning, but were forced to settle for one run. Galan opened with a fly to Hafey after which Herman smacked a wind-blown triple to right center. Klein walked and Hartnett hit the left field fence for two bases, Herman scoring. A pass to Demaree loaded the bases. This budding opportunity was blown apart when Cavarretta's grounder to Young was converted into a double play.

Lavagetto's Error Helps.

There were only two hits off Blanton in the second, but the same number of runs scored because of outside assistance from Lavagetto. The starter of this uprising was Hack's single to left. Jurges grounded to Lavagetto who fumbled. A double steal was started. The pitch at the time was wild, permitting Hack to score and Jurges to go to third. After Henshaw had been set down Jurges scored on Galan's long fly. Herman then produced his seventh double of the season but Klein fouled out.

The Cubs collected four hits in the third when they scored three runs and finished Blanton's act. The runs came after the side should have been retired. Hartnett singled to left, Demaree sacrificed and Young threw out Cavarretta. Young fumbled Hack's roller and Hartnett scored. Hack stole second and scored on a single by Jurges. When Henshaw singled, Manager Traynor decided it it was about time to remove his star curivst. Brown took over the job and Galan clipped him with a single on which Jurges counted.

Pirates Start Attack.

The Pirates finally squared away in the fifth and made four hits grow into two runs. Young opened with a single and continued to second on Demaree's fumble. He went to third on Padden's single. Schulte batted for Brown and singled over Herman's head, Young scoring. Padden, who went to third on Schulte's hit, scored while Jensen was grounding into a force play. P. Waner then singled to center, but Hafey fanned and Henshaw was aided by another great fielding play in which Herman neatly handled Vaughan's bounder.

With Swift serving in the sixth the Cubs picked up a run without a hit. Swift contributed to this event by walking Galan who led off. Herman sacrificed, and on Klein's roller to Suhr, Galan strolled to third. Hartnett bounced to Lavagetto, but the young Italian fumbled, enabling Galan to score.

They Get Home Run Idea.

The Pirates also scored in the sixth when Lavagetto hit a homer off Henshaw over the left field wall. This performance may have given Klein an idea. After two were out in the eighth he sailed a homer into the upper right field deck for his fourth of the season. In the home half the Pirates scored in the same way. Young walloped the ball over the left field barrier after Lavagetto had been plunked by an errant pitch.

Mrs. Moody May Defend Wimbledon Tennis Title

San Francisco, Cal., April 20.—(AP)—Helen Wills Moody, Wimbledon tennis champion, said tonight she "would like very much" to defend her title this year but had not yet made up her mind whether to make the trip abroad. Mrs. Moody feels "much stronger" now than at this time a year ago when she was preparing for the comeback which resulted in her memorable victory over Helen Hull Jacobs.

Cubs Pick French to Pitch Against Birkofer Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 20.—Manager Charles Grimm of the Cubs plans on giving the Pirates another dose of southpawing tomorrow. This time it will be Larry French. Pie Traynor, the Pirate boss, intends to return the compliment by pitching Ralph Birkofer, who also functions with his left arm.

Grimm, who removed himself from the lineup two days ago because of a recurrence of his back ailment, was feeling better today, but declared he will not return to first base as long as Phil Cavarretta is able to hit the ball.

The day was warm enough to encourage doffing of overcoats, but it didn't seem to make much difference in the attendance. Fewer than 4,000 paid for a glimpse of the National league champions.

The Pittsburgh club continues to maintain a free lunch counter for the occupants of the press box. The Cincinnati club opened up a similar place in the coop at Crosley field.

Billy Herman collected his seventh double of the season in the second inning, but it wasn't the kind of hit the Cub star would care to brag about. It was a dinky fly which dropped close to the foul line in short right field.

ARMOUR TECH GOLFERS LOSE TO N. U., 21 TO 0

The Northwestern golf team shut out Armour Tech, 21 to 0, at Kildeer yesterday. Jim Marek, a sophomore, led Northwestern with 35—34—69, three under par. Marek had five birdies, and wound up by dropping in a 60 foot approach shot for a birdie three on the 18th.

The meet was a warmup for the Wildcats, who open their Big Ten season against Wisconsin at Kildeer Saturday.

Summaries: Saielli and McKensie beat Suza and Davidson, 3-0; Kostelecky and Marek beat Shanahan and Richards, 3-0; Saielli beat Skuza, 3-0; McKensie beat Davidson, 3-0; Kostelecky beat Shanahan, 3-0; Marek beat Richards, 3-0; Graham beat Haase, 3-0.

44,000 WATCH SENATORS AND RED SOX DIVIDE

Boston Wins in Morning, 6-5; Then Loses, 6-2.

Boston, Mass., April 20.—(AP)—The Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox divided two Patriot's day games today, the Red Sox winning the morning contest, 6 to 5, and losing the second, 6 to 2. More than 8,000 turned out in the morning, and 36,000 saw the afternoon game.

Pete Appleton's five hit pitching for the Senators in the afternoon stopped Boston, while his teammates started off the first inning with a three run lead. In the morning the Red Sox went on a batting spree in the last inning to win.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 20.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics came through with their first victory of the season today, outslugging the New York Yankees for a 12 to 11 decision. The Athletics hammered Walter Brown and Bump Hadley for 14 hits, including a home run by George Puccinelli in the seventh.

A pinch single by Loville [Chubby] Dean with the bases full in the ninth scored the deciding run.

De Kalb Will Miss Star Pitcher in Wheaton Game

De Kalb, Il., April 20.—[Special.]—De Kalb Teachers, defending baseball champions of the Little 19 conference, will meet Wheaton college at De Kalb tomorrow afternoon. Last week De Kalb opened the season by defeating Elmhurst college, 7 to 6. De Kalb will be without the services of Eugene Kylen, star pitcher and leading batter of the team, who was declared ineligible for playing with a Brainerd, Minn., team last summer.

Phillies Score 7 to 6 Victory Over Giants

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Mel Ott's home run with two on in the ninth failed to offset five errors today and the New York Giants lost their first game in six starts, falling before the Phillies, 7 to 6.

Four of the Giants' errors gave the Phils four unearned runs, two while Clydell Castleman was on the mound and the other two after he had been relieved by Dick Coffman.

Lake View Beats Senn on Pitcher's Hit

Leroy Carlson, Lake View pitcher, held Senn to two hits yesterday and knocked a home run with a teammate on base to give his team a 3 to 2 victory.

Amundsen had to go eight innings to win from Schurz, 3 to 2, although held to three hits by Cailman and Zydowsky. In the final inning Littrot, who drew a base on balls, scored on Olson's single. One was out at the time.

A walk, an error, and three hits netted Parker four runs in the seventh inning to defeat Fenger, 5 to 4. Lucadello of Fenger hit a homer in the first frame. Nobody was on base.

Kelvyn Park won from Harrison, 8 to 3, in five innings, the game being called on account of rain. New Phillips was leading Old Phillips, 15 to 2, when rain stopped the game after three innings.

Calumet won from Morgan Park, 3 to 2, in eight innings. Looby opened the eighth for Calumet with a walk. He reached second on Christensen's sacrifice, and scored when McDonald tripled.

REGENTS ACT ON BADGER ATHLETIC DIRECTOR TODAY

Madison, Wis., April 20.—[Special.]—Dr. Walter E. Meanwell's successor as University of Wisconsin athletic director will end tomorrow when the faculty board's recommendation is approved and revealed by the board of regents.

A university official said tonight the directorship would be one of the first considerations to come before the regents, thus giving definite assurance that a recommendation had been made.

Although a half dozen candidates still were in the running in downtown barber shops, it appeared tonight that the field had narrowed to three—Guy Sundt, back field coach under Dr. Clarence W. Spears; Howard Hancock of Illinois State Normal university, and Harold Olsen of Ohio State.

THEY FORGOT TO SAY BIG SNAKE IS ONLY A BABY

Only the Report of the Kill Is 131 Feet Long.

BY BOB BECKER.

When outdoorsmen read in THE TRIBUNE yesterday about a 131 foot snake reported to have been killed in the Brazilian jungles they must have felt sorry for that mythical north woods character, Paul Bunyan. At a time when Paul Bunyan has cornered about all the preposterous myths and fantastic heroics in modern lore, along comes Brazil with a bid for international honors as the producer of the most outlandish yarn ever printed.

In fact, even Scotland must feel badly, because not so long ago one section of that country was able to gain universal attention by reporting a gigantic "sea monster." But that Scottish monster was just an angleworm compared to this man sized, modern serpent of the Brazilian jungles.

Maybe It Has No Skin.

Having hunted and trapped in Brazil along the Rio Negro and also along one of its tributaries, the Rio Branco, and having seen and collected a few snakes in the jungles, we naturally were more than casually interested in the report of this reptile which "leveled trees" in its dying convulsions. The unfortunate thing about the death [?] of this monster, which offhand must be considered as quite some snake in any man's language, is that no one thought to skin it out and bring the skin back to civilization. That has been the trouble with so many of the killings of these enormous snakes. The boys don't bring back the skin, thus making scientists shed many tears—from laughter.

But when you examine the snake business in the cold light of science, perhaps there is a reason the snake killers don't bring these 131 footers back to civilization.

Regal Python Is No. 1.

Number 1 snake in size, according to Prof. R. L. Ditmars, a recognized authority, is the regal python, actually attaining a length of 30 feet. It doesn't live in South America. It's found in Burma and Indo-China. No. 2 snake [for size] is the Indian python. It may grow to a length of 25 feet. No. 3 is the anaconda of the South American jungles, "occasionally represented by specimens more than 20 feet long." No. 4 is the African python, sometimes 18 feet or 20 feet long. These dimensions are considerably above the average for these species.

Regal python	22 feet
Indian python	18 feet
Anaconda [largest South American species]	17 feet
African python	16 feet

Outdoor Fans Find Favorite Sports at Show

Chicagoans are visiting the show for tips on vacations. Many of the fishing, camping, canoeing, and vacation areas of Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, and Canada have exhibits and attendants to advise one on where to go for a summer vacation.

Resort owners at the show state that from the number of inquiries the 1936 season promises to be a banner one from a business standpoint. Fishermen especially have already swung into action with plans for their trips and some of the camps in the north country will open earlier this season than they did in 1935.

13 NAMED FOR MARYLAND HUNT STEEPLECHASE

Baltimore, Md., April 20.—(AP)—Thirteen of the country's best steeplechase horses, headed by Inshore, winner of two events in as many weeks, will compete next Saturday in the Maryland hunt cup race.

The forty-third annual running of the Maryland steeplechase will be held over the estate of J. W. Y. Martin, in Worthington valley. The difficult four mile course has 22 post and rail jumps.

Primero—James Piper, Baltimore; Richard H. Hamilton.
Indigo—John Schiff, New York; Charles B. White.
Priestess—Janon Fisher Jr., Green Spring Valley; unnamed.
Ostend—Mrs. Frank M. Gould, New York; William B. Street.
Gigolo—Mrs. Vadim Marakoff, New York; Randolph Duffy.
Routlad—William C. Elliott, Philadelphia; Frank Powers.
Brose Hover—Benjamin L. Behr, Chicago; Sidney Watters Jr.
Dan McGee—Benjamin L. Behr, Chicago; John Harrison.
Gray Cock—Charles S. Cheston, Philadelphia; Morris H. Dixon.

BROAD RIPPLE began quickly, drew out smartly during the stretch drive after bearing out. PEACE RIVER was no match for the winner after making a bold effort at the stretch turn. ROB'S COVE circled her field and finished full of run. SHARPSHOOTER failed to menace after saving a lot of ground entering the homestretch. OVERPLAY finished stoutly after beginning slowly. ZOR finished fast when settled in his stride. FLYING TRAPEZE was held safe.

SECOND RACE—Purse $800. Claiming prices, $1,500 to $1,250. Three year olds and up. Six furlongs. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:01. At post 2 minutes. Winner, b. m., 8, by Dunlin-Parade. Owner, Mrs. J. M. Black. Trainer, J. M. Black. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:14 1-5.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Fervid, $18.10 straight, $5.80 place, $5.80 show; Midnight Flyer, $5.00 place, $4.60 show; Hasty Belle, $22.10 show.

FERVID finished determinedly after reaching the homestretch and won going away after getting to the front in the last seventy yards. MIDNIGHT FLYER engaged the leaders midway of the homestretch and continued gamely until the close. HASTY BELLE closed gamely and outstayed TITIAN KIDDIE. Latter failed to rally nearing the finish. CANTERBOY could not reach contention at any stage. FIRE STAR showed early speed.

Gledhill Sues Tennis Promoter for $3,750

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Cal., one of the country's leading tennis players, who turned professional two years ago, is suing the Bill O'Brien's Sports Promotions, Inc., for $3,750 damages for breach of contract to pay him $150 a week. He asks for 32 weeks' payment plus an additional $150 for expenses to Santa Barbara, less $1,200 paid him. Gledhill contends that there is no valid defense, and applied in the Supreme court today for a summary judgment.

BOOKIES LOSE DERBY BUSINESS BY CUTTING ODDS

there isn't any incentive offered to make the gamble?

At 5 or 6 to 1 odds which always have prevailed against winter and early spring favorites, both Brevity and Hollyrood would have been strongly backed by their many admirers. This crowd would have been the heavy betting crowd. One horse would have been backed about as stoutly as the other.

These odds would not have indicated that one or the other was so sure a winner that the small players about the country would have been afraid to take their annual flyers on the longshots. Business would have hummed with the future book layers and most of them would have well rounded out books by this time with the percentage giving them the assurance of a profit.

Save Bets for Derby Day.

The big players refused to back Brevity or Hollyrood at the short odds. They decided to wait until Derby day. The small players got scared out and came to the conclusion that it wasn't possible for a long shot to beat either of the favorites.

The way the future book operator who visited Churchill Downs today writhed in pain revealed what has happened. Nearly all the wagering on the outcome of this year's Derby will be done on Derby day. The large number of formidable candidates who are coming up to the race in good condition indicates there will be plenty of betting.

Bradley String Arrives.

Col. E. R. Bradley's Idle Hour Farm string arrived today, dominated by Banister, which Trainer Dick Thompson rates the most likely Derby contender, and Bien Joli, the next in line. The Bradley string looked in fine shape and stood the trip well.

The shipment of twelve included Bow to Me, the stable's least likely Derby starter, the 3 year old fillies Bonnie Lois, Behind Me, and Blue, and the gelding Bootmaker. Five 2 year olds eligible to go after the $5,000 worth of money in the Bashford Manor stakes May 9 completed the string.

Silas, a Derby long shot which has been steadily improving in workouts at the Downs, gained more friends today by going a mile in 1:42 3-5 handily. The colt is owned by Mrs. Bessie Franzheim's stable. Accompanied for five-eights of a mile by Compensatory, Clark handicap candidate, Silas stepped the quarter in :24 2-5, the half in :49 1-5, and the three-quarters in 1:15.

Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Dnieper was called on for seven-eighths of a mile workout. The gelding covered the half in :49, three-quarters in 1:15 3-5, and seven-eighths in 1:28 4-5, galloping out the mile in 1:43.

He Did and Vale Victorian from Mrs. Silas B. Mason's stable went a half mile in :50. Dixiana Farm's Erin Torch breezed three-quarters of a mile in 1:16 3-5.

GRAND SLAM? IF IT'S MUDDY, HE'LL RULE THE DERBY

And They'll Have to Run to Beat Him on Dry Track

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 20.—Rain or shine Grand Slam from Detroit will have plenty of backers for the Kentucky Derby, but if it should rain—strange as that thought may be—he will doubtless go to the post as the favorite.

Not in many years has a mud runner of Grand Slam's ability come up to the Derby. In addition he demonstrated last Saturday in the Chesapeake stakes, on the lightning fast Havre de Grace track, that he's going to be some pumpkins in this year's Derby regardless of track conditions.

This Grand Slam Is Really Hot Stuff.

Making his first start of the year in the Chesapeake, Grand Slam finished third. But just listen to what the chartmaker said about him:

"Grand Slam raced on the outside from the beginning and lost much ground. He had clear racing room all the way and finished full of run."

Those who pick their winners out of the dope sheets would interpret this to mean: "Grand Slam was out in the Chesapeake just for an airing. His boy had been instructed to race him wide in order that there would be no chance of an accident. If he could win, all right, but take no chances of injury."

Just Breezin' Along with the Breeze, Eh?

Grand Slam on these reports wouldn't have run a much more impressive race had he won the Chesapeake. Had he drawn his favorite muddy track he no doubt would have run away from his rivals anyway.

His two most important victories last year—the Arlington Futurity in Chicago and the Jocky club stakes in Kentucky—were scored in the mud. He was able to win in the fast going, but not against the topnotchers.

He's one of the horses somebody has to beat in this year's Derby. This deep cushioned Churchill Downs course, even when at its best, is fancied by mud runners. So Grand Slam is sure to like it. However, he will be the only one with a smile on his face if it rains Derby day.

NORTH SIDE C. Y. O. SWIM TRIALS AT LOYOLA TONIGHT

Loyola university tank will be the scene of the North section trials in the sixth annual C. Y. O. swimming meet starting at 8 o'clock tonight. Boys ranging in age from 12 to 25 years will go through preliminary competition to determine the north side qualifiers who will take part in the championship events Friday night.

New Deal Program Declared Illegal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—Public utility companies launched their battle against the New Deal's 200 million dollar municipal power program today with charges that the schemes are unconstitutional and ruinous to private business, before Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat of the District of Columbia Supreme court.

DEAN ACHESON. [A. P. photo.]

Represented by the Edison institute, the utility concerns sought in this combined case to obtain a permanent injunction to prevent the government from lending and granting PWA easy money to ten cities in Alabama, Iowa, Oklahowa, Texas, and Vermont for construction of municipal plants.

Former Officials Head Attack.

Counsel for the utilities were Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet, and Dean Acheson, who resigned a year ago as assistant secretary of the treasury because of New Deal policies.

"The administration's program will completely ruin the power companies which cannot compete against the government's outlay of funds," asserted Acheson. "The government's interference means a difference between a small profit and a big deficit."

Acheson charged the power program "as outlined by President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Interior Ickes is only to reduce rates charged by private companies and force them out of business."

Acheson and Baker contended that Title 2 of the NRA act and the congressional appropriation of 4 billion 880 million dollars in 1935, under which the loans were being made, were unconstitutional because they contained an excessive delegation of authority and sought to regulate purely intrastate business.

Differ on Labor Value.

Alexander Holzoff of New York, special assistant attorney general representing the government, contended the program was a means of bringing about recovery through furnishing employment. To this Acheson and Baker replied that on ordinary relief projects labor amounted to 80 per cent, while on the power projects in question the labor was only 20 per cent.

Justice Wheat refused to hear testimony of rate reductions granted to seven Alabama towns by the Alabama Power company during the last 20 years. The utilities were endeavoring to show that lower rates had been granted "progressively" to these towns, which later received federal loans and grants for municipal systems. The court ruled the testimony was not material.

One of the attorneys who appeared for the government was Jerome Frank, acting as special assistant to the attorney general. He was dismissed from the Agricultural Adjustment administration last year when there was a partial purge of radicals.

The arguments will continue tomorrow.

TRADE FAILURES IN EASTER WEEK FEWEST OF YEAR

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—There were fewer business failures in the week embracing the Easter holidays than in any weekly period so far this year, according to a report by Dun & Bradstreet today.

Insolvencies for the week ended last Thursday totaled 174, compared with 215 in the preceding week, a decline of 19.1 per cent, and with 245 in the corresponding period of last year. Failures with liabilities of $5,000 or more in each case numbered 99, a drop of 13.9 per cent from the preceding week, and were 27.2 per cent under the total defaults in the like 1935 period.

In Canada the number of insolvencies was also reduced during the week, the total being 22 as compared with 27 a week earlier and 32 a year ago.

Collections of Internal Revenue Rise $186,320,214

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—Internal revenue collections for the first three quarters of the current fiscal year amounted to $2,667,090,083, an increase of $186,320,214, despite a reduction of $334,504,600 in the processing taxes, the treasury announced today. The processing taxes for the nine months ending March 31 amounted to $71,613,409 as compared with $406,118,000 for the same period the year before.

Court Demands Action on Consumers Co. Plan

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday warned attorneys in the reorganization of the Consumers company that unless a plan is agreed upon soon the court will dismiss proceedings under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy act and order bankruptcy through the regular channels. He postponed further hearing to April 28.

Du Pont First Quarter Profit Best Since '30

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and a number of other big companies yesterday reported larger earnings for the first quarter of this year. Du Pont estimated its profit at $1.21 a share on the common stock, compared with 85 cents a share in the corresponding period of last year, the highest for a first quarter since 1930.

The earnings are based on preliminary calculations and include dividends from the company's 23 per cent stock interest in General Motors corporation.

Profit for the first quarter of this year also compared favorably with that for the final quarter of 1935, which was $1.82 a share.

In the first quarter the company netted 45 cents a share from the investment in General Motors. This compared with 90 cents in the last quarter of 1935 and 22½ cents in the first quarter of last year.

Corn Products Has Gain.

Corn Products Refining company also reported improvement in first quarter earnings. Consolidated net income was $2,799,990, or 94 cents a share on the common stock after preferred divdends, compared with $2,134,452, or 67 cents a share, in the same period of 1935.

Beech-Nut Packing company announced net income of $505,057 for the quarter before taxes and preferred dividends and $426,914 after these deductions. The latter figure was equivalent to 98 cents a share on common stock, compared with $407,405, or 93 cents a share, in the first quarter of last year.

Profit Rises Sharply.

The Chesapeake and Ohio railway in a report for the quarter ended March 31, showed net income of $9,258,560, equivalent after dividends on the 6¼ per cent preferred stock to $1.20 a share on common stock, against $7,093,336, or 92 cents a share in the same 1935 period.

The Erie railroad reported net operating income of $3,381,225 for the quarter ended March 31, against $2,888,883 in the first quarter a year earlier. Gross rose from $17,736,882 in the 1935 period to $19,341,430 this year.

John R. Thompson company had a profit for the quarter, the first since 1932, John R. Thompson Jr., president, announced yesterday at the regular directors' meeting. Net totaled $22,422 after depreciation of $141,277, compared with a loss of $45,217 after depreciation of $144,180 in the first quarter of last year.

GOLD PAYMENT ON U. S. BOND UP TO HIGH COURT

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The suit by Robert A. Taft, son of the former president, to make the government pay $1.07 gold as interest on a $50 Fourth Liberty Loan bond, started on its way to the Supreme court today when the justices of the Court of Claims presented several questions to the high tribunal.

Without passing on the validity of the Taft claim, which the government asserts is dead because the bond had been called for redemption, the Court of Claims called upon the Supreme court to construe points vital in determination of some of the thirty-five to forty other gold suits involving $8,000,000 now pending in the Claims court.

For instance, the Supreme court was asked whether interest ceased to accrue after the redemption call. It was asked also whether if the answer to the first question was "No," if the agreement concerning the bond implied that the government was "ready and willing" to redeem the bond on payment of the principal in gold coin or its equivalent.

HOUSING BILL FOR 876 MILLIONS IS SUPPORTED

Washington, D. C., April 20.—(AP)—Supporting testimony was poured into a senate committee hearing today in favor of a $876,000,000 housing and slum clearance financing bill in the face of diminishing prospects for action upon it at this session.

The bill, introduced by Senator Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], asked appropriations and bonding authority of $876,000,000 for expenditure during the next four years to provide an estimated 300,000 to 400,000 homes for low income families now living in slum or near-slum condition.

Wagner led off before the senate labor committee in favor of the bill, followed by Secretary Ickes of the interior; A. R. Clas, director of the PWA housing division; Harry C. Bates, chairman of the American Federation of Labor housing committee and president of the Bricklayers, Masons, and Plasterers International union.

STOCKS SLUMP IN HEAVY WAVE OF LIQUIDATION

Selling Affects All Parts of List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 20.—A heavy barrage of selling swept over the stock market list in the closing hour today, leveling prices in every section of the list. No group or issue was spared and losses of 1 to more than 3 points were numerous at the close.

For the first three hours the list displayed firm tendencies but with the start of the fourth hour a definite reaction occurred and activity increased on the decline. Volume was the heaviest in the last sixty minutes with the high speed ticker tape falling behind the pace on the floor. Transactions totaled 1,771,140 shares.

There was nothing in the trade news to account for the drop in prices although it was evident that the speculative fraternity was unwilling to take an aggressive stand on the constructive side and that the continued uncertainty over foreign political developments was causing scattered liquidation.

Trade News Favorable.

On the surface, trade news over the week-end was favorable. The spring rise in business has brought most of the index numbers to the top, and leaving to be answered by the market the question of whether stocks have outrun the good business improvement that has occurred. In some places the current weakness of the market is being construed as a warning of a decline in business to come within the next few months—possibly in anticipation of election uncertainties. Financial circles believe that a return to office of the present administration would be a bear point in the market.

Volatile individual issues were the heaviest losers in the raid on prices. Allied Chemical was especially sensitive, registering a loss of 8¼ points. Columbia Carbon dropped 7, bringing its loss in the last week to over a dozen points. U. S. Gypsum was another bear target, losing 6⅛ points.

Johns-Manville Still Weak.

Johns-Manville, which led the market lower on Saturday, was again soft. Its loss of 2¼ points carried it out of the class of stocks selling above 100. Farm implement shares lost ground, with International Harvester showing little resistance as it dropped more than 5 points. Case and Deere lost 3 and 4 points respectively.

Du Pont dropped 3 points despite its higher earning report, and other industrial issues followed the trend. Substantial declines were recorded by Westinghouse, American Can, Eastman, General Electric, American Telephone, Western Union, American Smelting, Ingersoll Rand, Owens Glass and Union Carbide.

Carrier shares and oil issues were 1 to 2 points lower. Fresh selling in the railroad group was attributed to the interstate commerce commission's fare decision. New York Central was particularly hard hit, giving up 2½ points.

EXCHANGE URGES DUAL STATEMENT BY COMPANIES

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Abandoning its recent campaign for the substitution of cumulative twelve-months' earnings reports for quarterly statements, the New York Stock exchange committee on stock list today urged listed companies to continue to publish the usual quarterly reports.

The letter to the companies added that "if they are also prepared to publish twelve-months' reports at quarterly intervals, the committee would consider such additional reports to be of great value to the investing public."

Request for the substitution of the cumulative for the usual quarterly reports was made by the committee in a letter, dated March 23, to industrial and utility companies that customarily report earnings more frequently than once a year.

Servel Directors Increase Common Stock Dividend

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Directors of Servel, Inc., makers of refrigerators and other products, today increased the quarterly dividend on the common stock to 15 cents a share from 12½ cents. The dividend is payable June 1 to stock of record May 20.

FINDS DEATH TAXES WOULD ALMOST WIPE OUT ROGERS' ESTATE

Riverhead, N. Y., April 20.—[Special.]—The entire personal estate of Henry H. Rogers, who died on July 25, 1935, would be almost wiped out if all inheritance taxes and other duties covering this estate and a trust fund created by his father were to be paid out of Rogers's personal estate, Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau declared here today in a ruling construing article 17 of Rogers' will.

The surrogate ruled that inheritance taxes and all other death duties be apportioned between the trust fund and Rogers' personal estate, although Rogers' will directed payment from his residuary estate. Rogers' personal estate aggregated slightly more than $17,000,000. There also was a trust fund of slightly more than $9,000,000 left to him by his father over which he had the power of appointment and disposal by bequest. Commenting on the status of the estate, Surrogate Pelletreau wrote:

"The papers indicate an estimated gross value of $17,112,436, from which deduction of estimated administration expenses, debts, and income taxes amounting to $3,017,322 leaves a net estate of $14,095,213. It is estimated the value of the decedent's interest in his father's estate, held in trust for him and over which he had power of appointment, was $9,171,294. It is estimated the federal and New York state taxes upon the decedent's own property and the trust fund created under his father's will for his benefit, amount of $13,138,115."

PUBLIC SERVICE OF NEW JERSEY REVALUES STOCK

Newark, N. J., April 20.—[Special.]—A reduction of $38,000,000 in the stated value of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey common stock to $111,933,693 was approved by stockholders at the annual meeting here today.

There are 5,503,193 shares of no par common stock. The company transferred the $38,000,000 to the surplus account to provide a reserve against the stock of a subsidiary, the Public Service Coördinated Transport.

Thomas N. McCarter, president, told stockholders the reduction in stated value of the shares would not affect earnings or dividends. He also said the company is beginning to realize an increase in electric consumption as a result of rate reductions.

Stockholders approved a resolution which would indemnify directors, officers and employés of the company against liability arising from registration of common and preferred stocks on the New York Stock exchange under the Securities and Exchange commission, provided that such persons are not guilty of wrongdoing.

Chicago Firm Low Bidder on Federal Dam Project

Kansas City, Mo., April 20.—(AP)—The Chicago Bridge and Iron company was the low bidder today for supplying 14,950,000 pounds of steel pipe for the government's Missouri river dam project at Fort Peck, Mont. The Chicago firm bid 6.08 cents per pound or a total of $908,960.

Southwestern Rails Planning to Speed Runs

Officials of the Missouri Pacific, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, and St. Louis-San Francisco railroads are to meet in St. Louis today to discuss radical reductions in passenger time schedules from St. Louis to the southwest to meet quickened schedules in other parts of the country, particularly out of Chicago, it was learned in railroad circles yesterday.

These roads proposed to reduce their running time from St. Louis to points in Texas and the southwest from three to four hours and to cut a whole night from the run to Mexico City, it was reported.

Connections a Problem.

One problem facing St. Louis roads is that the arrival of principal trains from New York and the east for connection with the southwestern points has been about 4:30 in the afternoon, while Chicago trains arrive about 6 p. m. The trains for the southwest have been leaving St. Louis at about 6:30 p. m.

Now the St. Louis roads in speeding up their trains desire to have their trains leave earlier in the afternoon, with earlier arrival at destination.

This situation is being further complicated, it was said, with the Illinois Central new streamliner, the Green Diamond, soon to go into service on a five hour or better schedule to St. Louis.

May Meet New I. C. Time.

Other Chicago-St. Louis roads may make changes to meet the Illinois Central's time, which makes it difficult for the southwestern roads to prepare new schedules. The Alton during the last few days has been making a number of test runs between Chicago and St. Louis with a Diesel electric locomotive which has been in use in the east by the Baltimore & Ohio.

One railroad official said the most important factor causing the St. Louis road to increase train speed has been the radical reduction in time put into effect or ordered by the Santa Fe for its trains to the southwest. The Southern railway has been reducing time on its trains operating from the east to New Orleans from which connections could be made with southwestern points.

After today's meeting in St. Louis the roads are expected to confer with the lines running out of Chicago.

MEDINAH CLUB REORGANIZATION IS COMPLETED

Reorganization of the Medinah club and its removal from bankruptcy proceedings and trusteeship under section 77 B of the amended bankruptcy act was announced yesterday by J. L. McKee, president of the club and assistant vice president of the New York Central system.

The club, located at 505 North Michigan avenue, secured a loan from the Union Central Life Insurance company of Cincinnati for $500,000 to cover reorganization expenses, pay back taxes, and make certain changes in the 44 story building. The loan is for 15 years at 4½ per cent interest. Terms provide for amortization at a rate of $27,500 a year, if earned.

McKee said the club now has a membership of more than 5,500 persons. He said that the club is being developed into a social center for executives of the transportation and allied industries.

PRICE OF SILVER RAISED AGAIN BY AGENTS FOR U. S.

Dollar Value Makes New Gains.

Price gyrations in the market for foreign bar silver again attracted wide attention yesterday when Handy and Harman, "official" silver brokers for the United States treasury department, advanced the quotation ¾ of a cent to 45¾ cents per ounce, the highest price since Jan. 17 this year.

Yesterday's rise followed an increase of ¼ cent last Friday, which had been preceded by an earlier increase in the price of silver in London.

Absence of any other explanation led silver experts to attribute the latest boost to an expansion of buying for speculative accounts in India and London late last week. Buying in this country yesterday was small and was described in silver circles as "probably temporary."

New York Price Above London.

The ¾ cent advance again brought the New York price above that in London, where trading closes several hours earlier than in New York. Heavy speculative selling, probably reflecting profit taking after last week's steady rise in prices, caused a drop in London of ⅜ penny to 20⅛ pence per ounce—equal to 45⅝ cents in American money.

There was no indication that the United States treasury was following the increase in New York quotations for foreign bar silver. For several weeks the treasury presumably has been following the policy, announced some time ago, of concentrating its purchases on newly mined metal in Canada, Mexico, and South American countries, thereby steering clear of participation in the speculative markets in New York and London.

DOLLAR GAINS ON FRANC

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—Interest in the foreign exchange markets today centered on the strength in dollars against French francs and Italian lire. The easiness in francs was attributed to the elections scheduled for next week and the rumors that devaluation may follow.

Lire were slightly stronger in early trade but weakened later to close at the year's low of 7.89 cents, off 1 point for the day. The pound sterling was 1-16 cent higher at $4.94⅛. Guilders and belgas were unchanged while the Swiss franc improved slightly.

DEFENDS FRENCH FINANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 20.—Marcel Regnier, minister of finance, took occasion to defend the franc and French finances in a statement to the press today and well informed financial interests asserted his defense obviously indicates they are in a precarious condition or they would not need help. The point of Regnier's defensive statement was that tax returns for March are bigger than the estimates in the budget for the first time in five years.

Meantime France, according to the best sources, is trying to borrow money in Holland to tide over the impending elections. The Action Francaise, royalist newspaper which is always kicking over the traces in telling the uncomfortable truth about the republic, said the amount the French government is trying to borrow is $66,000,000, but better non-French sources told THE TRIBUNE the amount is $132,000,000.

STEEL OUTPUT ESTIMATE SETS PEAK SINCE 1930

The American Iron and Steel institute yesterday estimated that steel production for the current week is running at 70.4 per cent of capacity as compared with 67.9 per cent last week, and 53.7 per cent a month ago. Last year at this time the rate was 44.6 per cent.

The institute's index of operations goes back only two years, but the organization's records indicated that the week's rate is the highest since May, 1930, when production was running at 73.68 per cent.

Girdler Assails Unsound Ideas of Theorists

St. Louis, Mo., April 20.—[Special.]—American industry is staging a comeback which should go far unless blocked by unsound legislation based on the "theories of academic nonproducers" and the "burocratic theorists who now presume to supervise American business," Tom M. Girdler, chairman and president of the Republic Steel corporation, said tonight in an address before the American Zinc institute here.

T. M. GIRDLER.

The real victims of unfair attacks upon business which threaten to cripple the efficiency of industry are the millions of workers and investors as well as the consuming public, Girdler declared.

"Outcropping of Quacks."

"Big depressions always give rise to fantastic economic ideas and theories," he said. "We have had a great outcropping of quacks. They all advocate some sort of rearrangement of our economic system.

"The burocratic theorists who now presume to supervise American business have never produced the things and goods demanded by American consumers. They cannot; they never have produced anything. All they do is to tell us how to stop producing. All they do is to tell us to do less than we are doing already."

Commenting on the outlook for the steel industry, Girdler said:

"Together with all other industries today, we are faced with the problem of how far government restrictions upon enterprise and the burden of taxation are to go.

"The plan to tax corporation surpluses is a case in point. This idea seems to have caused great excitement among politicians. They want to tax corporation reserves out of existence.

Terms Reserves Vital.

"What would have happened in this country if corporations had possessed no reserves at the start of the depression? I can speak with intimate knowledge only of the steel industry. The existence of reserves enabled the steel industry to carry on through the depression, to maintain its plants, to spend large sums in relief and to sustain a loss over a four year period of more than $285,000,000.

"The outlook for the steel industry is particularly bright if the natural forces of recovery now under way are permitted to operate.

"I see a million uses for metals and I see before us a great prosperity. But we and our investors and our workers cannot be prosperous when our chance to do a productive job well and honestly is constantly being hampered by misconceived and unfortunately motivated legislation."

LAWYERS DEFEND MIDDLE WEST FEE REQUESTS

Counsel for certain groups participating in the reorganization of Middle West Utilities company yesterday filed briefs with Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson in reply to the Reconstruction Finance corporation's contention that fees claimed should be cut as much as 75 per cent and some barred entirely.

Robert N. Golding of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin, and Ellis, counsel for the noteholders' committee, filed a brief to the effect that RFC attorneys have misapprehended the facts and value of services rendered by attorneys in the case.

Walter V. Fackler also filed a reply saying the fees of $6,670 was proper for material services rendered. The RFC had recommended no fee for Fackler.

First Car of New Melons Shipped from California

El Centro, Cal., April 20.—[Special.]—The Imperial valley's first carload of melons for the 1936 season was started for New York early yesterday as the climax of the annual race for first honors in the eastern markets. The first car this season is eight days earlier than in 1935.

CANADA POWER ISSUES LEAD IN BIG FINANCING

Other Large Offers Are Planned.

Led by an announcement that offering will be made today of 40 million dollars securities of the Saguenay Power Company, Ltd., for refunding purposes, a number of other important developments in the securities market were disclosed yesterday.

The state of New York announced it will sell today 50 million dollars of short term notes. The Peoples Gas Light, and Coke company called a special meeting of stockholders on May 20 to vote on its plan, recently announced, to issue $22,000,000 of refunding bonds. Detroit will issue a call today for bids on $18,720,000 of refunding bonds. An offering of $110,000,000 of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit company scheduled for tomorrow has been postponed for several days. The Cincinnati Union Terminal company has asked permission to issue $24,000,000 of refunding bonds.

Details of Saguenay Offering.

The Saguenay offering consists of $30,000,000 of first mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, $5,000,000 of 2¼ to 4 per cent serial notes, and $5,000,000 of 5½ per cent cumulative preferred stock. All are being offered at par.

The offering in the United States consists of $25,000,000 of first mortgage 4¼ per cent sinking fund bonds, series A, due April 1, 1966, and $5,000,000 of 2¼ to 4 per cent serial bonds, due June 15, 1937-'46, both payable in United States dollars. The bonds are underwritten and offered by a group headed by the Mellon Securities Company, Inc., and the same banking house has underwritten the entire issue of notes.

The securities being offered in Canada include $5,000,000 of the 4¼ per cent bonds and the $5,000,000 of preferred stock, both payable in Canadian dollars.

Will Redeem Other Issues.

Proceeds will be used to redeem on July 1, 1936, at 104½, the outstanding $35,269,000 Duke-Price Power Company, Ltd., first mortgage 6 per cent bonds, due 1966, and for the prepayment or redemption not later than July 1, 1936, of $1,930,000 of the company's 6 per cent gold notes. The Saguenay company was originally incorporated under the Duke-Price name.

The New York state issue consists of eight notes bearing 3-10 of 1 per cent. Proceeds will be used to meet current governmental expense against anticipated revenues for the next fiscal year, which will begin July 1.

The issue to be voted on by the Peoples Gas stockholders will constitute the company's first refinancing since 1932. Proceeds from the bonds, together with bank loans, will be used to refund $18,659,000 of series C first and refunding 6 per cent bonds maturing in 1937 and to provide for redemption of $9,904,000 of Chicago Gas Light and Coke company 5 per cent bonds maturing in 1937.

Detroit Limits Interest Rate.

Detroit will ask bids on $18,720,000 of noncallable bonds, series F, with serial maturities ranging from June 1, 1937 to 1962. City Controler Fred T. Gies said proposals would be received at interest rates not to exceed 4 per cent.

The Brooklyn-Manhattan offering has been postponed to give time for the company to file an amendment to its SEC registration altering coupon rates. The bonds will be in two maturity dates, a short term issue amounting to $48,000,000 and a long term issue, maturing in 1966, amounting to $62,000,000. The short term bonds originally were to have carried 3 per cent but it is understood the first five payment dates will carry 5 per cent and the remainder 3¾ per cent. The long term issue will bear 4½ instead of 4¼ per cent.

April 28 Set for Hearing on Stevens Hotel Fees

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday set a hearing for April 28 on petitions for fees and expenses aggregating $150,000 filed in connection with the reorganization of the Stevens hotel.

ASKS ENGINEERS BE GIVEN CHARGE OF PUBLIC WORKS

Chase Assails Waste in Federal Program.

The time has come for engineers to enter politics, said Frank D. Chase of Chicago, president of the Midwest Power Engineering conference, yesterday in assailing the government's expenditures for public works and urging the creation of a nonpartisan engineering board to supervise such projects in the future.

In the opening address of the conference, held at the Palmer house, Chase asserted engineering advice has not been given weight in determining public works projects.

"The public works program seems to be primarily the spending of money without economic justification," he said, pointing out that the promise made early in 1933 to put 4,000,000 men to work within six months has not been realized sixteen months later.

Job Too Big for Government.

"In my talks with prominent engineers I find the opinion 99 per cent unanimous that in this program the government has on its hands a job that is too big for it and that in some way we engineers must help to work out a national plan of handling this gigantic public works operation to prevent the waste of further billions, which even this country cannot afford in increased taxation.

"I do not believe there is one engineer whose word counts one iota in the determination of public works policies and programs. These important functions are in the hands of men who could not tell the difference between a turbine and a concrete mixer, and whose motivation is sociological or political."

Urges Engineers to Organize.

The engineering profession is partly to blame for this situation, he asserted, by not organizing and securing proper recognition by the public and the government of the need for engineer administrative services in government.

"It is up to the engineering profession to organize now and demand of our government that steps be taken to create a proper agency to determine the legitimacy, adequacy, and need of the public works program," Chase warned.

"I propose a board of public works—a permanent nonpartisan federal agency of the character of the United States Supreme court—which will be held responsible to the country for the intelligent, competent engineering determination and administration of public works programs."

AM. TELEPHONE QUIZ GOES INTO SERVICE CHARGE

Annual Fees of 13 Million Cause Controversy.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—Charges amounting to a grand total of more than 13 million dollars annually for "services" rendered operating companies of the Bell system by the American Telephone and Telegraph company were attacked today by Samuel Becker, special counsel for the federal communications commission, and defended by Walter S. Gifford, president, and other American Telephone officials at the reopening of the commission's inquiry into the affairs of the corporation.

The whole theory of "service charges" as between the American Telephone and its 21 associated companies was argued, with each side charging the other with making a one sided and misleading presentation of the facts.

Gifford Explains Contracts.

Gifford testified the service contracts are an outgrowth of the original licensing of local companies to use telephone instruments, now sold to them and no longer included in the contracts, wherein the services rendered became thereafter the sole consideration.

"Under these contracts, the operating companies pay the parent concern 1½ per cent of their gross telephone revenue," said Gifford. "The cost of furnishing these services exceeds this 1½ per cent."

"Yes, but it is an important question to the public whether they must pay between 13 million and 15 million dollars a year for these services, which some authorities say they should not pay," Becker retorted.

Argue Over Service Charge.

Becker's contention is that such services are actually and properly chargeable to the holding company as contributing factors to the enhanced value of its stock, and furthermore that they were not originally a consideration in the license contracts, but were freely given, the fees charged being for instruments, and not for services.

Other American Telephone officials said they understood no specific charge had been made for the services referred to because they had been included in the license contracts for which, prior to the sale to them of the telephone instruments, the charge was 4½ per cent of their revenues, subsequently reduced to 2 per cent, and then to the present 1½ per cent charge.

RAIN FORECASTS FORCE WHEAT DOWN SHARPLY

Net Losses Average Two Cents a Bushel.

Forecasts for rain in the drouth stricken southwest resulted in heavy selling on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday which carried wheat futures sharply lower. The May delivery showed the largest loss, dropping more than 3 cents to 98⅝ cents before the decline was checked. July and September contracts dipped more than 2 cents but canceled a part of the loss when shorts rushed to cover near the end of the session. Net losses for the day ranged from 1¾ to 2⅛ cents a bushel.

Drouth reports from the southwest were more than offset as a market influence by independent weakness in the northwest. Minneapolis dropped 2⅛ to 3¼ cents for the day on reports indicating seeding of spring wheat had become general. Duluth durum was 4¾ to 4⅞ cents lower. Winnipeg lost 1½ cents and Liverpool dipped a major fraction.

Moisture Urgently Needed.

The fate of the winter wheat crop is hanging in the balance due to the record breaking lack of rainfall so far this year in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

Last week, according to B. W. Snow, Bartlett Frazier company crop statistician, little rain fell in Oklahoma and there was no moisture in Kansas except .02 inch at Lawrence. Nebraska was rainless except for a trace at two points and ¼ inch at another point.

Despite forecasts of rain relief, no rain, except a few sprinkles, was reported in Kansas up to the time the exchanges closed, and private weather map readers were skeptical of any moisture of consequence falling overnight.

Closing Prices Compared.

	Yest'y.	Sat'y.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$0.92⅞	$0.94	[illegible]
Corn	.61⅛	.62⅞	.61⅝
Oats	.27⅝	.27⅞	.26¾
Rye	.53⅝	.54⅝	.52⅞

Corn, oats, and rye futures weakened in sympathy with wheat. Corn lost 1 cent despite sales of 118,000 bushels of cash corn. Oats were off a fraction while rye eased a cent. Owing to dry and warm weather plowing for corn is said to have made rapid progress over a considerable area during the last week.

Increased speculative interest in the grain markets has brought about a better demand for memberships on the Chicago Board of Trade. A sale was reported yesterday at $5,000 net to the buyer or $200 over the preceding sale, and up $400 from a transfer made early last week.

Pork Loin Prices Are Boosted Sharply to New Top for Year

Top fresh pork loins in Chicago soared $2 per hundred pounds to a new 1936 high of $23.50 yesterday despite an unsettled condition of the hog market and the competition of relatively cheap beef. Advances in some of the eastern pork markets amounted to as much $1 as an acute shortage due to light hog receipts was uncovered at all distributing points.

Hog buyers here were influenced more by the heavy r·n of cattle and further reductions in live costs of beef steers than by the spurt in fresh pork markets. Only a scattering of underweights showed gains of 10 cents and most hogs sold slowly at steady prices, with isolated losses of 5 to 10 cents shown late in the day.

Top Highest in Nine Weeks.

Top 180 to 225 pound hogs again reached $11, equaling the highest mark in nine weeks. The average price was unchanged at $10.65, compared with $10.60 a week ago.

Better grade 250 to 300 pound butchers brought $10.60 to $10.90 and 325 to 400 pound averages sold from $10.15 to $10.50. Sows weighing 400 to 500 pounds changed hands at $9.50 to $9.75.

The competitive position of beef was made stronge. by a further break of 25 to 50 cents in cattle prices yesterday. The severe break affected practically all classes but the sharpest dip occurred in good to choice "fed" steers which formed a big part of the receipts. Arrivals totaled 17,000 head, the second largest of the year. Yesterday's top sale at $10 for choice 1,386 pound averages was the lowest Monday top since December, 1934.

Price Below Feeder Cost.

Thousands of cattle are now selling for less per hundred pounds than they cost going out as feeders several months ago.

Beef cows and hefers declined unevenly yesterday, selling 50 to 75 cents lower than a week ago. Canners and cutters eased 25 cents. Bulls and calves were steady.

The lamb market dipped 15 to 25 cents, bulk of the 64 carloads on sale going at $10.75 to $11.15, with top sales at $11.15. Some 111 pound stock brought $10.65. Freshly shorn natives sold at $9.50, buck lambs at $8.50, and some inferior culls at $5. Fancy 149 pound shorn ewes brought $5.25.

EGG PRICES OFF ⅜ CENTS; BUTTER IS ¼ CENT LOWER

An increased into-storage movement of eggs combined with hedging and speculative pressure carried future deliveries on the Mercantile exchange ⅜ cents lower yesterday with the October delivery closing at 22⅜ cents per dozen. Sales of futures were 89 cars.

Butter showed an easier undertone despite an unchanged spot market, with November closing ¼ cent lower at 26¼ cents per pound. Sales were 10 cars. Prices follow:

WEAKNESS IN STOCK TRADE PUSHES ALL COTTON LOWER

Weakness in Liverpool cotton and the stock market more than offset the effect of continued dry weather in the western cotton belt, and the active futures in Chicago declined 4 to 9 points while other markets dipped 2 to 9 points [a point is equal to 1-100 cent].

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 5 points lower, with New Orleans and Houston, 11.55 cents; Galveston, 11.60 cents, and New York, 11.75 cents per pound. Prices follow:

TAKE FINAL STEP TO REORGANIZE 3 REALTY TRUSTS

Transfer Assets to New Corporations.

Final steps were taken yesterday in the reorganization of three realty trusts involving an original investment of $6,000,000 when title to the holdings was transferred to three newly formed corporations which will liquidate the assets. The trusts were created in 1927 by the old Foreman Trust and Savings bank in conjunction with A. G. Becker & Co., investment house.

Frank C. Rathje, trustee for the realty trusts under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy act, transferred the seventy-five holdings of real estate and mortgages to the Arthur Realty corporation, Buchanan Realty corporation, and Cleveland Realty corporation.

4,000 Investors Involved.

Rathje said that about 4,000 investors bought beneficial interest certificates backed by the mortgages and real estate held by the trusts. The mortgages ranged from $75,000 to $150,000 each, and were largely secured by apartment buildings located in Chicago. The real estate holdings were largely obtained through foreclosure proceedings instituted by the trustee.

Rathje said that on a basis of present prices investors stand to get from 33⅓ to 50 cents on the dollar. However, the new corporations propose to liquidate in an orderly manner over a period of years.

Hold for Better Times.

It was said it was deemed advisable not to dump the holdings on the market but to hold them for better times in view of the upward trend in real estate.

A. K. Selz, an official of Selz, Schwab & Co., shoe manufacturers, is president of the three corporations. Directors are Charles S. Pearce, formerly president of the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company; William T. Bruckner, former vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; A. D. Plamondon, capitalist and formerly head of the Lincoln park board, and M. L. Emerich, resident partner of Hallgarten & Co., investment house.

Rathje said he has still to make his final accounting to the court.

OFFER HALF MILLION FOR UNIONIZATION OF STEEL EMPLOYES

Washington, D. C., April 20.—[Special.]—The committee for industrial organization of which John L. Lewis is president and Charles P. Howard secretary, has offered to coöperate with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers and to finance to the extent of $500,000 a campaign to organize the steel industry along industrial union lines, it was announced today.

The announcement was contained in a letter sent by the committee to Michael F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated association who is expected to place the proposal before the annual convention of his union in Canonsburg, Pa., April 28.

The offer made by the C. I. O. is similar to that made recently in a communication to President Green of the A. F. of L., who announced that it would be placed before the executive council which begins its next quarterly sessions in this city, May 5.

It was suggested that Tighe call the matter to the attention of the forthcoming convention in Canonsburg and that in the event the delegates approve the general principles proposed by the C. I. O., further details be left to the joint committee.

HARRIMAN BANK RECOVERY SUIT OPENED IN N. Y.

New York, April 20.—[Special.]—A suit seeking to force nine New York Clearing house banks to make good about $2,700,000 of the deficiency of the closed Harriman National Bank and Trust company went to trial today before Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag.

Brought by J. F. T. O'Connor, controler of the currency, Frederick Goess, receiver, and Henry E. Cooper, former president of the bank, the action is based upon an alleged agreement made by the Clearing House committee in 1932 to "look after" the Harriman bank. The bank did not open its doors after the bank holiday in March, 1933.

Alfred H. Cook, attorney for the government, charged at opening of the hearing that the Clearing House association had allowed the Harriman bank to accept deposits after it was known the bank was in an insolvent condition.

Ten of the twenty bank members of the Clearing House association originally named in the suit settled in 1934. The National City bank reached a settlement with the plaintifs last week, paying the full claim in cash. So far approximately 80 per cent of the deposits of the Harriman bank have been recovered.

EXPECTS LARGER FREIGHT TRAFIC ON MO. PACIFIC

Washington, D. C., April 20.—(AP)—Increased trafic on the Missouri Pacific Lines was forecast today in an interstate commerce commission hearing on the Van Sweringen plan for refinancing and consolidating the system.

C. E. Perkins, chief trafic officer of the company, testified that, based on his survey of conditions, the movement of wheat this year would be approximately 90 per cent of the normal 40,822 cars moved over their lines. He said weather conditions indicated the best wheat crop this year since 1931.

Perkins' testimony was brought out by the commission's attorneys in an effort to determine the revenues the system expects during the next few years, figured from the average for the seven years prior to 1935.

Rail Leaders Consider New Legislation at Session Here

Legislation pending in congress covering railroad operation was discussed yesterday at a special meeting of the Association of American Railroads at the Stevens hotel. About 100 of the nation's railroad executives attended.

J. J. Pelley, president of the association, who presided, said that most of the discussion centered about the Wheeler-Crosser bill, which the roads oppose, and the Pettengill bill for the repeal of the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act, which they favor. Legislation covering the length of trains, crews, and the six hour day was discussed briefly.

Object to Wage Proposal.

The railroads object especially, Pelley said, to the provision of the Wheeler-Crosser bill which provides that the railroads must continue to pay indefinitly two-thirds of the wages of men displaced in consolidation of two or more railroads. He explained that 80 per cent of the savings resulting from coördinations come from economy in the use of labor and to have to continue payments to employés displaced indefinitly would nullify the economy.

Pelley said the railroads have offered to the Association of Railway Labor Executives a proposal for the payment of a part of the pay of men displaced over a three year period. Men at about retirement age would also be provided for.

Hearings on the Wheeler-Crosser bill have been held in the house and the measure is due to come up in the senate shortly. Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator, will make known his position regarding the bill during the senate hearing.

Many Parleys Held.

Pelley said treatment for employés displaced in consolidations has been the subject of negotiations between the railroad and labor associations for some time. The last conference was held April 9 when labor indicated it had stated its position in full and there was nothing more to be said. Pelley said, however, that he felt the conferences were merely suspended and they might be reopened at any time either party desired.

Railroad labor is coöperating with the railroads in working for the passage of the Pettengill act repealing the long and short haul clause, Pelley said. Labor believes that with this clause repealed the railroads would be in a better position to meet competition because it would enable them to make rates to points where they had to meet stiff competition without lowering them to intermediate points.

CROP EXPERT CUTS WHEAT GUESS SHARPLY

A winter wheat crop of 470,000,000 bushels, or 23,000,000 less than the government's April 1 estimate, is indicated by reports from main producing states to Nat C. Murray, Clement, Curtis & Co. statistician. The returns were mailed between April 15 and 18. This total compares with his estimate of 545,000,000 bushels on April 1, when 14 per cent of the 47,500,000 acres seeded last fall were expected to be abandoned.

At present reports indicate 20 per cent of the acreage may be lost. A decline of 8 per cent was indicated in the condition which, according to Murray, may be expected to continue on the downgrade until relief from drouth is received. Indicated yield of wheat in millions of bushels in leading states compares as follows:

VOPICKA ESTATE TO VOTE BOOST IN ATLAS STOCK

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday granted permission to the Chicago Title and Trust company, as executors of the estate of Charles Vopicka, minister to Servia, Bulgaria, and Rumania, to vote 65,025 shares of common stock in the Atlas Brewing company in favor of an increase in capitalization.

The increase of 50,000 shares represents an option granted to James R. Buck, manager of the brewing company, to purchase stock at $5 a share. He also is to receive 15 per cent of the net profits during his management, although the contract provides for his dismissal if there is an operating loss for twelve months prior to March 1, 1937.

Present capitalization of the brewing company is 300,000 shares of common stock, with a par value of $1,500,000. The increased issue will raise the capital to $1,750,000.

Increase Predicted in May Corporate Bond Maturities

Corporate bond maturities during May will total $48,043,400, it is estimated by the Standard Statistics company. April maturities amounted to $40,071,768.

LARD OFF 10 TO 12½ CENTS ON BREAK IN GRAIN MART

Commission house pressure and a break in grain prices resulted in a decline of 10 to 12½ cents in active deliveries of lard futures here yesterday. Trade was modest. COURT DELAYS DECISION ON RFC ROCK ISLAND PLEA

Ask Lifting of Ban on Loan Collateral Sale.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday took under advisement a petition filed on behalf of the Reconstruction Finance corporation by Attorney James Sprowl seeking to dissolve an injunction under which the RFC has been restrained from selling $40,000,000 of securities of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad it holds as collateral for a loan of $14,000,000.

Judge Wilkerson also took under advisement a petition presented by former Senator Otis F. Glenn, attorney for the trustees of the railroad which is seeking to reorganize under section 77 of the bankruptcy act, asking permission to sell $4,500,000 of trustees certificates to provide funds for expenditures on maintenance and betterments.

Set Hearing Dates.

The court set May 11 for a hearing on the petition to dissolve the injunction and April 28 for a hearing on the request to sell the receivers' certificates.

Sprowl pointed out that the original injunction issued by Judge Wilkerson, which was later confirmed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and by the United States Supreme court, was a temporary measure to enable the railroad to protect its plan of reorganization. The securities back of the RFC loan, although originally valued in excess of $40,000,000, are now said to be valued at the present market at less than the amount of the loan.

Since the road was granted its injunction, Sprowl said it has been granted a number of extensions, the latest for six months, because of the inability to present a plan of reorganization suitable to all interested parties.

Object to Request.

Attorneys for a number of subsidiaries of the Rock Island objected to the proposal of the trustees to sell $4,500,000 of certificates on the ground that they would be burdened with the payment of a pro rata share of principal and interest. They did not object to the issuance of the certificates otherwise.

Attorneys for the subsidiaries asserted that a number of them have been earning money, but were being penalized because of the operating losses of the parent road.

Glenn told the court that the expenditure of $4,500,000 in the near future is necessary as a safety measure because of deferred maintenance expenditures within the last few years.

CHICAGO GROUP LAYS PLANS FOR INSURANCE WEEK

The Chicago Association of Life Underwriters has completed plans for observing life insurance week from May 11 to 16. The principal event of the week here will be a breakfast on May 11 at the Hotel Sherman, with Clarence B. Randall, vice president of Inland Steel company as the speaker.

The following committee chairmen were appointed: General chairman, William M. Houze; window display, H. G. Swanson; radio and press, Burton Mudge Jr.; breakfast arrangements, Joe Caperton; club speakers, Lynn H. Tracy; women's committee, Genevieve Forsberg; menu cards, L. M. Buckley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 20.—Lower prices prevailed today in the bond market on a moderate volume of trading. Pressure was heaviest against convertible and speculative issues, reflecting the weakness in stocks. Narrow and mixed price movements characterized exceptionally dull trading among the higher grade investment bonds.

Transactions of the New York Stock exchange amounted to $8,965,000, compared with $8,858,000 last Friday.

Nearby Bids Lacking.

The absence of nearby bids in several sections of the corporate list was reflected by the rather substantial declines sustained on a relatively small turnover. Secondary railroad liens and several of the more speculative industrial loans showed little resistance to the selling and yielded from fractions to several points on a few sales.

In the former group declines were fairly general with the issues of New Orleans, Texas, and Mexico yielding 1½ to 6 points.

Many Issues Weak.

Weak spots in the industrial group included Allis Chalmers 4s, off 3; American Type Founders 6s, off 2; General Steel Castings 5½s, off 3⅜; International Cement 4s, off 3½, and Studebaker 6s, off 3 points.

The market for United States government bonds was a shade easier in dull trading. Prices closed 1-32 to 6-32 point lower on a turnover of $671,400, compared with sales of $673,500 on Friday.

European government dollar loans were in supply at lower prices today, Italian issues yielding fractionally to 2½ points, while French government and German Agricultural bank obligations also lost ground.

Nehi Corp.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Nehi corporation.—P. S. F.

Answer: Nehi corporation, successor to Nehi, Inc., prepares a nationally advertised soft drink, "Nehi," which is distributed through franchised bottlers.

The company has operated profitably in seven out of the last eight years, but has covered first and second preferred dividend requirements in only two of the last five.

Net sales in 1935 were $1,294,000, against $1,026,000 in 1934, $648,000 in 1933, and $735,000 in 1932. Net income in 1935 was $259,000, or 77 cents per common share, against $275,000, or 89 cents per common share, for 1934. In 1933 net income was $91,000, against loss of $161,000 in 1932.

On Dec. 31, 1935, total assets were $2,903,000, of which intangibles, good will, trade marks, etc., accounted for $2,040,000. Profit and loss deficit was $163,000. Current assets, including cash of $333,000, were $516,000, and current liabilities were $65,000.

Capitalization consists of 16,500 shares of $5.25 dividend no par first preferred, 7,000 shares of $8 dividend no par convertible preferred, and 150,000 shares of no par common. With the payment of $2.62½ per share of first preferred on April 1, 1936, arrears on the stock were cut to $15.75 a share. The convertible preferred is $34 a share in arrears.

Monmouth Consolidated Water.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me the rating of bonds of Monmouth Consolidated Water company? Can you also tell me something about the company's business?—G. L.

Answer: Monmouth Consolidated Water company, an operating subsidiary of American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc., supplies water to a population of about 133,000 in southern New Jersey.

The company has covered its fixed charges in every year of the last ten, but the margin of coverage during the last two years has been substantially less than that of prior years.

Gross revenues for 1935 were $590,000, against $586,000 for 1934, $617,000 for 1933, and $648,000 for 1932. Fixed charges in 1935 were earned 1.27 times, against 1.18 times in 1934, 1.46 times in 1933, and 1.39 times in 1932.

The $3,564,000 of first mortgage 5s, due 1956, are outstanding in a moderate amount in comparison to total capitalization. The bonds are regarded as a business man's investment. They are callable at 102 until June 1, 1936, and thereafter at 101 to 1951.

BANKING CREDIT TOTAL EXPANDS IN LAST WEEK

Commercial Loans Rise Only Ten Millions.

An expansion of 65 million dollars in all types of bank credit in the week ended April 15 was shown in the report issued yesterday on the condition of member banks of the federal reserve in 101 principal cities of the country. Of the total increase commercial loans accounted for only 10 millions.

Most of the increase in loans and investment went into brokers' loans and securities, the statement showed. Bank holdings of government securities were 5 millions higher than a week earlier, and holdings of other securities rose 50 millions.

Brokers' Loans Rise.

The increase in brokers' loans was 39 millions, of which the New York banks accounted for 36 millions. Total commercial loans of the reporting banks now amount to 3,518 millions, an increase of 213 millions as compared with a year ago. Only 22 millions of the increase in the last year has been in New York and Chicago, the balance accounted for by banks in other cities.

The increase that has occurred in recent months in commercial loans is the first definite expansion since the bank moratorium of 1933, reserve board officials said.

STARTLING OPPORTUNITY
for alert salesmen, accustomed to painting a word picture, to earn over $150 per week. A national organization whose project is backed by 65 leading business men in Chicago whose names are a household word, together with an Advisory Board of over 200 leaders in Industry, located in every principal city in the United States, is looking for several men who can follow-through on big national advertising program in over 100 trade publications. You must be between 30 and 45, willing to be away from city several weeks at a time, own car, accustomed talking to business men, have previous background earnings in excess of $100 per week, a self-starter, and really have a sincere desire to advance yourself quickly. This is a very unusual opportunity, bestowing honorary recognition upon leading citizens in connection with club affiliations all over the country. Big commissions. For personal appointment, phone Mr. Blaz, Superior 9345.

WANTED 6 MEN

National electric manufacturing organization has openings in Chicago territory for two outside managers and four men without experience 25 to 50 yrs. old. This is hard work but good pay and you should earn $150 comm. or more per month. If necessary, advances will be made against your earnings.
